HUNDREDS AT GRAVE

OLD SOLDIERS GUARD BODY

Beaver, Pa., May 31.—In the midst of a driving rain, attended with the rumble of thunder, the remains of Senator Matthew Stanley Quay were lowered into the grave in Beaver cemetery this afternoon. Standing with uncovered heads about the last resting place of Pennsylvania's foremost citizen were the representatives of every walk of life, public and private.

Thousands of men and women braved rain and lightning to pay a final tribute to the senator. For almost three hours a constant stream of humanity passed by the bier. While the services were being held great crowds stood in the rain waiting for the funeral cortege to move. Then they followed the remains to the cemetery, while the clouds emptied their torrents upon them.

Greater simplicity could not have been followed in the services. The dead man had always abhorred show. In the preparation of every detail the question was always asked, "Would this be in accordance with the senator's wishes?" Had the dead statesman been able to make known his wishes, he would have found approval for every arrangement. The services were really grand in their simplicity.

Men from every corner of Pennsylvania, who had followed the senator in politics, journeyed to Beaver today to say farewell. There was hardly a face missing when one runs over the list of those who have been his lieutenants in the 67 counties of the commonwealth. If there were absentees, those who were absent were present in spirit. Among the number were numerous Democrats, who had always admired the senator, even if they could not follow him as a political general.

The True Quay.

The funeral oration of the Rev. Dr. J. S. Ramsay was a plain statement of the life and achievements of the senator. It was an unvarnished narration of the career of a marvelous man spoken by one who had made a thorough study of his subject. It dealt with the real Quay and these utterances will live as a part of the history of a great son of a great state.

Of the hundreds who came to Beaver today there were none to represent the red man. The senator was the greatest friend of the Indian in the United States senate. Unfortunately, the home of the tribes are so far removed from Beaver that none of them could cover the distance in time to pay tribute to their chieftain. But out on the plains and in the wilds of Canada they are mourning for the man who was ever their champion.

Business was suspended in the entire Beaver valley from noon until after the remains had been laid in the grave. By this cessation from labor the people among whom the senator had made his home for more than half a century sought to pay a tribute of respect to the memory of their neighbor and friend. In Beaver from hundreds of homes floated the American flag with its attached badge of mourning. On the lapels of many coats were worn pictures of the senator draped with crepe. During the services at the church all of the cars on the system of the Beaver Valley Traction Company were stopped.

Few entered the house of mourning today. While hundreds quietly moved up and down College avenue, by the Quay residence, none but the closest friends of the family entered the home. Several stalwart Pittsburgh policemen out on the lawn kept the crowds in motion.

Twenty-four officers were sent down from Pittsburgh under the command of Capt. Albert Testers and Lieut. Charles Grimes. There were also a number of men in plain clothes who kept a lookout for pickpockets.

Private Services Held.

When the 9:30 train over the Pennsylvania arrived this morning it brought Gov. Pennypacker and his private secre-

Beaver, Pa., May 31.—The Rev. Dr. J. S. Ramsay, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, delivered the following oration at the funeral services over the remains of Senator Quay:

The Rev. Dr. J. S. Ramsay.

In the second year of the last century was born a child who grew rapidly toward robust manhood. Within his stalwart body was a gifted mind and a heart as tender as a woman's. In early life he consecrated himself to the service of Jesus Christ and his fellowmen. He was wedded to an intelligent and godly woman. From this union came several children, one of whom has just left us, and we gather here today to pay our respects to his memory.

About the middle of the last century the Rev. A. B. Quay became pastor of this church, and there are still people who heard him preach and can easily recall his benign countenance. He lived long enough to see his son, Matthew, grow to young manhood, married to the gentlewoman of his choice and started on his career, which is now known throughout the land. The young couple opened their home in Third street with the husband's parents, and all were glad to live beneath the same roof, but the home was soon broken. The father died while yet in the fulness of his manly vigor. The mother survived him a number of years.

It was always a matter of regret to Senator Quay that his father did not live longer, that he might have had a father's presence in his home and surrounded the father with luxuries he was not able to command in the days of early manhood. But the loyalty of his heart was as true in the days when he was struggling for a living as in his later years of competence when filial love yearned to give to the beloved father.

Blessed With Christian Parents.

We have thus referred to Senator Quay's origin because his life cannot be correctly interpreted until the factor of his birth and training are taken into account. He was blessed in cultivated Christian parents. They knew the value of an education; they could appreciate their son's thirst for knowledge and lead him to the best springs to slake it, and they could fill his soul with great and good thoughts. He responded promptly to the parental touch. Early, under his father's tutelage, his bright mind expanded with the potency of promises. Catching his father's tastes, he acquired a love for the best books, so that there was not even standing room for the light and trifling literature of his day.

It was a revelation that seemed too strange for people to believe that Senator Quay was a literary man. They naturally supposed one so conspicuous in the political field, which need knowledge of men more than books and great riding along the lines to make necessary repairs in the gaps, could not be one widely read or imbued with scholarly tastes and tendencies. But the people were mistaken then, as they frequently were, in Senator Quay. He was a veritable bookworm. He rewound his own brain. His thoughts there became incorporated and engrafted in his life; they mastered him and then he mastered them. They were so thoroughly packed away in his mind that they were as secure in their position there as they were on his own shelves. The ownership of thought was so complete that it naturally exhaled in his spoken words and writings. As people read his addresses, especially those of later years, they marveled at the beauty of his diction, the conciseness of his expression, the directness of his style, the accuracy of his statements and the wideness of his research. But, while the recognition of his literary ability may have been retarded, the thing in itself was ancient. It began in his boyhood, grew with him, deepened at the end of his life, and was still warm when the shadow of death was hanging over him.

Forty-eight hours before he died, attended

Beaver, Pa., May 31.—The fight for the United States senatorship vacancy, created by the death of M. S. Quay, is on in earnest. There are candidates galore; candidates who have declared their intention to battle for the honor, and others who are passively receptive. So far as available material is concerned there is no reason why Pennsylvania should not have its full quota when congress convenes December 1. There will be no excuse for a vacancy, such as existed between the sessions of 1899 and 1901, when the legislature deadlocked, and the appointment made by Gov. Stone was rejected.

Those interested are much concerned over the probable action Gov. Pennypaker will take. He can make an appointment for the short term, or call a special session, or both. Should the special session not confirm his appointment, and should the regular session in January fail to approve the choice of the special session, it would be possible that three men would become successors of Senator Quay, the former two for a brief period and the last choice for the constitutional term of six years.

Such theorizing, however, will hardly become a matter of actuality, and it is indulged merely for the purpose of contrasting the provisions of the federal and state constitutions, with an emphasized reference to the ambiguity of the latter. When asked today if he had decided whether he would fill the vacancy by appointment or by special session of the legislature, Gov. Pennypacker said:

Governor In No Hurry.

"I have decided nothing except that this is the day of Senator Quay's funeral. Any further comment would, in my opinion, be a transgression of the proprieties."

Friends of the governor gathered from other observations made by his excellency that he did not purpose taking up the matter officially for several days. This will give Insurance Commissioner Israel W. Durham a chance to get home, consult with his friends and arrive at a conclusion as to what position he and Senator Penrose will assume as to the succession. Penrose and Durham hold the key to the situation. It is clutched with a Yale lock and these locks have but one key. Whoever Mr. Perrose favors as his colleague will no doubt be acceptable to Durham. On this question a difference between the two is impossible. Who Senator Penrose favors is a secret which he has not made public and his choice, if he has one, will not be made known until matters assume more definite shape.

Congressman Joseph C. Sibley has the distinction of being the first gladiator to raise his shield in the senatorial arena.

CANNOT HAVE TRIAL BY JURY

Federal Supreme Court Passes on Rights of Filipinos.

BENCH IS DIVIDED

HARLAN SAYS IT'S DANGEROUS

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau.
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 31.

By a vote of five to four the supreme court of the United States today rendered a decision denying the residents of the Philippines the right of trial by jury. Justice Harlan, in a dissenting opinion, declared that the decision of the court was an amendment to the Constitution by judicial construction, which was a most dangerous step.

The case was that of Dorr and O'Brien, editors and proprietors of a Manila newspaper. They were convicted of libel in the Philippines, demanded a jury trial, which was refused them, and appealed their case to the supreme court of the United States.

The opinion which was rendered by Justice Day called attention to the fact that the government of the Philippines had been expressly left by the treaty of Paris in the hands of congress, and that congress, because of the incapacity of the people of the islands, had purposely withheld the right of trial by jury. The court, therefore, affirmed the decision of the Philippine supreme court, and held that the refusal of a jury trial to the defendants was correct, and that they were properly convicted of gross libel.

Justices Harlan, Peckham, Brewer and Fuller dissented.

A Part of the United States.

Justice Harlan declared his conviction that the Philippines were a part of the United States and that the Constitution of the United States extended to those islands, and that the right of trial by jury was a fundamental one which necessarily extended to any place owned by the United States and could not be taken away by any power of congress. The fact that some of the people of the Philippines were not sufficiently educated to appreciate the full benefit of the Constitution was no reason why the supreme court of the United States should say that all of the inhabitants of those islands, including the United States citizens there, should be deprived of the right of a jury trial.

Justice Harlan said that where the rights of 10,000,000 persons were involved he felt constrained to dissent. He did not believe that the provision of the federal Constitution as to grand and petit juries related to mere methods of procedure and were not fundamental in their nature.

"In my opinion," he continued, "the guarantees for the protection of life, liberty and property embodied in the Constitution were for the benefit of all, of whatever race or nativity, either in the states composing the union or in any territory, however acquired, over which and for the independence of which the United States may exercise the power conferred upon it by the Constitution.

CONFESSES TO THE MURDER

MAKES CLEAN BREAST

Names Three Accomplices Whom He Says Are Now in Croatia.

M'QUAID WILL GO FOR THEM

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

Washington, Pa., May 31.—Milovar Kovovick, now under sentence of death for the Ferguson murder has made a written confession, in which he not only says he was the principal participant in the crime, but asserts that Milovar Pattrovick convicted of second degree murder for the same crime, is guiltless. He has named three accomplices who he says are now beyond the hand of the law.

On Sunday, immediately after the conviction of Pattrovick, Kovovick, in talking to a newspaper man through an interpreter, exonerated Pattrovick. The latter was enraged at his conviction and bitterly upbraided Kovovick. He called on Kovovick to confess and free him from any connection with the crime. Kovovick, driven almost to desperation by the upbraidings of the other and with hanging staring him in the face, made a confession that morning. It was not until night, however, that he made a clean breast of the crime.

Gallows Frightened Him.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Sunday night Detective Thomas A. McQuaide of Pittsburgh, District Attorney Owen C. Underwood, Sheriff C. E. Carothers and Richard Winkler, interpreter, went to the county jail and carried Kovovick off to the district attorney's office in the courthouse. Here, it is alleged, they informed him that he was about to meet death at the end of a rope, and thus secured his confession.

Kovovick stated that he and three accomplices had planned the death of Ferguson for a month or more. The first plan was to shoot him, but this was considered too crude. The dynamite mine in the road was then adopted as the best plan. On the morning of September 25 Kovovick and his three companions laid the mine beneath the small culvert in the foot of Seminary hill and then awaited the approach of their victim. Kovovick and another man were on the west side of the road, hidden in a clump of bushes along the fence. A third man was hidden behind the stump and touched off the battery, while a fourth was farther down the road acting as lookout.

When Ferguson and Martin were hurled from the buggy Kovovick stated that the man hiding with him ran into the road, and, picking up the satchel full of money, ran over the hill, passing Farmer Lewis Liggett as he ran. This bears out the statement of Liggett that neither Kovovick nor Pattrovick was the man whom he saw carrying the satchel.

He Names Accomplices.

After the commission of the crime, the four men implicated met at a short distance from West Middletown at a point previously agreed upon, and there divided the spoils. Kovovic claims that his accomplices are now in Croatia. The names of the men, he says, are Joseph Buckewicz, Pere Barac and Nikola Nikowicz. Buckewicz was foreman of construction at the Hassett camp, which was near the Ferguson camp, and it was he, Kovovick declares, that touched off the dynamite battery.

It is not believed that Kovovick's confession will have any effect on Pattrovick's fate, further than possibly to decrease the years of his sentence. Pattrovick, it is pointed out, must necessarily have had guilty knowledge of the crime. Kovovick admitted having money changed at the First National Bank of Pittsburgh, but says the fact that he paid Pattrovick money that he owed him brought the latter into suspicion.

Pittsburgh detectives have cabled to Croatia descriptions of the men named by Kovovick and a trip to Europe will shortly be taken by Detective McQuaide.

Attorneys for Kovovick stated tonight that the confession of their client would not deter them from prosecuting their appeal for a new trial. They consider the story of the confession a bluff on the part of the commonwealth to make them withdraw the appeal.

Kuropatkin Declares That One Japanese Squadron Was Nearly Annihilated.

MIKADO'S MEN GAIN GROUND

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

CHEFOO, June 1.—(11 a. m.)—An unconfirmed rumor is current among the Chinese that a battle occurred six miles from Port Arthur yesterday (Tuesday).

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

St. Petersburg, May 31.—Reports are current that a battle is now in progress between the Japanese and Russian armies at Mo-Tien-Ling pass, between Fung-Wang-Cheng and Liao-Yang.

It has been known that it was the intention of Gen. Kuropatkin to try and smash one of the Japanese columns should it develop the Japanese command was out of reach of supports which would enable him to put an overwhelming force into the battle line, and it is believed the diversion of a considerable part of the Japanese army to the siege of Port Arthur and of another strong column for a flanking movement along the Kwan-Tien road has given the Russian commander the opportunity he was looking for to meet the Japanese on something like even terms.

If Kuropatkin has engaged Kuroki at Motien Ling the Japanese general will have to reckon with the corps under Gen. Kondratovitch, 25,000 strong, on his flank, and it is hoped, if not relieved, the battle will result in a decisive Russian victory.

Division Moving South.

It is reported that the First brigade of the First Russian division, consisting of the First, Second, Third and Fourth Siberian regiments, left Tashechao (a point on the railroad about 20 miles south of Niuchwang) for Kinchau yesterday. The purpose of this movement is not known.

The following official dispatch has been received by the general staff:

"At 10:30 p. m., May 27, a force of Japanese infantry from Kuan-Dian-Sian commenced a frontal flank attack upon a position occupied by our Cossacks near Shaogo, 15 versts northwest of Kuan-Dian-Sian. The Japanese, under the cover of the darkness, opened a running, desultory fire, using field searchlights. The Cossacks retired on foot to the Chan-Lin pass, two versts west of Shaoga, and subsequently on Ai-Yang-Pien-Men, 16 versts west of the Chanlin pass. The firing ceased at 2 a. m. May 28, when the Japanese ceased the pursuit at the entrance of the pass.

Heavy Japanese Loss.

TASCOTT FOUND ON DEATH BED

Murderer of Amos Snell Hounded by Conscience to the Last.

DIED IN FAR NORTH

HAD BEEN PAID FOR CRIME

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

Victoria, B. C., May 31.—If the voluntary declaration of a dying man is believed, "Finis" has been written to the historic Snell tragedy of 15 years ago and Tascott, the long-sought murderer, self-identified, has paid the penalty of his crime with penitence and now fills an unmarked grave in the heart of the Alaskan wilderness, whither he had fled for the effacement of his individuality.

Philip Robertson, a strictly reliable man, prospector and miner, received the dying man's confession, and tells the story simply and dramatically.

Robertson left the Klondike, he says, late last fall in a small boat bound for the new placer grounds at Fairbanks. He reached a point near Dahl river in a desolate and forbidding region, where he heard forlorn wailing of a dog surpassing ears. He found the dog, a half-starved shepherd, seemingly in much distress. Following the animal, Robertson was brought to a seemingly deserted cabin some 400 yards above the river, concealed in a clump of spruce.

Found Dying Man.

"I ventured to the door of the shack and knocked," says Robertson, "and there was a feeble 'Come in.' All was darkness inside, and there was no sign of a fire. I caught sight of a bit of candle, which I lighted, and then advanced to where a man lay.

"With a feeble effort he turned and stared at me for a full minute. Then he said:

"'Are you an officer?'

"The question amazed me a bit.

"'No,' I said, 'I am a miner and if there is anything I can do for you I want to do it.'

"I soon had a fire going and again approached the bed. The man's hair was white as snow, his face had a color to it that looked like death, and he had the most terrified and hopeless expression I have ever seen on a human being.

Confessed on Death Bed.

"'Partner,' he said, finally, rolling over on his side and little more than whispering, 'I am leaving a world that I did not appreciate. I'm going to hell where I belong.'

"He lapsed into silence again and what I thought was sleep came over him. Two hours passed and he suddenly awakened with a shriek and then sank back in bed.

"In a few minutes he emitted another wild scream and started up in bed. Then

REIGN OF TERROR AROUND INDIANA

BOLDLY BATTER DOWN DOORS

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

Indiana, Pa., May 31.—Terror reigns in Canoe township, which was visited last night by the same desperadoes who robbed the Elliott, Jordan and McCracken homes, all within a few days.

Five masked men broke into the home of David C. Leasure. They bound and gagged Mr. Leasure, his wife and their 16-year-old daughter, then looted the house. They gained entrance by the same methods employed in all their previous operations, using a fence rail as a battering ram and breaking down the front door. As they rushed into the house they yelled "Fire!"

Four of the men ran to the room of Mr. and Mrs. Leasure, where they tied the aged couple hand and foot and placed gags in their mouths. Mrs. Leasure was taken to an adjoining room. The daughter was bound and placed in the same room with her mother. With drawn revolvers, two of the men stood guard over Mr. Leasure, while two others tortured him into revealing the place where his money was kept. They held burning paper under the soles of the aged man's feet until, goaded by pain, he told the robbers where they would find his money and a gold watch and chain, the property of Mrs. Leasure.

After getting $10 the thieves ransacked the house. Believing the aged farmer had more money hidden, they tore up every carpet in their search. It is known that at times Mr. Leasure has had large sums of money in his house, and it is supposed the burglars were acquainted with this fact. They spent two and one-half hours in the house.

As soon as the robbers departed Miss Leasure struggled with the ropes that bound her until she freed herself. She then released her father and mother. All five men were heavily masked, and Mr. Leasure says it would be impossible for him to identify any of them. There is not the slightest clue, although the whole series of robberies is the most daring in the history of the community. Men are going armed to their work and women and children are afraid to go outside their doors after dark.

MINER KILLS HIS GIRL WIFE

THEN TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

Cambridge, O., May 31.—By killing his beautiful girl wife, disfiguring his infant child for life, and then shooting the top of his head off, Andrew Messer this morning added another bloody page to the history of Kings Mines, a little hamlet east of this city, whose record has been stained by many tragedies.

Messer was 24 years old and his wife was 17. The wife, whose maiden name was Josephine Morrison, was of French parentage, and prior to her marriage on New Year's day, 1902, she was a belle in the region about her home, shortly after the marriage there were frequent quarrels. Six months ago Mrs. Messer applied for a divorce. Soon after her application was filed Messer drove his wife from the house and she went to the home of her parents.

Sheriff Watson was appealed to, and he sent Deputy Sheriff Henderson to Kings Mines with Mrs. Messer to enable her to remove her clothing from the house. Messer was ugly, but the presence of the officer cowed him. The lived apart till last Saturday morn when Messer persuaded his wife to turn to him, although her divorce su was still pending. He promised to stop drinking, which had been the chief cause of their trouble.

Mrs. Messer was lying on the bed with her baby in her arms. Raising a heavy stove poker, the man brought it down with crushing force across his wife's forehead. The same blow struck his child's face, breaking its nose. Messer then placed the muzzle of his revolver to the unconscious woman's temple and fired two bullets into her head.

Messer then went to the kitchen, and, standing before a mirror he cut a gash in his neck. He then laid the bloody knife along with his revolver, on a chair and secured a shotgun. Removing his shoes he placed the butt of the gun on the floor, with the muzzle against the side of his head, and with his toe pushed the trigger. The charge of shot blew the top of his head off.

KOREA IN HANDS OF JAPANESE

PUSHING THE RAILROAD LINE

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]
(Copyright, 1904, by New York Herald Co.)

SEOUL, May 24, via Shanghai, May 31.—(12:30 p. m.)—Reinforcements sent to Ping Yang and Anju have reduced the strength of the local garrison about 2,000, which is considered sufficient, as any Russian attempt via the east coast against Seoul would be speedily known through numerous small Japanese squads located in every village to the north and east. Furthermore, these could easily be used to reinforce Seoul.

No local disturbances are feared, the Korean court being completely dominated by the Japanese. Their influence is daily strengthened by substitution of Japanese proteges, even in the lower strata of Korean officialdom. Attempts to persuade the emperor to remove the palace residents to the east palace, where he would be entirely outside European influence, thus far are futile, memories of the riots of 1884 being still strong in the imperial mind. The needed reforms in the Korean government as yet are unapparent.

The Japanese are pushing with great energy the construction of a military railway from Seoul to Wiju. Steamer loads of material are constantly arriving and thousands of uniformed workmen and engineers are busily engaged on the earthworks and timber trestle bridges. There is the greatest of activity everywhere.

Favor Japanese.

The people of northern Korea are entirely favorable to the Japanese occupation, having suffered heavily under the enforced provisioning of the Russian bands, which the prefect Japanese commissariat precludes. The Japanese transports are now landing supplies for men and horses at Antung for the main army. The previous sea bases at Chemulpo and Chinnampo are to be used only for the local garrisons. The first detachment of newspaper correspondents quartered at Antung were not permitted to proceed.

The Japanese front now extends from Kwan Tien, 40 miles east, to Fang Wung Cheng, via Feng-Huang and Siu Yen, to Kutan-Tien. The intermediate country is patrolled by strong scouting parties, which can be easily reinforced from Mukden, Antung, Taku and Kinchau. It is opinion of the military officials here the Japanese are not satisfied with occupation of Hai Cheng as in 1894, will push on against Liao Yang and Mukden, which occupied, presents for a lengthy line of communication excludes Harbin from the plan of campaign.

Raids Are Desultory.

Desultory Russian raids on the eastern Korean coast have been futile except for belligerence purposes. The only effect is to change the previous favorable Korean sentiment there against the Russians as the depredations fall most heavily on natives.

Frequent glimpses of a strong Japanese squadron off the east coast indicate that a close watch is being kept on the Vladivostok squadron by the Japanese. The Japanese wrecking operations on the Russian cruiser Varing at Chemulpo continues. All the guns and other movable objects have been removed to Sasebo. The raising will be difficult, as the Varing lies on her port side down in the soft mud which is continually oozing through the great rents amidships made by the Japanese shells. The estimated cost to put the ship in commission is 1,500,000 yen.

SEAM IDEUNG, May 30, via Seoul, May 31.—(7:51 a. m.)—The Korean garrison officials from Puk Chun passed through here at midnight in full flight toward the south. They report 700 Russian cavalry following them closely. Later—The Russians are arriving and the wires are to be destroyed.

the summit of the hills west of the town. At 10 a. m. they formed up in order of battle, the force consisting of two battalions with another in reserve. At 11 a. m. a battery of artillery took up a position and opened fire with shrapnel. While crossing the valley the Japanese infantry, advancing in close formation, suffered heavily. At 11:20 the Cossacks, observing that the Japanese were turning their right flank, retired in good order on Saimatsza. The fire of the rearguard ceased at 2 p. m. We lost two officers and seven Cossacks.

"On May 30 the Japanese advanced toward Saimatsza. Their movements were watched by Cossacks. When this telegram was dispatched the Japanese had not arrived at Saimatsza.

"Up to May 29 the Japanese had not occupied Siu-Yen.

"Shortly before noon, May 30, our cavalry opened fire near the railroad station of Yangenchu against an advancing Japanese force, consisting of eight companies of infantry, eight squadrons of cavalry and four machine guns.

Squadron Annihilated.

"During the ensuing battle our mounted sotnias brilliantly attacked a Japanese squadron on the enemy's left flank and almost completely annihilated it. The sotnias then attacked the infantry, but retired under the fire of machine guns. The advance of the Japanese infantry in order to turn our left flank was stopped by the fire of our battery, which inflicted considerable loss on the enemy. Our losses have not yet been definitely ascertained, but so far known one officer and 21 men were wounded and 25 horses were lost."

TOKYO, May 31, 3 p. m.—The Russians evacuated Dalny so hastily that they failed to destroy much property which will prove highly valuable to the Japanese. Gen. Oku's scouts report that over 100 barracks and storehouses remain uninjured. The railway and telegraph stations with 200 passenger and freight coaches are also uninjured. The Russians destroyed the big pier and blocked all the dock entrances with sunken steamers. They destroyed all the small railway bridges in the vicinity of the docks, but left the jetties uninjured. It is evident that the Russians fled quickly when Nanshan hill was lost.

SKRYDLOFF HAS DODGED JAPANESE BLOCKADE

Report That Russian Admiral Has Wormed His Way Into Port Arthur.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

SHANGHAI, May 31.—There is a report current here today that Admiral Skrydloff has succeeded in making his way into Port Arthur by means of a coasting vessel and is now in command of the squadron there, which he is putting in the best possible shape for a dash to sea.

All the injured ships which it was possible to repair have been fitted for sea and the squadron now consists of four fine battleships, an armored cruiser and smaller craft. It is understood that several of the vessels of Admiral Togo's fleet have been sent to home ports to be overhauled and naval men here believe if Skrydloff really has been successful in running the Japanese blockade he will have a fair chance of breaking through the Japanese line with some of his ships and of inflicting much damage on the enemy.

It is pointed out that the Russians will have the advantage of having their ships fresh from the docks, while the Japanese have been campaigning now for several months, which means foul bottoms and reduced speed.

DAMAGE NOT SO GREAT.

Less Than $30,000 Covers Loss on Keystone Commercial Company's Houses.

Less than $30,000 will cover the loss by the fire on Monday night in the storage warehouse of the Keystone Commercial Company in Carson street. It turns out that there were only 3,000 cases of eggs there and these are by no means a total loss. The roof can be replaced at a cost of $2,000 and the damage to the Penn Plate Glass company's stock is not more than $5,000.

Fire Marshal W. D. McGill investigated the fire yesterday, but the watchman, William Moore, had gone to bed after his all-night's work. Mr. McGill was informed that the fire started in the rear of the office of the Penn Plate Glass company on the third floor.

"Just what caused the fire I am unable to say," said Mr. McGill, "for I have not been able to interview the watchman. It is positive that electric wires did not start the fire, for the electric light was turned off as usual on Saturday night."

G. W. C. Johnson, president of the Keystone Commercial Company, said the firemen did not get a single stream of water turned on the fire until more than a half hour after the alarm was turned in.

SELECT FAILED TO MEET.

Upper Branch Did Not Have Quorum—Session on Friday.

Select council did not meet yesterday owing to lack of a quorum, many of the members attending the funeral of Senator Quay in Beaver. Not more than eight or 10 members were present. R. H. Douglas moved that an adjournment be taken out of respect to the late Senator Quay and the motion was carried.

Director Bigelow said yesterday select council would probably be called in special session on Friday, as there are over 100 street improvement bills to pass. The director is also anxious to have passed the ordinance appropriating $15,000 for the construction of a race-track in Schenley park.

The public safety committee also failed to get a quorum yesterday. The principal business before this committee is the ordinance authorizing the director and superintendent of police to license massage parlors, which are not allowed at present to operate in the city.

TONS OF EARTH FALL.

Storm Causes Landslide at the Wabash Tunnel and Also Knocked Wires Down.

As a result of the heavy rains of the last few days the earth and rock on the cliffs in this vicinity have become loosened and there is danger of landslides. The big storm yesterday brought down many tons of earth at the south end of the new Wabash railroad tunnel. Most of the earth slid down to one side of the railroad tracks and will not cause much delay in work at that point.

In Allegheny and the Woods Run district the storm tore down electric light and telephone wires and caused much danger to people passing in the streets. At Davis avenue and Brighton road an unknown man leaned against a charged trolley pole and was thrown to the ground. He recovered in a few minutes and went home. The North Side police sent men out to restore the wires.

The storm of rain, lightning and heavy thunder yesterday was one of the heaviest experienced in this vicinity so far this season. The heavy showers continued during the greater part of the day and flooded streets and sidewalks in many places. The rain which fell during the day measured .64 of an inch, an excess of .72 of an inch for the day.

The weather forecast for Pittsburgh is for showers and cooler conditions today and fair and warmer for tomorrow.

DEAD IN FREIGHT CAR.

Believed that Molder Took His Own Life on a Railroad.

An unknown man was yesterday found in an open freight car on the Allegheny Valley railroad at Coleman station, with his throat cut. A razor covered with blood was found by his side and there was every evidence that the man had taken his life. The body was found by Thomas O'Donnelly, a repairman, and from the condition of the car the man had been dead several days. The dead man was probably a molder, as a set of molding tools were found in his pockets. He was about 30 years old, five feet eight inches in height and weighed about 140 pounds. He had hazel eyes, sandy mustache and wore a blue sack coat and gray jean trousers.

An unknown man, aged about 60 years, was killed by a Panhandle passenger train at Dower Hill at 5:30 o'clock p. m. yesterday. He was five feet eight inches tall, weighed 150 pounds and had a gray mustache, whiskers and hair. He wore a gray check suit.

COUNT LAMSDORFF ASSAULTED

His Assailant, Prince Dolgourouki, Bulgarian Pretender, Is Arrested.

PARIS, June 1.—The Echo de Paris' St. Petersburg correspondent wires:

Machinists Strike in Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 31.—The 3,000 machinists employed in the companies that compose the Metal Trades association went on strike today as a protest against the 10-hour day, and practically all of the 115 shops represented in the association will be closed tomorrow. No effect will be made to operate the shops until Thursday, and then the force of the employers will be controlled at a few plants.

WERE FRIENDS OF THE SENATOR

EVERY COUNTY REPRESENTED

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BEAVER, PA., May 31.—In Beaver today were the men who have fought with Col. Quay for years. From outside the state came others who have been associated with him in the senate.

To name all of the men who attended the funeral of Senator Quay would be a difficult task. In the making of lists some will doubtless be overlooked.

Senators Penrose, Francis M. Cockrell of Missouri, John J. Mitchell of Oregon and J. Frank McAlee of Delaware represented the senate.

The congressmen present were H. K. Porter, John Dalzell, E. E. A. Acheson, D. F. LaFean, Elias Deemer, W. O. Smith, Arthur L. Bates, George F. Huff, Henry Bingham, George A. Caster, Edward Morrell and M. E. Olmsted, all of Pennsylvania.

Included in the Washington party were William S. Shallenberger, second assistant postmaster general; Maj. Alexander McDowell, chief clerk of the house of representatives; Sergeant-at-Arms Ransdell of the United States senate, Col. W. R. Andrews, private secretary to Senator Penrose, and Harry K. Daugherty of the attorney general's office.

POPE BLESSES YOUNG PRIESTS.

Receives Graduating Class From the American College at Rome.

ROME, May 31.—Monsignor Kennedy, rector of the American college presented to the pope today the graduating class of 1904, consisting of ten students, who have just been ordained. They included Augustine Their, Dubuque, Iowa; John Murphy, Erie, Pa.; S. Edmund Fitzmaurice, and Alvah Doran, Philadelphia, and Patrick Turner, Mobile, Ala.

The pope delivered a short speech to the newly ordained priests, and imparted his benediction, authorizing the priests to give a special blessing to the people to whom they will be sent.

Korean Emperor Gives Decorations.

SEOUL, May 31.—The emperor of Korea has decorated the Italian minister, Signor Monaco and the chief commissioner of Korean customs, J. M. McLeavy Brown, with the Tai-Kuk order of the second class. The French charge Dufaillas, M. Pontenay, has been decorated with the Palkway order of the first class and Herr Weppert, formerly German consul here, has received the Palkway order of the second class.

THE CANDIDATES FOR SENATOR

"Uncle Joe" is in Europe. He was scheduled to return July 1, but rumor has it that he will be found on the first liner which left for these shores after the death of Quay. His friends speak for him. O. D. Bleakley of Franklin hit town this morning. Mr. Bleakley was accompanied by P. C. Boyle of Oil City and State Senator Henry H. Cumings of Tidioute flanked the procession.

Sibley a Candidate.

After the funeral Mr. Bleakley informed The Gazette that he was authorized to state that Sibley was a candidate for the senatorial vacancy; that whether the place was filled by appointment, special or regular session, Sibley must be counted in the race. Mr. Bleakley also thought Sibley had a good chance to win. Boyle and Cumings in this prediction concurred. Sibley's announcement caused a stir. It rumbled and reverberated through the corridors of the Duquesne hotel until it reached the Elkin headquarters on the second floor, and jostled the chandelier in Penrose's apartments a flight higher up.

Penrose made no comment. Elkin looked a bunch of things, but swallowed them before they could be politically diagnosed. Sibley's friends assert he will be backed by Standard Oil interests, in of which appeals to those who have the practical legislative "habit of mind." Fairness compels the admission that Mr. Elkin is regretful because he accepted the Republican nomination for justice of the supreme court. A nomination is equivalent to election, the salary is $10,000 a year, and the term 21 years. Had Mr. Elkin not accepted this chance, his friends say, he would have been logically in line for the senatorial vacancy. This honor has a continuity of six years, and pays $5,000 annually, so it is easy to understand Mr. Elkin's regret. His friends, all of them who were actively engaged in supporting him in his gubernatorial canvass were at the funeral. They talked nothing but Elkin. It was their opinion, their demand, that he get off the state ticket and make a fight for the senatorship. As one of them expressed it:

Some Elkin Boomers.

"Elkin on the supreme bench would be of no material use to his old followers; in the senate he would have patronage to dispense and he would be able to hold together and strengthen the Elkin organization."

Among the Elkin boomers at Beaver were, ex-Gov. William A. Stone, ex-Secretary of the Commonwealth W. W. Griest, Representatives Frank McClain of Lancaster, Thomas Capp of Lebanon, Lee Plummer of Blair, Albert Millar of Dauphin, Editor Welsh of Huntingdon, ex-State Treasurer James Beacom of Westmoreland, ex-Treasurer James Parnett of Washington, Ben Focht of Union and "Dick" Scandrett of Pittsburgh. There were others.

Mr. Elkin declined to commit himself when asked as to his candidacy by The Gazette correspondent. He said he had not told anyone that he would or would not be a candidate. This was explained by a close friend of Elkin's this way:

"Elkin is awaiting the return of Durham. He wants to go to the senate and will go after the prize if Durham will support him. No one can win without Durham's support. We expect it."

Congressman E. F. Acheson, whose name has been mentioned as a probable candidate, said:

"I am not, nor will I become a candidate for senator. I think Quay's successor should come from Allegheny county.

Acheson Says a Word.

"In regard to Elkin's candidacy I have this comment to make: If Senator Penrose wants a colleague who will dispute with him, from the outset, the question of supremacy; if he wants a man who will use his position to build up a personal machine with the view of substituting it for the organization now in control of state affairs, then without a doubt he could make no happier selection than John P. Elkin. Mr. Elkin will fully meet these requirements. He never forgave Quay, Penrose and Durham for denying him the governorship. Once in the senate, with a six years' tenure certain, he would be able to make things mighty unpleasant for his colleague. Would he do so? I think he would."

Nothing tangible was today added to the prospective candidacies of Frick, Dalzell, Murphy, Huff and Robbins. Their friends are still actively at work and report "progress." Rumor had it that both Frick and Elkin had sent friends westward for the purpose of intercepting Durham and obtaining his approval of their candidacies. This story, however, was not confirmed, and it seems more or less fanciful. Durham would not O. K. any man until he has talked with Penrose, McNichol and his other friends in Philadelphia.

Senator Flinn made a brief statement bearing upon the vacancy. He said:

"I have been asked by a great many influential Republicans to be a candidate for United States senator. I intend to look the field over in the near future and give the matter serious consideration. It is a highly important position, to which any man would be justified in aspiring."

The senator left for the east tonight. Durham ought to reach Philadelphia Thursday or Friday. It is announced by his secretary, Capt. J. Clayton Erb, that he will be at his office in the Belz building Monday morning. Before that time he and Penrose will have mapped out a plan of action.

HUFF'S FRIENDS BOOM HIM FOR SEAT IN THE SENATE

He Is Said to Have Support of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

GREENSBURG, PA., May 31.—Congressman George F. Huff was in Greensburg tonight for several hours on his way from Beaver to Philadelphia. He refused to discuss the boom which has been started for him as Quay's successor, but intimated that he would accept the office if it were tendered to him.

The Huff boom is being quietly launched. It is certain that he will be supported by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Significance is added to this statement by the fact that the colonel made the trip to Philadelphia in President A. J. Cassatt's private car, in company with W. A. Patton, assistant to Mr. Cassatt.

Those who are at the head of Huff's boom said tonight that promises of support had come voluntarily from assemblymen-elect in a number of adjoining counties. They declare that if Congressman Huff does not receive the office by appointment of Gov. Pennypacker or by vote of the legislature in special session, he will be a candidate upon the convening of the next assembly.

CANNOT HAVE TRIAL BY JURY

son' (not 'no American citizen') shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime except on presentment or indictment of a grand jury and the unanimous verdict of a petit jury composed of 12 persons. The conclusion reached by the court is so obviously forbidden by the Constitution that I cannot regard the judgment of this court otherwise than as an amendment to the Constitution by judicial action, when another mode of amendment is expressly provided for in that instrument."

Granting that trial by jury might be sometimes inconvenient in the administration of criminal justice in the Philippines, Justice Harlan observed: "But we know that when we acquired them by treaty" such inconveniences, he maintained, were of slight moment compared with the danger of judicial amendments to the Constitution.

In denying the right of trial by jury, demanded by Dorr and O'Brien, Justice Day first laid down these conclusions as being established:

Power of Congress.

That the constitution of the United States is the only source of power authorizing action by any branch of the federal government; that the government may acquire territory as a sovereign nation, and make all needful rules and regulations for the government of the same. That this territory may be possessed and still not incorporated in the body politic. While the territory is in this condition, or thus held, congress has the right subject to the restrictions of the constitution, to make all needful rules and regulations for its government; that the treaty of Paris, ceding the Philippines to the United States, expressly states in article 9 that the civil right and political status of the islands shall be determined and fixed by congress.

We think that so far as territory is outlying and not incorporated, congress is not required to grant trial by jury. There had been guaranteed to the Filipino the right of the accused to be heard by himself and counsel; to have a speedy and public trial, to meet his witnesses face to face, and further that no person should be held to answer for a criminal offense without due process of law, or be put twice in jeopardy for the same offense.

It cannot be successfully maintained that this system does not give an adequate and efficient method to preserve the rights of the accused. If the right of trial by jury were a fundamental right, it would have to be established by congress regardless of the needs or capacity of the people to exercise that right. To state such a proposition demonstrates the impossibility of carrying it into practice without injury to the people to which it might apply. Therefore the power to govern territory, embodying the right to acquire it, to whatever other limitations it may be subject, does not require congress to enact for ceded territory not made a part of the United States by congressional action, a system of law which shall include the right of trial by jury. The constitution does not without legislation and of its own force carry such rights.

ODELL ARRIVES IN PARIS.

May Offer New York Gubernatorial Candidacy to Porter.

PARIS, May 31.—Gov. Odell of New York arrived late this afternoon and went to the Hotel Ritz. His coming is attracting much interest because of a report that he will consent to induce Ambassador Porter to accept the candidacy for governor of New York.

Gov. Odell said he had come abroad for a short rest, that he would remain a week, and would then return to New York in time to attend the Republican national convention. He said he would see Ambassador Porter tomorrow and that as they were both from New York and greatly interested in the state's affairs, it would be natural that they should discuss conditions there.

MOROS' VICTIMS BURIED.

Gen. Wood Organizes Punitive Expedition to Capture Datto Ali.

MANILA, May 31.—The remains of the two officers and 15 men of the Seventeenth United States infantry recently ambushed and killed by Moros have been interred at Camabato, Mindanao.

Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood has returned from Zamboanga, Mindanao, where he has been organizing a punitive expedition dispatched in pursuit of Datto Ali and his band of Moros from the Rio Grande, who on May 12 massacred 58 Filipinos, men, women and children, employes of the government at Cape Overton.

RAILROADS REDUCE RATES TO MOVE TONS OF FLOUR

CHICAGO, May 31.—To enable the millers of St. Paul and Minneapolis to move between 150,000 and 175,000 tons of flour collected at the various lake ports, in expectation of the opening of navigation, the railroads of the northwest today joined with the eastern lines in granting reduced rates on flour for one month. Effective June 3, and operative until July 3, the rate on domestic flour was reduced from 23 to 20½ cents.

Hollidaysburg Commencement.

The graduating exercises of the Hollidaysburg seminary will begin next Saturday evening with a musical recital in the school hall. The baccalaureate sermon will be preached at 11 a. m. on Sunday by the Rev. A. F. Walker, principal of the school. The alumni reunion will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon and at 8 p. m. the students will give "Mikado" in the school hall. The graduating exercises will be held in the Presbyterian church Tuesday evening, and the address will be delivered by the Rev. Seth R. Gordon of Uniontown, after which the principals' reception will be held at the seminary.

GIFTS FOR LORENZO.

Employes of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers Remembered Their Ex-Superior.

Frank Lorenzo resigned yesterday as assistant superintendent of the bureau of highways and sewers for the fourth district, and John Florig, the general foreman, was appointed by Superintendent E. G. Nicewaner as acting assistant superintendent. Lorenzo will devote his time to his restaurant business in Highland and Schenley parks.

Last evening Lorenzo was told there was trouble at the Magee street stables of the bureau, and he hurried there, supposing that his successor was being assaulted by the white wings. He was seized as he entered the door and placed upon a table, whereupon Florig made a speech presenting him, on behalf of the employes of the district, with a handsome leather rocking chair, a silver water pitcher and silver epergne, suitably engraved.

Lorenzo was much affected, although he scolded the men a little for spending their money on him. Then the men broke into cheers in four different languages and adjourned for refreshments.

Damper on Small Boys' Fourth.

CLEVELAND, O., May 31.—The city council tonight passed an ordinance making it a misdemeanor to use, give away or sell a toy pistol or blank cartridge in this city on the Fourth of July. The ordinance is the result of recent action taken by the Academy of Medicine, which showed that a number of persons died from tetanus last year following the celebration of the nation's anniversary.

Lorain Steel Election.

JOHNSTOWN, PA., May 31.—(Special.)—At the annual meeting held today of the Lorain Steel Company of Johnstown the following officers were elected: President, Daniel Coolidge; vice president, P. Lavelle of Johnstown; secretary and treasurer, P. M. Boyd of Philadelphia. These men with E. H. Gary of New York and E. B. Entwisle of Johnstown, compose the board of directors.

COURT ADJOURNED ON ACCOUNT OF FUNERAL

At the request of former Governor W. A. Stone common pleas court No. 3 adjourned at noon yesterday to permit him to attend Senator Quay's funeral. Col. Stone was attorney in a case before the court.

Russia Settles Seal Claims.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 31.—The long-standing difficulty between Great Britain and Russia arising from the seizure by the latter of Canadian sealers in the Bering sea in 1892, has been settled, Russia agreeing to pay $44,701 indemnity to the Carmelite and Vancouver Belle, two out of the six vessels seized. The claim amounted to $93,497.

Canadians Consider Church Union.

ST. JOHN, N. B., May 31.—The convention of the Presbyterian general assembly of Canada will be opened in this city tomorrow. A proposition to amalgamate the Presbyterian, Congregational and Methodist churches is one of the matters which will come before the assembly.

CROWS SHOW POLICE SCENE OF RECENT CRIME

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHESTER, PA., May 31.—A number of crows circling about a clump of bushes at Thicum Island, Essington, this afternoon, attracted a small boy's attention, who subsequently reported the matter to County Detective Thomas H. Berry. The detective, making an investigation, found that the crows had been attracted to the spot by the body of a man.

There was a pile of ashes on which lay the charred and blackened remains, indicating that a murder had been committed, and that a fire had been kindled about the body to hide the crime. Detective Berry pushed his way into the bushes and found the skeleton of the man. A few bits of flesh was all that remained with the bones. A coal oil can which had been used to kindle the fire was found near the spot where the badly charred trunk of a tree, beneath which the flames were kindled and a portion of a rail, badly charred, gave evidence of the fierceness of the fire which had consumed the body. A bunch of hair on the back of the head which had been only singed established the fact that the victim was a white man and his age as about 25 or 30 years.

After Coroner Fry was notified he and Detective Berry made an investigation of the thicket. As near as could be determined the crime was committed about two weeks ago, this conclusion being derived by the condition of what flesh remained on the bones of the body and upon which the crows had been feeding.

MAYOR HAYS IS BADLY BEATEN

Entire Strength of City Administration Fails to Elect Poke.

PAYROLL FELL DOWN

Republican Elected Councilman in the Thirty-Second Ward by Five Votes.

POLICE CHASE AFTER A NEGRO

There was wild enthusiasm in the Thirty-second ward last night when the result of the special election was announced and it was known that T. A. Milby, Republican, was elected to common council over Henry Poke, the candidate of the Citizens party, the administration and the Democrats. A parade was held, red fire was burned and informal speeches were made. Poke's friends conceded the election to Milby by a majority of five votes. The election was to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Councilman James Reed.

The Republicans consider the result a great victory, for the entire power of the city administration, with the payroll, was arrayed against Milby. At the last election, it is true, a Republican was elected with the aid of the administration, but that was because Mayor Hays was personally opposed to Jacob Soffel, although the latter sought re-election to council as the candidate of the Citizens party's ward organization. This time the mayor fought just as hard for the election of Poke; therefore the latter's defeat is considered as a straw showing the increasing strength of Republican feeling in the city.

South Side Wants Pure Water.

Some of the banners displayed in the impromptu parade contained inscriptions like these: "See That Hump!" "Millions For the East End. Nothing For the South Side." "What Has Bigelow Done For Us?" "We Want Filtered Water."

At the regular election in February 1,835 votes were cast; yesterday 1,711 ballots were polled, the difference being only 124, a slight falling off for a special election, at which the interest is usually not so great as at a regular election. Yesterday Milby received 858 votes and his opponent 853. Poke had a majority of 10 in his own district, the Third. In the First, where four of the family live, Poke had a majority, but in the Fourth, Jacob Soffel's district, the majority for Milby was nearly two to one. Some of the administration's followers say the Soffels supported Poke, being related to him, although he was backed by their enemy, the mayor.

The vote in the eight districts was as follows: Milby—103, 148, 66, 162, 103, 95, 100, 78—858; Poke—129, 75, 185, 82, 152, 73, 89, 68—853.

Chase After a Negro.

The election was considerably enlivened by the efforts of Policeman Frank Higgins and Joseph Murray to capture a negro named Menser, who finally escaped after a three-mile chase. The officers were badly used up by numerous falls incidental to the pursuit.

About 6 o'clock in the evening Menser was seen in the vicinity of the polls in Prospect street. He is alleged to have been armed with a large clasp knife and was threatening to stab several children.

Albert Wilbert was leaving the voting place at the time and remonstrated with the negro. The latter is said to have replied that he was "always willing to kill a Democrat." Wilbert struck him with an umbrella and the negro sulked away.

The police were notified and Officers Murray and Higgins sent after Menser. They found him in the neighborhood, but at sight of the uniformed men he started to run. The officers gave chase, and in Grace street Higgins fell, losing his mace and helmet, knocking out a couple of teeth and spraining his wrist. He regained his feet and continued the pursuit.

The chase was kept up for over an hour, Menser finally eluding the officers in a woods near Carnegie after fully three miles had been covered. Out in the country the running was bad and by the time the officers returned to the South Side police station last night they were covered with mud and very tired.

BODIES OF VICTIM AND HER SLAYER IN MORGUE

No Apparent Motive for Allegheny Murder, Although Wise Had Planned It.

The bodies of Kate Craft and Irvin Wise, the murdered woman and her slayer, lie side by side in the county morgue, where they were taken yesterday morning after the tragedy at the woman's house, 306 St. Mary's court, Allegheny. Wise, until a week ago,

KATE CRAFT.

The woman who was shot early yesterday morning by Irwin E. Wise. She was identified last night by her sister, Mrs. Mollie Shaw of 220 Braddock avenue, Braddock. The dead woman's real name was Mrs. Emma Schreiber, aged 20, and married. She had not lived with her husband for some time.

as chief engineer in the mechanical department of one of the Pittsburgh papers. The woman was proprietor of the disorderly house in which she was shot by Wise, early yesterday morning. It is said that since losing his position he had been drinking heavily. Since last February he had been rooming at the Hotel Grim, having separated from his wife and young son several months ago. The family formerly lived at 48 Steuben street. Wise's wife and boy are said to be living in Economy.

For six weeks past, according to the women living in the Craft woman's house, Wise had been a daily visitor there. So far as is known, he and the woman had not quarreled even immediately before the shooting. Wise gave no intimation of his intention to commit the deed, but it is evidently planned it, as he left in his room in his pocket in which he asked that his mother, Mrs. B. Wise of Lewisburg, Union county, Pa., be notified.

WOMAN MEETS DEATH IN ALLEGHENY RIVER

Was Taking Off Her Shoes When She Fell Backward Out of a Skiff.

Stepping out of a skiff under the Fort Wayne railroad bridge in Allegheny, last night about 8 o'clock, William Lippert of Butler street extension, Pittsburgh, approached Policeman James Crann and said that a woman with whom he had been skiff-riding had fallen into the river. Lippert was taken to Central station.

It was learned from him that early yesterday afternoon he went to a boathouse in the Allegheny river near Chestnut street, with Lena Elder, who lived at 512 River avenue. With some companions they had been drinking during the day. Shortly before 8 o'clock Lippert and the Elder woman got into a skiff and started to row down to the railroad bridge. The woman intended going home. Just as they reached the bridge, in mid-stream, the woman commenced taking off her shoes, and while doing this fell backward into the river. Lippert says he did not notice the disappearance of the woman until John Hanlon of 852 Main street yelled at him from the river bank.

The Elder woman, who was an inmate of the River avenue house, never appeared above the surface after falling into the river. Lippert is being held as a suspicious person.

SERIOUS SHOOTING AFFRAY IN ALLEGHENY

One Man Gets Bullet and Police Captain James Wilson Is Fired at Twice.

Some excitement was caused yesterday in the vicinity of Lacock and Federal streets, Allegheny, by the attempt of John O'Connor, alias Pat O'Connell, to murder Harry Wilson, alias "Jew Harry." Capt. James Wilson of the Allegheny police was fired at twice by the man and had a narrow escape from being killed. O'Connor, who gives his residence as Chicago, is in Central station and Harry Wilson, his victim, is in a house in Morgan street with a bullet in his groin.

The trouble occurred in Williams' poolroom, 24 East Lacock street. Wilson and O'Connor got into an argument that ended in O'Connor chasing Wilson out of the place at the point of a revolver. Two shots were fired, one of which hit Wilson. Capt. Wilson, who was near by, ran to the scene of the shooting and, upon laying hands on O'Connor, had two shots fired at him at short range. O'Connor then ran out Lacock street, with Capt. Wilson in pursuit. Near the corner of Robinson street the man was overtaken by Wilson and sent to Central station.

Yesterday's Enthusiasm to Be Repeated Today.

With the Exception of One Occasion It Was the Busiest Day In the History of the Store.

Illustrative of how fast the selling was the instance is cited of 10,000 yards of high-class dress cottons being sold in three hours.

In another instance 3,000 yards of 35c and 40c Swisses were all sold by 12:30, at the price of 15c a yard.

And here we must inform you, although these Swisses were again advertised yesterday afternoon, on the assumption we had abundance, there will be none on sale this morning until between 10 and 11 o'clock. The second shipment is due to arrive this morning, and will be ready between the hours mentioned. You had best come and wait for them, as there is but 2,600 yards in the shipment.

The Sweetser, Pembrook & Co. Goods

have created greater enthusiasm than any similar sale we can recall. Every express and freight is bringing in new lines, and choice today is the equal of yesterday. Our New York Office advised us yesterday that the Sweetser, Pembrook & Co. Auction Sale will continue throughout this week. We have our buyers there with instructions to let no good bargain slip by them. From the way it looks now our morning and afternoon news throughout the week will be pretty much on our purchases from this house of highest standing.

Handsome Millinery for Underprices.

We introduce into this sale—this great sale—today, a feature that will be received wih great delight by women, young ladies and even girls—nothing less than a sale of fine Untrimmed Hats, fine Suit Hats, handsomely Trimmed Hats, and some of the most ultra fashionable of Paris Hats, for the smallest prices ever quoted.

The sale is most timely and we are quite sure will be received by our feminine clientele with any amount of satisfaction.

The first number that we wish to tell you of is a beautiful toque, of glossy rough and ready straw. Now, what do you suppose we are going to charge you for it? The very little price of $1.00. Believe us when we say to you these toques are selling everywhere for $2.50. Plenty of them.

For $3.50 there will be beautifully Trimmed Hats, the mates of which we have sold for $7.00, and at $5.00 Trimmed Hats for which we have asked $10.00 for the counterparts.

In our French Room there are some fifty Paris Hats, trimmed as only the Paris Modiste knows how, and today we will sell $25.00 hats for $12.50, $35.00 hats for $17.50, $45.00 hats for $22.50.

For women who have the knack of running together a sightly hat, and especially for women who look upon the economical side of everything, we are pleased to state that today we will have on sale for 25c, untrimmed straw hats that sell regularly for 50c. Choice is from about every straw and about every color. At the same time we will sell $1.00 hats, untrimmed, for 50c.

Girls' Dresses Ridiculously Underpriced.

Girls' Suspender Skirts in plain blue, oxford, also in checked materials, $1.35 each.

Girls' woolen one-piece dresses in shepherd checks—sizes 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. Regularly $10.00 and $12.00 each, today just $5.00.

Infants' Summer Wraps for One-Third Below Regular.

We secured the entire sample line of a prominent New York manufacturer, and thought best to make the sale contemporaneous with the sale of goods purchased from Sweetser, Pembrook & Co.

The collection is made up of short and three-quarter length Reefers and pretty Walking Coats, of pique, linen, pongee and linen crash, all pretty Summer designs which were used as samples by this foremost manufacturer of infantile goods.

The prices range from $3.00 to $11.00 for garments that if sold regularly would bring $4.50 to $18.00.

Baby Caps, Parisian made, hand sewed and tucked, full face robe, 25c each, whereas the price should be 75c.

The News of Women's Fashionable Suits and Coats for Underprices was again given yesterday afternoon, and we refer to that feature of today only by a word or so, lest you forget.

Of course the greatest interest was centered in the Silk Shirtwaist Suits, at respectively, $9.50 and $12.25. This latter was wrongly quoted yesterday afternoon at $12.75. Several hundred women are owners of these fine suits today, and we doubt if they would take half as much again for their purchase. Ample assortment for Wednesday choosing.

And there was no lack of interest in the fine woolen suits for underprices. Summer Suits they are of very latest mode and of very best workmanship.

Then the jaunty tan coats and the pretty white waists will have same interest for the feminine eye they did yesterday.

And now for a single item that must have your attention today—

$3.50 for a neat Dress Skirt. We have on 100 of those Dress Skirts and ... were $5.00. Shown in black and navy. Seven gores, lap seams; inverted pleat back.

Is it necessary to say early?

Silk Petticoats for a Third Less Than Usual.

Here's an opportunity, one that seldom occurs, for women to get a stylish petticoat and pay us about what we usually pay the manufacturer. These are handsome petticoats; they come in different colors, and the different ways of applying trimming will be found novel as well as up to the very moment in style.

$2.75 for $4.25 Petticoats.
$3.50 for $5.25 Petticoats.
$3.75 for $5.75 Petticoats.
$4.00 for $6.00 Petticoats.
$4.50 for $6.75 Petticoats.
$5.00 for $7.50 Petticoats.
$5.50 for $8.25 Petticoats.
$6.00 for $9.00 Petticoats.
$7.00 for $10.50 Petticoats.
$8.00 for $12.00 Petticoats.
$8.50 for $12.75 Petticoats.
$8.50 for $9.75 Petticoats.
$9.00 for $13.50 Petticoats.
$9.50 for $14.25 Petticoats.
$10.00 for $15.00 Petticoats.
$10.50 for $15.75 Petticoats.
$11.50 for $17.25 Petticoats.
$12.00 for $18.00 Petticoats.

The Second Day Sale of American Wash Goods.

Sweetser, Pembrook & Co. handled none but the best of domestic wash goods. At the auction sale of their stock we bought of the finest numbers only, and bought of them bountifully. Consequently splendid choosing for today.

Buy these for 5c a yard.

Buy these for 12½c a yard.

34-inch 4 and 5 Tape Madras—dainty printed figures and stripes—sells for 25c a yard the world over. These, also, were held for the second day's sale.

More News of Imported Wash Fabrics.

Our heaviest purchases were in Summer materials—high grade fabrics and we got them so we could sell them for the commonest of prices. Here are some specimens under foregoing conditions—

IMPORTED GLASGOW TISSUE, which is marked in every good store throughout the country, at 20c and 25c a yard, specially priced today at the small price of..... 10c yd.

FANCY PERSIAN AND PLAIN STRIPED COTTON MADRAS, either superior in every way to anything ever offered at 30c—this superiority relating both to style and quality, special today..... 12½c yd

SCOTCH AND IRISH LINEN DRESS FABRICS, the 40c and 50c grades representatives of finest goods imported, go on sale today for the two low prices of..... 15c and 25c yd.

The Sale of Household Linens.

The reductions affect table sets, table cloths, table damask, decorative linens and towels and toweling in medium to finest grade—the reductions are on a scale that will warrant women investing largely, for at least a year ahead.

Table Napery—

We have a reputation for the fineness of our table linens for variety and for low prices, but we never got prices down quite so low before as those following:

$6.00 each for bleached Damask Cloths, 2x4 and 2½x4 yards, regular $10.00 and $12.00 goods.

$5.50 the set for hemstitched damask table sets; cloth 2x2 yards and one dozen napkins to match, $7.50 is the actual value.

$7.50 the set for hemstitched damask table sets; cloths 2x2 and 2x2½ yards, and one dozen napkins. Regularly $10.50 a set.

Towels and Toweling—

Every yard of toweling and every towel in the collection is all linen. Different qualities of towels and widths of toweling.

Linen Sheets—

These are fine hemstitched sheets of generous dimensions and well made—

$2.75 per pair for hemstitched Linen Sheets, 72x96 inches in size; worth $5.00.

$4.50 per pair for hemstitched Linen Sheets, regularly $6.00 per pair, 90x90.

HALF PRICES for Decorative Linens of various kinds—Lace Centers, and other decorative pieces for table and sideboards.

Today a Special Sale of Hammocks and Wagons.

We thought it timely, when a great sale was in progress all over the store, to cull out from our entire stock of hammocks and wagons every one that would admit of any reduction, and put the lowered price into effect for this occasion.

Hammocks—

$1.00 Hammocks for 55c; $1.50 Hammocks, $1.25; $2.00 Hammocks, $1.65; $2.50 Hammocks, $2.10; $3.00 Hammocks, $2.60; $3.50 Hammocks, $3.00.

Buckboards and Wagons—

$1.50 ones for $1.00; $2.00 ones, $1.50; $3.00 ones, $2.25; $4.00 ones, $3.00; $5.00 Hammocks, $4.00; $6.00 Hammocks, $4.75.

At the same time there will be a few children's Oak Desks that were $3.00 and $5.00 each that we will sell today for $2.50 apiece. All the above in the East Basement.

Men's Pleated Negligee Shirts, 60c Each.

We don't often offer men's shirts for such a price as 60c, but when we do, men can buy them confident that they are getting a bargain, and that the shirts are right in every way.

In this price there is choice from madras and percale, each shirt with one pair of detached cuffs. Match this value at $1.00 if you can.

Colored Pictures, $1.00 Instead of $2.00.

Sale today near entrance to West Store.

The subjects are entirely new. And we consider them best value ever offered for the price.

Wednesday, June 1, 1904.

The Gazette desires to call the attention of those of its readers who contemplate summer trips to the announcements of the many summer resort hotels published on page 14 of this issue.

In a case from Ohio the supreme court of the United States handed down a decision yesterday fully upholding the law imposing a tax of 10 cents a pound upon colored oleomargarine, even though the color was imparted by the use of butter which had been artificially colored. The court declared congress had the power to impose the tax and the condition, and there is nothing left for the oleo men but to educate the public to eating white oleo. There is an element of injustice in permitting butter makers to color their product while refusing the same privilege to the oleo manufacturers, but if the latter persist in making a wholesome, palatable compound, they will find consumers regardless of color. There are plenty of people who prefer oleo to the bad butter very frequently found on the market, and they should be permitted to buy it freely for just what it is.

A five-to-four decision of the supreme court yesterday will come in for severest criticism in some quarters. It is that in the case of Dorr and O'Brien, denied a jury trial in Manila. However, the majority opinion reasons logically when it holds that because the treaty of Paris gave the government into the hands of congress and congress withheld the right to trial by jury, the appellants have been deprived of no inherent right. The minority contention that trial by jury is a right in all territory of the United States is beside the mark and is wholly inexpedient. Trial by jury implies a jury of one's peers, and the character of the population of the Philippines precludes the possibility of obtaining such juries. It is a complication in American jurisprudence that has been met and we feel certain that the manner in which it was met will be fully justified.

The character of the Japanese and the Russians is graphically compared in an article by N. T. Bacon in the Booklovers Magazine. The Russian peasants, from among whom the czar's army is drawn, have the characteristics of a race of slaves, he says, and slaves are of necessity lacking in patriotism. Speaking of the building of warships in this country, the writer says: "An engineer who was detailed by the Cramps to look after the foreign officers told me that the Russians did little but drink, and seldom went near their vessels, while the Japanese watched every piece that went into construction and knew just what it was meant to accomplish." This one incident shows us why the Japanese are making such a great fight against Russia. They are sticking strictly to the business of fighting; they have studied every detail of the country in which the war is being fought, and they know to the minutest detail every possible use to which the material at hand can be put. In this the Japanese character is far above that of the Russian, and character wins battles.

A queer political struggle has been going on for years in Malta without attracting much attention. This Mediterranean island, formerly ruled by Turkey, belongs to the British empire. It is governed by a council, partly appointive and partly elective. There is a native party which demands complete home rule, and as a means of pressing this demand for years past the elected members have resigned in a body soon after their election. This maneuver has recently been performed, and the matter has come up in parliament, in the shape of a petition for the grant of a constitution with the resignations appended as a protest against the present system. The colonial secretary, Mr. Lyttleton, was asked what the government proposed to do, and he replied that it would do nothing at all. The Maltese agitators will find it hard to make any impression upon this tranquil indifference. They may ultimately succeed in obtaining home rule, but it will not be through such methods as they are now employing, but by showing their fitness for it. Holding aloof from the government is not the way to qualify themselves for carrying it on themselves.

President Ramsey of the Wabash is here to make his final inspection before the formal opening of the Wabash Pittsburgh terminals. The event is interesting because it again brings into the public view an engineering feat that would have been utterly impossible in any times save those in which we live. The Wabash entrance into this city has been at tremendous cost. Rights of way have been obtained at figures that might have staggered older trunk lines. Tunnels have been thrust through hills and streams have been spanned by magnificent steel bridges in a royal manner that engineers only can thoroughly understand. The result is a modern, double-track, low-grade railroad, ready for as economical operation as any line in the world. But nothing less than admission to the greatest freight producing center in the world could justify the outlay that has enabled this display of engineering skill and such monstrous accomplishment of three years.

Senator Quay's Funeral.

All that was mortal of Matthew Stanley Quay was laid to rest in Beaver cemetery yesterday with as simple ceremonies as the circumstances would permit. It was the wish of Senator Quay that his obsequies should be as free from pomp as had been his life. It was unavoidable, however, that his funeral became an event in the quiet town where he lived, because of his rank and because of the desire of many men eminent in many walks of life to pay a last tribute to their departed mentor and friend. Soldiers, statesmen, scholars, financiers and representatives of the plain people were there, leveled by their common sorrow. All alike they paid respect and devotion to the memory of him who had been the unassuming friend of each.

Senator Quay's character and work have been more immediately appreciated than might have been expected. As a party leader he had naturally aroused fierce opposition by the very genius of his leadership. But as there was no rancor in his sentiments, so it appears that his partisan enemies have been quick to forgive and to join with his friends in paying the meed of homage demanded by his distinguished services and by his admirable personal character. His pastor, occupying the pulpit that was formerly occupied by the senator's father, paid a tribute to both that came from a full heart, and to the gentle woman who shared his struggles and triumphs and who is left to mourn the death of a loving husband. It was a tribute simple and earnest as the life with which it dealt and it sheds the light of truth upon the man who for half a century used his power to benefit the weak and who endured the fatigue of campaigns when he would have preferred quiet hours in his library.

It will be long before the record of Senator Quay's public services has been completed. He did things so modestly and quietly that few saw them in the doing. It will be longer before his like is seen again in the political arena and the forum. Though he lived the span of one life, he did the work of two, and while he sleeps the sleep that knows no waking, his memory will be cherished and his counsel will live after him.

International Coxeyism.

When Coxey marched his army upon Washington the explanation of his reasons for so doing, which he gave a congressional committee, was that he wanted to file a petition with boots on so that it couldn't be pigeon-holed. There appears to have been the same sort of calculation in the British expedition into Tibet. It is in form a diplomatic mission accompanied by an armed escort. Its object was to force the Tibetan government to entertain the remonstrances of the British government over acts of bad faith and aggression on the frontier. There was plenty to complain of, but to all protests and representations the Tibetan authorities had turned a deaf ear. The present expedition is a diplomatic remonstrance with boots on.

Coxey found that he was mistaken in thinking that a booted remonstrance can't be pigeon-holed. The local authorities ruled that it had to keep off the grass, and when Coxey violated the local ordinances he was run in. His army went into camp near Washington, and eventually the Maryland authorities, in whose jurisdiction they had gone, showed them that there were such things as vagrancy laws capable of enforcement. Confronted by the prospect of the workhouse, the army melted away, after having accomplished nothing more than having presented a petition that might just as well have been offered in the regular way. Putting boots on the petition did not help it a particle.

It looks as if the British remonstrance would have a similar experience. The expedition has penetrated the heart of Tibet, it has had several fights with the Tibetans, it has whipped them every time, but there is as yet nothing to show that it will be able to force the Tibetan authorities to negotiate. At present they are sending "giants" to fight the British. This means that they are calling out the tallest men in the Tibetan tribes to fight the expedition. These efforts have been fruitless to arrest the British advance. Col. Younghusband may force his way into Lassa, the capital, and will probably do so. It does not, however, follow that the authorities will treat with him even then. The Grand Lama may leave Lassa. What will the expedition do then? It would be an impossible task to hunt him in the tangle of mountains which form the country of Tibet. If they stay they have the difficult and expensive task of maintaining a long line of communication through a hostile country. If they retire they will appear rather ridiculous.

Just such a contingency is, however, possible. The British government has just passed through that very experience in Somaliland. They have several times defeated the forces of the Mad Mullah, but they have never been able to catch him, and have at last thrown up the job. If hereafter the Mad Mullah will let them alone they will let him alone, and their hope is that the defeats his forces have suffered will deter him from raiding the coast settlements again. That is doubtful, but it will at least be some time before the effect of the punishment he has received will wear off. The same may happen in Tibet, but the British can hardly afford to quit without occupying Lassa, and hereafter they will have to garrison the frontier in sufficient strength to follow up and punish promptly any Tibetan aggression. It may take years of policy to beat into the heads of the tribesmen the impolicy of provoking hostilities, but there seems to be no other way, in case the obstinacy of the Tibetan government proves unshakable.

The Peril of Mr. Perdicaris.

The rescue of Mr. Perdicaris from his captors presents peculiar difficulties. If there were any authority of government which could meet the case the course of procedure would be simple. Our own government would exact the exercise of that authority and would bring force to bear if necessary, but the bandits holding Mr. Perdicaris are really insurgents.

They have no respect for the authority of the sultan of Morocco, but desire to use the United States and Great Britain to further their aim to get control of certain territory for the tribe. This information is contained in a dispatch from Admiral Chadwick. An appeal has been made to France for assistance in the matter and this has been promised.

The threat of Raisuli, the brigand chief, to kill Mr. Perdicaris and his stepson unless his demands are complied with, is no idle menace. Just that very thing took place in Greece years ago, when some English travelers were captured by bandits. They were kindly treated and were told that they need not apprehend more than temporary detention as their friends would certainly ransom them. Spurred on by the demands of the British government, the Greek authorities became so energetic in their pursuit that the brigands finally murdered their prisoners and then scattered. The government of Greece had to pay heavily for the outrage, but there is no compensation which can be made for the loss of life. The situation of the present captives is certainly one of extreme peril and an onerous responsibility rests upon Consul Gummere, at Tangier, with whom Admiral Chadwick is to consult as regards ways and means.

Great Britain is interested in the case equally with ourselves, as Mr. Perdicaris' companion in captivity is a British subject. The situation is one which permits of being handled by international comity. Great Britain has just ceded to France whatever political claims she has to authority in Morocco, and if Great Britain and the United States have to concede the terms demanded by Raisuli, why should not France undertake his punishment? If France, too, should be barred by the conditions exacted, why should not some other power undertake the duty? An international understanding as to the reciprocal duty of civilized powers to exchange services of this character seems necessary in order to deal with brigands of the Raisuli type. They should be made to feel that whatever they do, they cannot save themselves from being relentlessly pursued and punished.

Once more the country can catch its breath! Once again can we pursue the even tenor of our ways without that one thought crowding itself forward in our minds, that one question: "Will he ever talk?" For Judge Parker has opened his mouth and allowed speech to flow therefrom. What he said matters not; he has proven that he can talk and perhaps some glad day between now and the 6th of July, he may really say something to cheer the hearts of the Democracy and relieve us all of the suspicion that he—like the little boy—has nothing to say.

In speaking of a notable dramatic production in that city, the Philadelphia Press declares, editorially: "Nothing lovelier has been seen. Those who missed it, missed the experience of a lifetime of play-going. The players were doubtless much." This is a delicate way of putting it, but the critic might at least have told us how much.

After Uncle Sam's soldiers get through doing things to the Dotto All, he probably can give some wholesome advice to Bandit Rasouli, including the story about the chap who monkeyed with the buzz-saw.

There was once a candidate in York
Who positively refused to tork,
To his sponsors he was mum,
To the public he was dumb,
So "the other man" won in a work.

The wide publicity given the determination to attack Port Arthur June 15 will leave that city no room to declare, after it is over, that they were not looking when it happened.

They are selling water at the St. Louis exposition at 5 cents a glass. If it is the product of the Mississippi river the price is low when considered as a real estate investment.

E. M. Byers surprised the British golf experts by defeating C. E. Dick, the Scotch golfer. Pittsburgh products usually do surprise our European neighbors.

Ice is higher in price in Pittsburgh than elsewhere. Probably because this is such a hot old town, or is it because the ice men need the money?

Mr. Hearst may have the consolation of knowing that what he lost in cash is more than overbalanced by the gain in circulation.

The Japanese and a band of Cossacks had a "running fight" near Fung-Wang-Chang. The Cossacks won, having the better mounts.

Though not doing much talking himself, Judge Parker does not lack influential friends to talk for him.

Two of a Kind.

"A man 'on a lark' and an Ohio steamboat in a race," said the old salt, "are two of a kind. Heeray and away! There's a hot time in the old town and it is unreasonable to complain next morning if the crown sheet's sprung and some of the seams started."

Talked of in Gotham

By GEORGE C. JENKS.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, May 31.—Whatever effect the rain of yesterday and today may have upon vegetables and other growing things, there is no question that it has raised a terrifying new crop of mosquitoes. Until yesterday there had been few complaints about the New Jersey pests this summer. Those public spirited societies which have been formed to annihilate the mosquito by means of coal oil and other specifics must feel disheartened. Mosquitoes in clouds have attacked the commuters' settlements all around the Hackensack meadows, and a number of them have found their way into Manhattan. In Brooklyn the story of mosquito devastation is emphatic enough to prove that Long Island has its own brand of the insect, and is not indebted to Jersey.

There was a general understanding, on authority of the scientific mosquito destroyers, that there would be comparatively few of them this year. The experience of today is not an indorsement of that promise. Commuters all agree that the number of mosquitoes abroad last evening and this morning was something appalling, and they are of a large, healthy variety, too. Of course, the heavy rain that began yesterday afternoon may not be repeated many times throughout the summer, and it is an indisputable fact that a spell of dry weather shrivels up mosquitoes more effectively than any other condition. But the sad truth is that when the mosquito crop gets a good start in May there is little hope of a peaceful summer for the suburbanites, especially in the evening. Even screens, which one might think would be impervious, are useless in the face of a flight of the enemy such as descended upon the land last night.

Triumph as Well as Sorrow.

A peculiar indication of the different lights in which people view Memorial day was afforded yesterday in the position of the flag on the pole on various buildings. In some instances the flag was at half-mast. In many others it waved defiantly from the very top of the flagstaff, as if rejoicing in the liberty of which it was an emblem. From a cursory observation, I should say there were more flags at the top of the pole that half-way down. The signification of this seems to be that in New York, at least, Decoration day is not generally regarded as an anniversary of sadness, but rather of triumph, of which the flowers on soldiers' graves are as emblematical as is Old Glory, broken out from the summits of the highest flagpoles in the city.

Horses May Run Again.

Horsemen are agitating the question of re-establishing running races in the state of New Jersey. The fact that trotting races have been conducted on some of the tracks recently with success so far as attendance goes, has made turfmen more eager than ever to revive the amusement which used to thrive, with more or less crookedness, at Guttenberg and other notorious New Jersey tracks.

It will be necessary for the legislature at Trenton to take favorable action, and those who desire the revival think they can influence the lawmakers to such an extent as will carry a measure through. There will be a great deal of opposition, however, for the ordinary people in the state have not forgotten the old scandals, and are quite content to go away from home when they feel that they must see a horse race or die of ennui.

Murphy's Silence Is Intense.

Charlie Murphy, the Tammany boss, got back from Atlantic City today. The movements of the leader of the party that controls Greater New York would not be so important in itself were it not that Mr. Murphy has denied with much force that he is behind the boomlet for Mayor McClellan as Democratic nominee for president of the United States. The truth seems to be that Tammany does not know exactly where it does stand in national politics, mainly because Murphy has not expressed himself positively. Now that he has returned from his short seashore outing, it is expected that something definite will be given out, and there has been an air of suppressed excitement about the East Fourteenth street wigwam all day.

Rothschild in Prison Garb.

David Rothschild, the wrecker of the Federal bank, is now toiling in convict garb at the first task assigned him in Sing Sing, where he was taken from the Tombs early today to serve a sentence of nine years at hard labor. No friends or relatives bade farewell to the remarkable apostle of high finance and none but the turnkeys and fellow-prisoners saw the bald, stooped man handcuffed to a deputy and heard his echoing footsteps as he was led down the corridor.

Arriving at Sing Sing the man who looted a bank of $700,000 of poor depositors' funds was shorn of the little hair surrounding his baldness. A number was substituted for his name. He was then garbed in the conventional stripes and given a pair of shears to cut out straw mats. When Rothschild was taken into the warden's office he broke down and wept and protested his innocence. It is but five weeks since he was one of the shining lights in the street.

A Prince in Chinatown.

New York is used to welcoming princes and royalties generally, but it seldom has a Chinese member of the royal family within its portals. That humor it enjoyed today. Prince Pu Lun, "son of the sun," created a sensation when he arrived at the Grand Central station this morning, accompanied by his gorgeously attired retinue, to be received by other Chinese dignitaries and a large delegation from Chinatown.

Curiosity, rather than reverence, was the attitude of most of the white people who witnessed the reception of the prince, but it was impossible not to be somewhat overcome by the brilliance of the oriental robes and the impressiveness of the obeisances to the distinguished traveler. Chinatown is aflame with lanterns and fireworks tonight. This prince is Chinatown's own, and, with the exception of "Chuck" Connors, the reputed mayor of the quarter, Caucasians have practically nothing to do with the proceedings.

The Sensation in Wall Street.

Wall street had its sensation this morning in the suspension of one of the oldest and most conservative cotton firms in the city, that of S. Munn, Son & Co. The fact that a suspension was announced as soon as it was known that the books were in a tangled condition suggests the care which is exercised in the conduct of business in the Wall street district. With the disappearance of a trusted cashier, a close examination of the books was made, and the first thing this morning the suspension was announced at the exchange. Most likely the house will soon resume. Meanwhile, the temporarily stopping of business gives the street something to talk about.

Mr. Carnegie says that wealth hurts some people. The lack of it hurts a large number of us.—Washington Post.

The Quiet Observer

By ERASMUS WILSON.

THE PRIVATE'S GLORY.

Sweet little Major, he mounts my knee,
And the tender blue eyes looked at me.
"Tell me, Popsie, just once more,
What did you do when you went to war?"

And then I tell of the autumn day
When the Forty-seventh marched away;
How Crowwell died at Jackson Town,
And Miles on Corinth field went down.

"But how many rebels, tell me true,
Did you kill then, and the whole war through?"
And I tell him then, with eager zest,
How Jo Reed blew up a limber chest.

But the Major sticks to his question still:
"How many rebels did you kill?"
So I tell him how, near the set of sun,
The charge was made and the battle won.

And how, the day McClure was shot,
When Vicksburg's fight was fierce and hot,
Brave Sam Law took C company in
Through flame and smoke and the batteries' din.

How over our heads the battle broke
With screaming shell and saber stroke,
And he wanted to know, the little elf:
"But how many men did you kill yourself?

"Say tell me, Popsie, say you will—
How many rebels did you kill?"
So I told him the truth, as near as might be—
As many of them as they did of me.

—Robert J. Burdette.

* * * * *

Have you ever noticed that when soldiers are telling their experiences in the war they never boast of having killed anybody?

In the olden time when men were more savage and brutal, it was regarded as a great honor to have killed their enemies, and the more they had slain the greater the honor.

The same is true of savages now as then, as you know from stories of Indian wars, and from the accounts we get of the butcheries in the Philippines, and from China, Macedonia and other half-civilized countries.

And you may recall the stories of the palmy days of Rome, when gladiators fought to the death in the arena. These fights were for the amusement and entertainment of the people, and were often witnessed by the emperor and the finest people in the land. On special fete days the victor turned to his majesty for the signal to either spare or dispatch his opponent. If the emperor turned his thumb down the victor dealt the death blow, while "thumb up" meant to spare his life, and he was carried out in disgrace.

* * * * *

The American veteran never boasts of having killed his man, and would even be sorry to know that he had killed anyone outright in battle, save in self-defense in a close encounter.

There was no murder in the heart of the true soldier of either the north or the south. They were not fighting to kill, but to overcome. Nor did they rejoice over bloody battles as over conquests by diplomacy or good generalship.

One of the characteristics common to Gen. Sherman and Gen. Johnston was the high value they placed on the lives of the men under them. It was for this reason there were so few bloody reconnaissances and forays. Before either of these generals would expose their men to death there must be something of great advantage in view.

Gen. Hood, who succeeded Johnston, was different, and in the short time he was in command before the fall of Atlanta he lost about as many men as Johnston had lost in his whole campaign. Hood's idea was to rush in and fight, regardless of life.

However, he couldn't have adopted a plan that would have worked better for Sherman's speedy triumph, for he not only placed the Yankees on the defensive, but rapidly thinned his own ranks.

* * * * *

In that war it was section against section, not brother against brother, nor man against man. Nor was it a war against slavery on the part of the north, nor for it on the part of the south, but for and against the preservation of the Union. While it was generally conceded that the institution of slavery would be wiped out, that was by no means the object for which the war was waged. Indeed, had that been openly declared by the north to be the object there would have been great difficulty in getting volunteer soldiers. And even when the war was half over, there would have been a great revolt had the government announced that the war was being waged to free the negroes.

Slavery, the doctrine of states rights, and secession were mere side issues which would be finally settled by the termination of the war, one way or another.

The main issue, and the only one, before the soldier was: Shall there be more than one flag in this land of ours?

The north contended that there should be but one, and that one should be Old Glory, with every stripe and every star.

The south contended for more than one, and for the bonnie blue flag in particular.

* * * * *

And now that it is all over, everyone, north and south, seem to be satisfied with Old Glory's triumph.

And what a triumph it was!

At the close of the war, John Bright, the great English statesman, whose sympathies were with the south, said that if we succeeded in restoring the union of the states and in the re-establishment of a republican government, it would hardly be more than 40 years until no great international war could occur, nor any great change made in the map of the world without first consulting the government at Washington.

For once he predicted correctly.

* * * * *

No, the veteran does not gloat over bloodshed, nor does he boast of his aim and the execution of his gun, but over the triumph of Old Glory, and that alone.

And is that not enough? Doesn't that mean the saving of the nation?

It was not for blood and fame the veteran fought, but for peace, prosperity and the power that belongs to good government.

THE VETERAN'S DREAM.

Sittin' down by Kennesaw,
Got to thinkin' on the days
Of the formidn' an' the stormin'
Of the ranks along the ways.
June sun all the land wuz warmin',
But I seen the war-fires blaze!

Sittin' down by Kennesaw,
Seen the boys in battle fall;
Skies—they thundered, an' I wondered,
Sence they had no clouds at all!
In some sperrit land I'd blundered—
Heard the ghostly captains call.

Seen the boys that wore the gray
Chargin' on the ranks of blue;
Dashin'—clashin'—an' the flashin'
Of the bright swords, drippin' dew.
Heard the cannon balls a-crashin'—
Making deadly pathways through.

Then the scene wuz changed: The blue
With the gray stood—side by side;
An' one flag come into view—
(Thar' wuz bullet holes to hide,
An' a missin' star or two;
But—the boys marched side by side!)

Side by side they marched away
At a sudden bugle call;
No more blue an' no more gray!—
Just one flag to wave for all!
Marched into a brighter day,
Answerin' to that bugle call!

Which wuz right, an' which wuz wrong—
Didn't matter: Ranks looked thin,
But they marched—true hearts and strong—
Other fights for them to win. * * *
I'd been dreamin' purty long,
But—I'm in the war ag'in!

Estimates of Quay

* * * *

Pennsylvania has lost her greatest leader. In the hush of the mourning home at Beaver the form of the statesman who for almost half a century has led the political hosts of his commonwealth rests in the dignity of death, where foes do not come and slander cannot reach. From the mountains to the sea this great state mourns for its honored son. Somewhere that mind is surveying new scenes and meeting old friends that have stood shoulder to shoulder with him in past years. Fame has here prepared him a place and above his grave will mingle the laurels of achievement with the ever-green tributes of the lowly whom he has befriended. That which was dust in form and deed has returned to dust, but his name will live and history will give him ample space. A son of Pennsylvania, he gave his life to her service and Pennsylvania will not forget.—Franklin News.

Senator Quay was largely misunderstood, hence the widely differing estimates that have been written of him. He was often a puzzle and a mystery, even to his friends. While he was a matchless politician, he was much more. He was educated and cultured, possessed great mental power, was a man of wide reading and marked literary tastes, and his library was one of the choicest and best. His style of speaking and writing was terse, pungent and epigrammatic and his sayings and apt expressions were caught up and became the inspiring watchwords in many a winning campaign. He was tactful, full of resources, ever ready to form new combinations if old ones failed. He was warm-hearted and generous, and was always disposed to forgive rather than to pursue a politician who had been ungrateful to him.—Uniontown News-Standard.

Pennsylvanians stand with uncovered heads today mourning the loss of the greatest man this state has ever produced and the most successful political leader the world has ever known. This is not the time or the place to speak in detail of the life and work of Senator Quay. He was our leader and one who never led his followers astray. No one ever knew him to sound a false note, none were ever asked to go where he was not willing to lead. As a leader he was superb, as a friend the soul of loyalty, and it will may be doubted if Pennsylvania will ever see another like him.—Erie Times.

The death of Senator Quay came at a time when he was peculiarly free from political antagonisms. There were no longer any to dispute his leadership. Some had been worn out by his repeated victories; others he had conciliated. He had no contest on hand, present or prospective, involving his political prestige. He would have been elected to succeed himself as senator without a shadow of opposition. The political organization, of which Senator Quay was the undisputed head, will not collapse with his taking off. He did not create it, but took it as it was and directed it. His logical successor at the helm is Senator Penrose, who, if current reports be true, has added so largely in recent years to his stability, industry and capability, that he will be no mean successor to the master hand that has forever laid off the political crown.—Lancaster News.

While the verdicts of posterity are not always foreseen, it seems probable that Matthew Stanley Quay will not figure in history as a vindication of Thomas B. Reed's remark that a statesman is a politician who is dead. Senator Quay had a far larger hand in shaping the course of national legislation and policy than appeared on the surface; he had a mind singularly enriched from history and philosophy to comprehend large subjects in a large way; and if he had one other characteristic he would unquestionably have been a great statesman as he admittedly was a great—we think the greatest—politician.—Scranton Tribune.

With the death of Senator Matthew Stanley Quay the career of one of the most remarkable politicians of this or any other time comes to a close. He entered public life at the age of 23 and held office of one sort or another almost continuously until the end of his earthly life. He was a victor in many hard fought battles and at no previous period in his singular and busy career was he so powerful as at the moment of his decease. That he was no ordinary man is clearly proven by the achievements of his life; that he was a natural and inevitable leader of men is demonstrated by the devoted attachment of thousands of followers. While the chief politicians of the state have been prepared for his death it is no exaggeration to say that the announcement that "the old man" had passed away awoke to many breasts a feeling of dire consternation.—Altoona Tribune.

The death of Senator Quay removes from the political arena one of the most prominent figures of state and national politics. The acknowledged leader of Republican Pennsylvania, he was probably the most loved and the most hated man of his day; loved by his friends with an enthusiastic loyalty; hated and reviled by his enemies with a bitterness and far-reaching animosity that seems to extend almost beyond the grave. Senator Quay was undoubtedly the most consummate political general of the age. Time and again when determined efforts to defeat him seemed destined to succeed, he has turned the tables with some stroke entirely unlooked for, and emerged from the fray wearing the laurels of triumph.—Meadville Tribune-Republican.

With the passing of Senator Matthew Stanley Quay has come the end of one of the greatest political leaders known not only to Pennsylvania or to America, but to the world. For many years supreme in his party, defeated on occasion, but never giving up, the career of this remarkable man is one but seldom equalled. Quay was not a constructive statesman, whatever his friends may say. He did nothing of a constructive nature while in the senate, unless his championing of the statehood bills of New Mexico, Oklahoma and Arizona can be thus termed. But he had a remarkable political sagacity; he was faithful to his friends, which accounts for much of his power, and he never knew what discouragement was like. It has already been prophesied that his death will leave the party in a disrupted condition in the state, but this is hardly to be expected. Much of the dead leader's success was attained and kept by his faculty of surrounding himself with able lieutenants and these remain.—Meadville Star.

The career that closed so suddenly, so sadly at Beaver Saturday afternoon was one of the most remarkable in the history of American public men. It is difficult to say wherein lay the secret of Senator Quay's power over others. He was not a magnetic man, like Blaine or McKinley or Hanna. He exercised no irresistible fascination over those with whom he came in contact, yet he was able in the long years of his leadership to attach to his standard a vast army of followers with hooks of steel. They knew their leader; their loyalty to him was as unquestioned as was his to them. Senator Quay never forgot his friends, and his word was as good as his bond. It is perhaps not saying too much to add that he was the greatest personal force that the politics of the United States has ever produced.—Titusville Herald.

Death has claimed Pennsylvania's foremost citizen and peerless leader in public affairs. Matthew Stanley Quay, senator in the congress of the United States, and victor in a hundred desperate political battles, has been vanquished at last. The man pre-eminent among the counselors of his party and a tower of strength among the great statesmen at Washington and Harrisburg, passed peacefully away at his quiet home in Beaver last Saturday afternoon. The man who wins conspicuous success in any line of public life generally excites the jealousy and courts misrepresentation and abuse from those who oppose his advancement. No public man of the day was ever the victim of more vituperation, or the subject of more malignant attacks than Senator Quay. But quietly, surely and resolutely, he pursued his course and carried out the policies that he believed was best for his party and for the people. As a political strategist, the country has rarely seen his equal and it may be a century before another man arises who will be worthy of comparison with him. He possessed a keen insight into human nature and a remarkable power for molding men to his will. He was a leader who never grew discouraged or admitted that he had been defeated. His indomitable courage and dogged persistency always won out in the end.—Oil City Derrick.

The Death Roll

Mrs. Samuel Neill.

Mrs. Catherine Neill, aged 70, wife of Samuel Neill, a former riverman and a well-known resident of Oakmont, died yesterday afternoon at her home in Sixth street, that place, after an illness of nine weeks. Mrs. Neill was a daughter of Hugh Harper, a pioneer wagon manufacturer of Allegheny, where he settled in 1822 on his arrival from Ireland. Mrs. Neill took an active interest in religious and charitable work in Oakmont, where she resided since 1871. During the civil war she was prominently identified with the relief work of the women of this section, who cared for the wounded and moving troops sheltered in Old City hall. Five of Mrs. Neill's brothers served with the Union army. She was a member of the First United Presbyterian church of Oakmont, and besides her husband, is survived by a son, Robert H. Neill of Oakmont, and three sisters, Mrs. John Caughey of Hayesville; Mrs. Mary Harbaugh and Mrs. John Brown, both of Bellevue. Funeral services will be held at the late home this evening and the interment will be made tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. Calvin Wells.

Mrs. Mary Chaffey Clyde Wells, wife of the Hon. Calvin Wells, died at her husband's residence in Lincoln avenue, Allegheny, last night at 10 o'clock. On Friday last she suffered from a stroke of apoplexy and was never able to rally. Her children, Mrs. C. M. Griggs of St. Paul, Minn., and Ben C. Wells, treasurer of the Philadelphia Press, were present, having been summoned by telegraph. Mrs. Wells was the daughter of the late Benjamin and Anne Clyde and was in her 80th year. She was a gentle woman of the old school, and was known for her kindness and charity. For some years past she had been an invalid and for that reason was not able to join in social gatherings. She was a member of the Third Presbyterian church. Mr. Wells is one of the most widely known citizens of Pittsburgh, being the president of the Pittsburgh Forge and Iron company and owner of the Philadelphia Press.

Bernard O'Neil.

Bernard O'Neil, aged 34, a Spanish-American war veteran and a member of company C of the Eighteenth regiment, died at the Homeopathic hospital, yesterday, of pneumonia. He was a barber by occupation. O'Niel was a member of the Twelfth United States infantry and was honorably discharged in April, 1900. He served in the Porto Rican campaign and was in 11 engagements. Members of company I, Eighteenth regiment, have taken charge of the remains.

Mrs. Mary Teets Buried.

The remains of Mrs. Mary Teets, who died at her home in Philadelphia last Saturday, were buried yesterday from the chapel of Joseph Voltz, No. 233 South Highland avenue, East End. Mrs. Teets was aged 71, and the widow of Samuel Teets, who died two years ago. She was a sister of Sergt. Michael Lynch of the Allegheny police bureau, and a former resident of the North Side. Mrs. Teets had been a resident of Philadelphia for the last 20 years.

Mrs. Sarah A. Moore.

Mrs. Sarah A. Moore, aged 54, died yesterday at the home of her brother, Morris R. Moore, No. 1213 Walnut street, McKeesport. She was a daughter of the late Thomas Moore and was well known in the city. Funeral services will be held at her late home tomorrow afternoon by the Rev. George H. Rosenmuller of the Episcopal church. The interment will be made in Versailles cemetery.

Obituary Notes.

Miss Martha Fair, aged 79 years, died at Indiana, Pa., yesterday morning of heart disease.

Mrs. Elizabeth Snearly Truxal died at her home in Penn yesterday at the age of 83 years.

While on a business trip to Mt. Pleasant Monday, Edward Peterson of Scottdale expired from heart trouble, aged 24 years.

Frederick K. Stephens, district attorney of Bradford county, died at his home in Sayre yesterday afternoon, after a brief illness.

The Influence of Tom Johnson.

Not only has Hearst failed to carry his point in Ohio, but Tom Johnson seems to be losing his grip there. In view of the fact that Mr. Johnson's candidacy last fall gave the Republicans the biggest majority for governor they ever had, it would seem as if his influence should not be rated too high.—Philadelphia Record.

All Are Alive and Well.

The recent report that the daughter of a high Russian official was arrested and hanged for trying to throw a bomb at the czar appears to have been correct, with the exception that the lady had no bomb and that she was not hanged.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

We'll Fix Him for That.

Judging from the recent decision of the New York court of appeals, Judge Parker has at least one opinion with which few Americans will agree—namely, that the American flag may be used for advertising purposes.—New York Tribune.

Seeking the Unattainable.

The attorney general of Kansas has decided that children need not tell tales in school. The country will rise up and call him blessed if he will devise some method of preventing them from telling tales out of school.—Washington Post.

LARKIN REVEALED SECRET MONEY

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PAYS

"The chamber of commerce has a fund of $30,000 for just such purposes, and it should provide the funds for the entertainment of the Philippine commission instead of asking the city to do so. The city cannot lawfully expend money for this purpose," said Controller Larkin yesterday to the joint committee of city councils, the chamber of commerce and the Merchants and Manufacturers' association.

"But we have been keeping that $30,000 in the dark, and did not want everybody to know about it," said Secretary George H. Anderson of the chamber.

The controller's statement and Secretary Anderson's admission was a surprise to the councilmen, who are asked to put the expense of the entertainment of the Philippine commission upon the city.

Controller Larkin said it was in the province of the chamber of commerce and kindred organizations to provide for the reception of delegations coming to Pittsburgh to make inquiries that might benefit the business and manufacturing interests of the city. He said there was no appropriation for the entertainment of visitors to the city and that the contingent fund was too low to be drawn upon. He did not believe the appropriation by councils would be legal, but he was willing to leave this question to the judgment of the city solicitor. The joint committee, adopting Secretary Anderson's motion, authorized the controller to see the solicitor about the matter. The controller said he would do so today and would report to the committee on Thursday afternoon.

In the meantime the committee decided to invite the Philippine commission to the city on June 28, the date set by the war department, and the invitation will be extended through the mayor. It is the intention to take the commission the round of the manufacturing and leading business establishments and institutions of the city. The principal expense will be a banquet, which, it is estimated, will cost about $5,000.

The members of the joint committee are as follows: From councils, C. H. West, J. J. Booth, Samuel Shenkan, Robert Porter, Max Friedman; chamber of commerce, John Caton, president; George H. Anderson, secretary; Merchants and Manufacturers' association, E. J. Lloyd, J. W. Wardrop, F. R. Babcock, D. C. Shaw, H. W. Neeley, C. H. Ogden.

CLOSING PLANS FOR THE WABASH OPENING

President Ramsey Comes to Pittsburgh to Arrange a Number of Preliminary Matters.

To make the final arrangements for the opening of the Wabash Pittsburgh Terminals, President Joseph Ramsey, Jr., of the Wabash is in Pittsburgh. Mr. Ramsey arrived yesterday morning and had a number of conferences with the Pittsburgh officials over the various plans and details that are not fixed.

A trip of inspection on which the new bridge over the Monongahela will for the first time be crossed by a train and engine will start this morning and will continue through the day. There will probably be a little ceremony in connection with the opening of the bridge, which of its kind is the most striking in existence.

The trip will continue through the Mt. Washington tunnel and out the line almost to the Ohio river. The last work is now being done on the Wabash bridge over the Ohio at Mingo Junction.

Mr. Ramsey said yesterday that the bids are being considered on the several thousand tons of steel to be used in the elevated line the Wabash is to build along West Carson street and across Smithfield street to the freight terminals. No contract has been awarded, however, but it is expected that this work will be let very soon. It is desired that the freight terminals there be completed as soon as possible.

COLLECTION OF WATER TAXES BEGINS TODAY

The city treasurer's office force will begin the annual collection of water taxes today and will continue to receive them until the end of the month. The water assessors were behind in their work until about a week ago, when Director Bigelow gave orders that the books should be ready for the treasurer's office promptly on June 1, and to do this the assessors worked day and night. The assessments are made upon the same schedule of rates as last year, which contained some radical changes.

South Sharon Works Resume.

SHARON, PA., May 31.—(Special.)—Four of the open hearth furnaces of the Carnegie Steel Company, blooming mill and wire nail mill, at South Sharon, have resumed operations after a 10 days' shutdown. Several hundred men are affected. One of the two new 500-ton blast furnaces at New Castle, which is being erected by the Carnegie Steel Company, will be blown in this week. The other furnace will be completed in July.

MILLVALE BOYS FIRED SHOT THAT STRUCK FLOCK HOME

Youths Were Celebrating Memorial Day and Thought That the Home—Made Leaden Missile Would Not Carry Across the River.

The shot which crashed into the home of Henry Flock, 5148 Carnegie avenue, Lawrenceville, Monday afternoon was fired from a small cannon by a crowd of Millvale youths who were celebrating Memorial day. While Police Inspector Gray is still investigating, a Gazette reporter had no trouble in discovering from whence the mysterious missile came.

About 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, while the Flock family were sitting on their front steps, a crash was heard on the second floor. Mr. Flock investigated and found that a leaden bullet, one inch in diameter and about three and one-half inches long, had penetrated the shutter of a front window on the second floor, smashed a wooden chair into splinters and, after gouging a furrow in the floor, had caromed and lodged in the mattress of a bed.

The Lawrenceville police were at once sent for and pronounced the missile to be a bullet similar to those used in a machine gun. It was carefully taken to the police station and later sent to the office of Director Moore.

An examination of the bullet yesterday showed that, instead of being a part of a machine-gun cartridge, it was in reality a home-made leaden slug, probably cast in a piece of inch pipe and then filed into the shape of an ordinary bullet.

The direction in which the bullet came indicated that it had been fired from somewhere in the vicinity of Millvale. Inquiry was made in that borough and it was learned that on Monday afternoon the boys of the town had been firing off a half-dozen cannon. Two of these were large enough to have held the bullet which struck the Flock home, and they were fired from the hillside a short distance east of the borough and in line with the Lawrenceville house.

One of these guns was of rifle bore, and the manner in which the bullet ricochetted after entering the Flock home proved that it was fired from this pattern of cannon.

The distance from where the shell was fired to the place where it struck is almost a mile and the bullet had about spent its force before striking.

The boys who fired the shot claim that they believed the bullet would light in the Allegheny river, and they were badly frightened upon learning of the damage it had done.

TALENT IS SHOWN AT HIGH SCHOOL

Exhibition of Drawing Classes of Normal Department Proves Very Interesting.

MUCH ORIGINAL WORK DONE

Work of unusual interest and excellence is shown in the exhibition of drawings and paintings opened yesterday at the Fifth avenue high school. The 600 pictures are the work of the students of the normal department of the school and prove that artistic talent of no ordinary kind has been developed by the instruction and opportunity given there.

The exhibition will continue this afternoon, tomorrow afternoon and Friday afternoon. Despite the bad weather, several hundred persons, most of them parents and friends of the 49 students in the drawing classes, inspected the showing of productions and all were well pleased.

The most finished work naturally is that of the senior class which will graduate in a few weeks. In this department are shown many original sketches in pen and ink and in water color. A considerable proportion of these show the careful study that mark them more as the work of a professional artist than that of an amateur, and no small amount of individuality is displayed.

Quite a variety of book-cover and calendar designs are shown. Some original sketches of the members of the class, with sketches also of children from the training department, with imaginary landscapes for practice in tone work and a number of silhouettes are to be seen. In copy work flower and scene pictures have been chosen as models, and faithfully reproduced.

Each of the class was required in addition to work out at home an original design in water color, and such subjects as books and tables, flowers and fruits were assigned. The results have been very encouraging to the teacher. Among those who have excelled in the work may be mentioned Misses Birdie M. Neel, Kizzie Wilkins, Mary Hartman, Margaret Deaumer, Louise Bingham, Ida Lockhart, Florence Smithson, Jane C. Martin and Viola Chalmers.

In the junior exhibits similar hard work is shown, although less finished. Sketches in color of mugs and vases and birds, with black and white sketches of tulips, form a large part of this work.

Miss Mary Jenkins, who has charge of the senior and junior drawing classes, is well pleased with this year's work. She was the recipient of many congratulations yesterday.

In a room adjoining the drawing exhibit is one showing the work performed by the manual training students of the normal department. This is done at the Forbes school under the direction of Miss Sue Case. The results in card-board modeling and wood-carving of the first year instruction are shown to good advantage. The basketry exhibit for pupils of the second year shows much skill and the clay-modeling done by the third year students is equally excellent.

In the drawing classes the students are taught not only to do the work themselves, but to teach others the same art.

Sewickley Commencement.

The commencement exercises of the Sewickley High school will be held in the auditorium on Tuesday evening, June 14. The members of the graduating class are: Margaret Atwell, Myrtle Burgess, Edna Cooper, Albert Branum, Will Charnley, Howard Koch, Warne Walters, Reem Eeheman, Walter Neeley and Irwin Smith. The music will be furnished by a chorus and the High School Mandolin club. The commencement exercises of the grammar school will take place Monday evening, June 13.

STUDENTS MAKE HATS THAT RIVAL THE BEST

An illustration of the value of the work done by the students of manual training is shown in an experience the school has recently had in obtaining straw. The straw had been obtained regularly from a certain dealer, but one day he refused to sell. His explanation was that the students were making women's hats so valuable that they were hurting the trade of the regular hat makers.

It was stated yesterday that the weaving taught in the class enables the girls to make from 25 cents' worth of materials the equal of a hat that retails untrimmed for $25. Considerable time is required to complete such careful work.

M'LANE'S DEATH WITHOUT MOTIVE

Belief That Domestic Troubles Caused Baltimore Mayor to Kill Himself.

CORONER QUESTIONS WIDOW

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BALTIMORE, May 31.—The cause of Mayor McLane's suicide is a greater mystery today than when he sent a bullet through his brain yesterday. Although it is an accepted fact that the criticism of his public acts and worry over opposition to his recent marriage combined to wreck his health, it is believed that domestic troubles caused him to end his career.

Rumors were circulated about the city hall today that Mrs. McLane might be able to cast some light on the subject. Coroner Hayden and Captain of Detectives Humphrey have had talks with her. That there was any friction between the couple is denied by Mrs. McLane's brother-in-law, Dr. Claude Van Bibber.

Mrs. McLane, when questioned by the coroner, repeated the story told yesterday. In describing the noise of the shot she said a feeling of terror and alarm came over her. This feeling was heightened when she called to the maid and asked her if anything had fallen downstairs. She went to her husband's dressing room but was afraid to open the door and told the maid to enter first. When asked why she felt a sense of oppression and fear, she replied that she did not know.

Captain of Detectives Humphrey made an investigation by order of Marshal of Police Farnan. Asked if he thought the mayor contemplated killing himself before he entered the dressing room, he said:

"No, I do not. I believe that he opened the wardrobe and saw the revolver in it. Then he probably thought of some trouble, something that was worrying him, and the impulse came upon him at once to end it all with the revolver."

E. Clay Timanus, president of the second branch of the city council, took the oath of office as mayor today. Under a provision of the city charter Mayor Timanus will serve out the balance of Mayor McLane's term of three years.

Mayor Timanus, who is a Republican, announced that it was too early for him to definitely outline what his policy may be, but it is not believed that he will undertake to undo the appointments of his predecessor, who was a Democrat. Mayor Timanus is a leading manufacturer of this city, director in a national bank and a prominent member of the chamber of commerce and other business associations. He is 41 years old and has been a member of the city council several terms.

The entire city is in mourning today over the tragic ending of the life of Mayor McLane. The flags on the court house, city hall and chamber of commerce and numbers of hotels are at half mast. Mayor Timanus' first official act was to order the draping of the city hall in mourning for his predecessor. All the municipal boards met and adjourned as a mark of respect to the late mayor. The supreme bench of Baltimore held a special meeting today and ordered that the several courts of the city be adjourned until the morning after the funeral. Chief Judge Harlan and other judges referred to the great "public sorrow" that had come upon Baltimore. Many leading citizens, including Cardinal Gibbons, are giving public expression to the view that the death of the mayor is in the nature of a serious public calamity.

LIBERTY BELL LEAVES FOR FAIR ON FRIDAY

Special Train Will Leave Philadelphia With Relic on Board at 9 O'Clock.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

PHILADELPHIA, May 31.—The joint committee of city councils having charge of the transportation of the old Liberty bell to the Louisiana Purchase exposition at St. Louis, today completed the details of the arrangements for the trip west. The start will be made from the West Philadelphia station at 9 o'clock on Friday night.

The train, in addition to the gondola which will carry the bell, will consist of four Pullman sleepers and a dining car. One of the former will be placed at the disposal of Mayor Weaver and his party, while the three remaining Pullmans will be used by the members of the special joint committee, 24 in number, and their guests.

The escort of the bell, on its arrival at St. Louis, will consist of a squad of mounted policemen and a detachment of United States cavalry from the Jefferson barracks. The line of march will cover about six miles. Upon arriving at the exposition grounds a salute will be fired in honor of the revolutionary relic and all the bells and steam whistles in the grounds will give a welcome. The Liberty bell will be received by President Francis and President George McCurdy of commencement council will deliver the oration. Addresses will also be made by Mayor Weaver, Chairman Harry Clay and others.

Mayor Hays Signs Hump Bill.

Mayor Hays yesterday signed the hump ordinance, authorizing the submission to the voters of the city the proposition to issue $2,000,000 of bonds for the removal of the hump. This completes the enactment of both the hump and filtration ordinances which will be submitted to a popular vote on July 12.

Honor For Hull House Founder.

CHICAGO, May 31.—Miss Jane Addams will have the honorary degree of LL. D. bestowed upon her by the University of Wisconsin June 9. Her remarkable work at Hull house and other philanthropic centers caused the award.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand 24 hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains the linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it, or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, and a book that tells all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure to mention that you read this generous offer in The Pittsburgh Daily Gazette. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

REAL ESTATE MAN TIRED OF LIVING

Tried to Commit Suicide in Two Ways, but Failed in Both.

HIS BUSINESS WAS NOT GOOD

Alan B. Carmack, aged 30, of 4709 Fifth avenue, attempted to commit suicide by drinking carbolic acid in his office, 325 Park building, shortly after 10 o'clock last night. He succeeded in getting some of the acid in his mouth when Dr. G. L. Hays of 4704 Fifth avenue grabbed the poison from his hands.

Carmack said he was a real estate broker. He is a room agent and secures quarters in private homes for strangers. His business has not been bright of late and he became despondent. He left home about 8 o'clock last night and told his wife he was going to his office. About an hour later he telephoned Dr. Hays to come to his office, as he wanted to discuss his difficulties. When the physician arrived he found Carmack in the office with his coat off.

The man seemed despondent and nervous. Dr. Hays was waiting for him to relate his troubles when Carmack drew out a penknife and opened it.

"I am going to kill myself," he said to the physician.

"No, you are not," replied the physician. "Give me that knife."

Carmack turned the knife over to the physician.

As the physician turned to lay the knife on the desk, Carmack drew a two-ounce bottle of carbolic acid from his pocket and raised it to his mouth. The physician wrenched the bottle from Carmack's hands, and most of the contents was spilled on the table. Carmack, however, got a few drops of it in his mouth. Carmack made an attempt to get the poison from the physician. The men struggled about the room and finally the physician threw Carmack on the floor.

The elevator operator was in the corridor and overheard the men struggling and Carmack threaten to kill himself. The operator telephoned the detective bureau and Detectives Cole and Egan hurried to the building. They sent for an ambulance. Carmack struggled with the detectives and asked them to kill him.

While the officers were waiting for the hospital ambulance Capt. McEvoy entered the room. Carmack was acquainted with the police captain.

"Jim, take your gun and shoot me," he said, "for I don't want to live."

The captain and detectives said Carmack was shamming more than he was trying from the few burns in his mouth. When the ambulance arrived Carmack refused to walk to the elevator and the detectives carried him.

Mrs. Carmack called up her husband's office while the officers were there. From her words she had expected her husband had committed suicide. After the officers replied her husband was not seriously injured and he was at the hospital. Later Mrs. Carmack went to the hospital.

Carmack and Dr. Hays are neighbors and are well acquainted with each other. The physician knew of Carmack's business difficulties and often encouraged him. Carmack came to this city from Philadelphia several years ago.

SUPT. BROWN QUITS AND BENNIE IN CHARGE

Head of Allegheny Water Bureau Is Out After 11 Years Continuous Service.

Supt. J. Linwood Brown of the Allegheny bureau of water gave up his office yesterday and was succeeded by Alexander Bennie, who was appointed to fill the vacancy. Mr. Brown sent his resignation to Mayor Wyman a month ago. His relations with the mayor and the other city officials have been harmonious since his reappointment a year ago last April, when Wyman took office.

Robert McAfee, former director of public works, appointed Brown to the position years ago today. Nothing has been said by Mr. Brown regarding his future plans except that for several months he will take a rest at his farm in Conneaut, O. Prior to entering the service of the city Mr. Brown was a railroad engineer. For years he was engaged in constructing roads in Mexico and South America, and claims the distinction of being one of the first American engineers to build a railroad in Russia. His successor, Alexander Bennie, was until a week ago common councilman from the Second ward. He resigned to make his acceptance of the new position possible.

Assistant Clerk Joseph Sauers, who has been in the mayor's office for years, sent in his resignation yesterday. Sauers has gone into the hotel business with his brother, John Sauers, in Federal street. His successor has not yet been named.

THEATERS ANYWHERE IF THEY CONFORM TO LAW

Chicago Judge Orders City to Grant Building Permit to New Iroquois.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CHICAGO, May 31.—Judge Dunn today issued a writ of mandamus ordering the city to issue a building permit for the remodeling of the fire stricken Iroquois theater. Judge Dunn issued the writ of mandamus at the prayer of the owners of the playhouse. The judge said:

"If a man desires to open a vaudeville show in a private graveyard and the city is issuing permits of this kind and if the building complies with all ordinances the city must issue the permit. The only objection to the remodeling of the theater now is the contention of the city officials that the new theater ordinance provides that the exits lead to the street while I believe the council members meant the exits should open on the street level. On these grounds I grant the mandamus."

Benjamin H. Marshall, architect of the theater said the Iroquois had been remodeled so that now all the exits from all balconies and galleries lead to the street level.

Former Manager T. J. Noonan of the Iroquois testified that the ownership of the theater had been deeded by the Iroquois Theater company to William Harris of Boston.

William Rankin Dead.

William Rankin, aged 68, died last evening at the home of his son, Dr. C. A. Rankin, in Walnut street, McKeesport. He was formerly a farmer in Midland township and a former director of Versailles cemetery. He was a member of Aliquippa lodge, F. and A. M. He is survived by two sons, Dr. C. A. and Howard Rankin, and one daughter, Mrs. S. P. Mayers, all of McKeesport. One brother, Samuel of Carson City, Ia., is living, as are four sisters, Mrs. John Rankin of Mendelssohn, Mrs. Sallie Chamberlain and Mrs. Emma Martin of Lilliball and Mrs. W. J. Riggs of the South side.

In Memoriam.

Resolution passed by board of directors of Diamond National bank, May 31, 1904, on death of Charles Parkin.

Whereas, Death has entered our board and taken a valued member, Mr. Charles Parkin, a man who was respected in this community, and who had the confidence of his associates; therefore be it

Resolved, That though in the death of Mr. Charles Parkin the bank has lost a faithful friend and the board a trusted adviser, the influence of his integrity, sagacity and stanch Christian character remains; and be it further

Resolved, That in expressing our sympathy, we extend condolences to the bereaved, and further that the secretary be instructed to forward a copy of the above to the family.

CITIZENS FAILED TO GET QUORUM

CAUCUS IN MAYOR'S OFFICE

Although 34 members of common council were in the city hall last night, the 26 members necessary for a quorum were not present when the roll was called, the Citizens failing the second time to elect A. G. Roenigk of the Twentieth ward as president pro tem. in the absence of President R. H. Ward. Director James W. Clark, Alderman J. D. Walker and other Bigelow lieutenants worked to secure a quorum and to line up the members for Roenigk, but 22 votes were all they could muster. When the roll was called 24 members responded to their names, of whom two were Republicans.

The Republican members were present in the city hall until 8:15 o'clock when the Citizens made a peculiar move. The meeting had been called for 7:30 o'clock, but at 8:15, instead of going into the council chamber, they marched into the reception room of the mayor's office to hold a caucus. When the Republicans saw this they walked out of the city hall and stood on the steps. C. W. Helmold of the Twentieth ward acted as doorkeeper at the caucus and claimed that 25 members were inside. By actual count there were only 20 members present.

The Citizens waited another half-hour trying to get six more members to complete the quorum, calling up by telephone and sending out messengers. Two more members appeared and at 8:45 o'clock the Citizens entered the council chamber. Two Republicans—John A. Bergmann of the Twenty-ninth ward and Charles Guiland of the Thirty-seventh were present. The 24 members who answered the roll call were:

Bole, Bright, Collins, Cronmiller, Dengler, Frankle, Guiland, Hammer, Helmold, Hogue, Hughes, Kalchhaler, Maslowski, Matthews, McKelvey, McNally, O'Brien, Pfannkuch, Porter, Rapp, Roenigk, Taylor, Wallace and Walls.

The clerk announced that 24 members, two short of a quorum, were present, and Guiland moved to adjourn. Bergman seconded the motion, which was carried. A number of the Republican members were still standing on the city hall steps when the Citizens members came out.

At the former meeting J. J. McKelvey of the Tenth ward had been picked by the Republicans for president pro tem for the purpose of dividing the Citizens and preventing the election of Roenigk or Bole, whom the Bigelow leaders had slated. Efforts were made by the Citizens to get McKelvey to withdraw, and when he refused Roenigk withdrew and the Citizens members supported McKelvey to cover up their defeat.

Last night they undertook to prevent a repetition of this game, and held the caucus to sidetrack McKelvey. The result was that the Republicans blocked this game by stealing up a quorum.

"We were at city hall to transact business and were greatly surprised when the Citizens, instead of going into a council meeting, called a caucus. We then decided that if the Citizens did not want a meeting it was useless for us to wait around city hall," was the explanation given by William Brand, the leader of the Republicans.

Another motive of the Citizens caucus was to secure enough votes to defeat a resolution transferring $5,000 from the Point bridge fund for the erection of the Melanchton street bridge in the Twenty-third ward. This resolution was introduced by a Republican, Charles C. Kohne, and had been approved by the bridge committee.

STEEL CORPORATION IS TAKING FOREIGN PROFITS

Growth of Export Trade Will Soon Show in Quarterly Reports.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, May 31.—The increased export trade of the United States Steel Corporation will begin to show in the present quarterly report. It will develop to its maximum in the third quarter.

The Wall Street Journal today published an interview with a director of the Steel Corporation, in which he is quoted as saying:

"It is a mistake to jump to the conclusion that the corporation is not making money on its export trade. I believe I am conservative when I say that on every ton of steel sold abroad this year the corporation had made a fair profit.

"Everyone knows that the profit on exports is not comparable to the profits on domestic trade, but it is a mistake to assume that we cannot send iron and steel abroad and live on the proceeds. To a certain extent the corporation has broadened its foreign trade in lines which permit of low prices, but are profitable because of the bulk of the business."

Prairie Grass And Reed Furniture

The most desirable furniture for the porch is made of reeds and prairie grass. Both of these materials have been evolved into a great variety of articles, designed to add to the comfort and elegance of what, in summer time, is the most delightful part of the house.

Prairie grass furniture comes in a pleasing green color that is characteristic of this material. In the reed furniture one may have choice of the natural wood or a delicate shade of green, which is popular this season.

For comfort, lightness, grace and beauty of design there has never been anything to compare with the stock of porch furniture now carried by this establishment. It comprises chairs, tables, settees, swings, etc., in immense variety.

It pays to buy everything in the line of furniture here, because this is the largest furniture house in the world, and prices are invariably moderate at

BRYAN WILL LEAD STATE DELEGATION

Free Silver Apostle Will Control Convention Which Begins Session Today.

MANY TROUBLES IN MICHIGAN

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

OMAHA, May 31.—Democratic leaders from different parts of the state began arriving today for the Democratic state convention which will be held in this city Wednesday.

Indications now are that William J. Bryan's friends will completely dominate the convention, the county convention in Douglas county last Saturday having eliminated the last hope of the "reorganizers" to secure recognition. The convention, in addition to selecting four delegates-at-large, will name two delegates for each district to the national convention and adopt a platform which is expected to reflect the views of Mr. Bryan. Mr. Bryan himself probably will be elected to lead the Nebraska delegation at the St. Louis convention.

There are six candidates for delegates-at-large, three of whom are expected to be elected without contest. These latter are W. J. Bryan, C. J. Smyth of Omaha and W. H. Thompson of Grand Island. For the fourth place former Congressman Shallenbarger of Alma, Walter Phillips of Columbus and S. M. Bailey of Fairbury are aspirants. H. H. Hanks of Nebraska City will be temporary chairman of the convention.

DETROIT, May 31.—The Democratic state convention to elect delegates to the national convention at St. Louis will convene here at noon tomorrow. It is expected on every hand that there will be a fight to the finish between the so-called conservative and radical wings of the party.

STILL A DEADLOCK.

Illinois Republicans Take Three More Ballots Without a Choice.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., May 31.—The Republican state convention, after a session lasting an hour and one-half, and after taking three ballots for governor, adjourned until tomorrow morning without having broken the deadlock. The convention, after an eleven-days' recess, reconvened this afternoon. There was a manifest falling off of enthusiasm.

Governor Yates was cheered as he entered a few minutes before the convention was called to order, but the entry of the other candidates was unobserved. Chairman Cannon opened the proceedings by having read the rule of the house of representatives which, among other things, prohibits smoking "upon the floor of the house."

The convention unanimously agreed to the no smoking clause. Late in the afternoon adjournment was taken until tomorrow morning.

WORLD'S FAIR BUILDING IN MOURNING FOR QUAY

ST. LOUIS, May 31.—All festivities planned for the next few days at the Pennsylvania state building at the world's fair grounds were canceled today. The doorways of the building have also been draped in crepe, in mourning for Senator Quay.

Ohio's Prohibition Ticket Named.

COLUMBUS, O., May 31.—The Prohibition state convention today nominated the following ticket: Secretary of state, Harold King Rockhill, Franklin county judge of supreme court, Walter Slister, Cuyahoga county; clerk of supreme court, W. A. Weaver, Columbiana county; dairy and food commissioner, W. J. Kirkendall, Jackson county; member of board of public works, J. N. Emerson, Wood county; delegates-at-large, H. F. MacLane, Toledo; the Rev. N. D. Cramer, Columbus; F. M. McCartney, Columbus, and H. L. Peeke, Sandusky.

Killed in Fall from Window.

Joseph E. Litton, aged 29 and single, was killed at 1:45 o'clock this morning by falling out of a third-story window at Carson and South First streets, where he was employed as a bartender. Litton had just finished work and locked the place for the night. It is thought he went to the third floor and fell asleep while sitting on the window sill. His death resulted from a fractured skull.

PENNIES WERE REDUCED TO THE SIZE OF DIMES

Allegheny Drug Clerk's Original Scheme to Beat Automatic Telephone Pay Stations Worried the Federal Authorities for Several Days.

An Allegheny drug clerk hit upon a clever scheme to beat the automatic pay stations of the Central District & Printing telephone company a few days ago, operated it much to his satisfaction, kept the company and the secret service operatives worrying for a short time but is now being carefully watched pending his arrest.

Last Friday the telephone company's collector in opening the money receptacles of the pay stations in four Allegheny drug stores, all of them in the vicinity of the Ft. Wayne depot in Federal street, discovered a number of coins of the same design as the ordinary penny, but of the weight and size of a dime. He reported the matter to Treasurer F. M. Stevenson, who after an examination believed the coins to be counterfeit pennies, and summoned the secret service operatives to his assistance.

Examinations lasting over two days were made, and it was discovered that instead of being counterfeits, the money was nothing more or less than copper cents which had been worked down to the size of dimes. Chemical tests showed that the result was attained by immersing the coin in muriatic acid until it was reduced to the desired size, the operation taking about 40 seconds.

The drug clerk was finally located, and it was decided to arrest him on charges of mutilating United States money. It was then discovered that there is no law prohibiting the destruction of coins made of the baser metals, such as pennies and nickels. United States District Attorney Young was consulted and is now looking up the law in an endeavor to find some federal statute that will cover the offense.

In the meantime the attorneys of the telephone company have prepared informations in conformity with the state laws charging fraud, and in case the federal authorities are powerless to act, a warrant will be issued charging fraud. The clerk is under constant surveillance.

How often you hear a woman say she's had "bad luck" with her baking, or that she's lost her "knack." Why?

Because home baking is a matter of chance. No woman can teach another woman to make bread just like her own—she cannot impart the "knack." Yet it is evident that if bread is made right once, it must be right if made and baked in exactly the same way and from the same flour again. That is the secret of

Tekla Bread

Tekla Bread is always the same because the sameness doesn't depend upon anybody's "knack"—upon the bakers happening to mix the dough right; upon the oven happening to be just hot enough; upon the flour happening to be just the right grade.

Tekla Bread—from the wheat to the finished loaf—is made after an unvarying formula that must produce unvarying bread—that insures its uniformity of lightness, purity and all-round goodness.

CALLED STRIKERS' FLAG BANNER OF ANARCHISTS

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

PARKERSBURG, W. VA., May 31.—Judge John J. Jackson, in the United States circuit court, today found seven striking miners from the Marquette mines, in Hancock county, guilty of contempt for violating an injunction prohibiting interference with non-union men who were at work.

The evidence showed that the strikers stoned the workers, picketed the property and marched under a peculiar banner to the court house. Judge Jackson said:

"The marching of a body of men together under a particular banner, which is known as the banner of anarchists, and which you people have adopted as the emblem of your organization, can be for no other purpose than intimidation."

He released the men on their promise to not violate the injunction again.

INDIAN GRATITUDE TO SENATOR QUAY

GENEROUS AID IN CONGRESS

The Gazette last night received from Richard C. Adams, of Dewey, I. T., a copy of resolutions recently adopted by the Delaware Indians in acknowledgment of the friendship shown them by Senator Quay, as follows:

Whereas, The Delawares, once the head of the Algonquin confederation, occupying the territory between the Hudson and the Potomac rivers and extending from the Atlantic back to the Allegheny mountains, have, through the encroachments of the whites upon their territory and by reason of the treaties into which they have been forced from time to time, been compelled to retreat from place to place until at last in 1867, having been reduced to a small number of less than 1,500, and when but a small part of their possessions remained, were, through the efforts of the United States government, led to take their homes in the Cherokee nation and were induced to pay for the homes the unreasonably large sum of that time of $1 an acre for 157,000 acres, and were further induced by the citizens of the Cherokee nation and the United States to spend almost their last dollar of tribal funds in the improvement of the homes guaranteed to them, and,

Whereas, After the expenditure aforesaid of all their means the Cherokee nation undertook to deprive them of their rights thus purchased and guaranteed to them by said nation, and through oppressive measures sought and still seek to reclaim the greater part of the property so purchased by the Delawares, thus causing them to expend large sums of money in defending their rights, and,

Whereas, A crisis was reached in the affairs of the Delaware people when it appeared they were in great danger of losing the greater part of their rights, improvements and homes upon which they have expended much time and money, in which extremity the Hon. Matthew S. Quay, United States senator from Pennsylvania, in the magnanimity of his disposition and goodness of his heart came forward as a champion of the Delaware Indians and in the senate of the United States and before the legislative departments of the government stood forth and insisted on fair treatment for the Delaware people, and after a most bitter and protracted contest in which he held himself ever ready to respond to their calls for assistance aided most signally and effectively in protecting and preserving their improvements and securing an appropriation to them of $150,000 in consideration and satisfaction of other demands, and

Whereas, The Delaware people feel themselves to be under great and lasting obligations to the Hon. Matthew S. Quay for the firm friendship and unswerving interest he has shown in their behalf and his untiring efforts under trying conditions which have resulted so beneficially to our people, therefore be it

Resolved, By the Delaware tribe of Indians in general council assembled that we hereby declare in unqualified terms our deep gratitude and lasting obligations to the Hon. Matthew S. Quay, and that the Delaware people offering this testimonial as a feeble expression of the great esteem and enduring gratitude they feel for him, for the friendship and consideration he has shown them in the hour of their great need, a friendship they shall ever cherish and foster; be it further

Resolved, That a copy of the resolutions be sent to the Hon. Matthew S. Quay and given to the public press that the people of Pennsylvania and of the United States may know that the Delaware Indians are and will ever be mindful of his generous aid and unselfish friendship.

FINE YIDDISH DRAMA AT DUQUESNE THEATER

Boris Thomashefsky One of the Best of the Modern School of Yiddish Actors.

Pittsburgh's Hebrew world that may always be expected to patronize the Yiddish drama, packed the Duquesne theater last night from pit to gallery. It was an audience that represented every grade of Hebrew thought and life, and proved again how strong a hold the drama, in an understandable vernacular and given form and expression by actors of their own race, appeals to the people whose long-ago ancestors gave the world the noblest of dramatic literature. The audience was characteristic in its attitude. It had been gathered upon the reputation of one of the acknowledged leaders of dramatic art on the Hebrew stage at present, Mr. Boris Thomashefsky and his company of New York players began an engagement which will occupy four nights of the week. His reception was spontaneous and hearty, and the manner in which the audience greeted several of the players proved that it is not unfamiliar with the history and doings of their own people in the stage world. There were learned Jews here and there in the boxes and in the parquet, while the great masses of this exclusive race foregathered in every part of the house, little children, aged patriarchs, solid business men and the characteristic flotsam and jetsam that revels in these annual opportunities to pay tribute to the genius of a stage that is still limited to a small area in theatric achievements in this country.

It was a great big, good-natured audience that, while thoroughly oblivious of heat and close air, enjoyed itself and took the performances on the stage as a personal appeal to their artistic and racial sense of approval. The occasion was a worthy one, apart from its peculiar language and customs. The play and the players represent, perhaps, the best expression of Hebrew dramatic attainments in America just now. The star is an actor who has achieved great personal success, and his work is worth all the praise it has received.

Mr. Thomashefsky selected a modern drama of Jewish life in New York as his opening play last night. It is in four acts and runs the gamut of emotions from broad farce to deep and pathetic tragedy. As the young musician, afflicted by blindness and urged into an unwilling marriage contract by an unscrupulous mother on the one hand and the equally unscrupulous father of the girl on the other, the actor demonstrated vigorous and comprehensive gifts as an actor. To embody the thought of the playwright in forceful and intelligent form required a marvelous command of racial and dramatic expression. These the actor displayed without at any time destroying the unity of illusion that must pervade the acting of all languages, all races, in order to complete the true dramatic expression. The language used was not Hebrew. Its dominant form was German, though it may be properly described as a jargon, a few English words here and there creeping into the lines. But it was not by means of the language that Mr. Thomashefsky won his right to be called one of the best Yiddish players the American stage has seen for a long time. His Joseph, in "The Blind Musician," was full of the actor's art. In pose and gesture it was distinctly racial. In technique, in the command of dramatic movement, enunciation and facial expression it was cosmopolitan in its accuracy, fire and vigor. There was ranting at times, but it was never beyond the boundaries of the peculiar demands of the character. The general and most apparent feature of the performance was repressive dignity and force. The actor is not a man of striking stage presence, when physique is considered. He lacks stature for the girth he carries, but his face is fine and mobile, and he carries himself always with dignity and authority. His work was artistic beyond what one usually associates with the Yiddish stage.

The star was by no means alone in his excellent acting. The Rose of Mr. Lobel was a finely balanced, intelligent piece of acting. Mrs. Gudinski's Feivele was also admirable, while the Solomon of Mr. Simoff was an excellently drawn piece of comedy work. The general mounting of the drama was plain, but in keeping with the atmosphere of the play. Thursday evening a comedy, "The Parent's Trouble," will be given. "Four Hundred Years" will be produced on Friday. "The Jewish Gambler" closing the engagement on Saturday evening.

City Gets More Policemen.

Acting Superintendent of Police Wallace added 25 policemen to the Pittsburg bureau yesterday. Nine were detailed to No. 6 station house in East End, three to the Oakland station, five to Lawrenceville, seven to the Central station and one to No. 7 station house on the South Side.

DIDN'T DISTURB THE PRESIDENT

La Follette Faction Failed to Create Sympathy at the White House.

GIVEN ADVICE ON HARMONY

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Room 10, Postal Building.
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 31.

The family row in the Republican party of Wisconsin was given an airing here today by a delegation of La Follette adherents who came on to talk the matter over with the president. These "regulars," as they modestly refer to themselves, said that the "bolters," as they call the Spooner-Quarles-Payne faction, had told their story to the president, and now they wanted him to hear their side of the case. The delegation consisted of State Chairman W. D. Connor, Secretary of State W. L. Houser, Speaker of the Assembly Irvine L. Penroot, C. C. Gittings and H. P. Myrick, editor of the Milwaukee Free Press. They called at the White House and received a cordial greeting from President Roosevelt, to whom they told the sad story of the state convention and the split in the party that resulted from it.

During the past two weeks some rather sensational reports have reached here from Wisconsin to the effect that threats were being made that if the La Follette faction is not recognized by the national convention they will see to it that Roosevelt loses the state. Gov. La Follette has been quoted as predicting dire results for the Republican party in his state if his delegates are turned down.

Roosevelt Was Calm.

Whether today's delegation came from Milwaukee with the expectation of throwing a scare into the administration and hoping to find aid and comfort in the national capital, is not known, but if they had any such ideas they were not here long before they discovered their mistake. They found that President Roosevelt and other Republicans of prominence looked upon the situation in Wisconsin purely as a family affair and one in which no outsider should meddle.

They told the president they hoped the trouble in their state would not endanger the national ticket. In view of the fact that both factions have nominated the same set of presidential electors, the president agreed with them in this hope. He listened to their story with interest, but gave no sign of sympathy. He merely allowed them to tell their troubles to him, and then gave them some excellent advice on the folly of factional fights. He said party harmony was a good thing, and advised them to get some of it. Not by word or sign did he indicate that he thought the "bolters" should yield.

Then the delegation went to see Postmaster General Payne. As vice chairman of the national committee, they filed with him a formal notice of the split in the convention and a demand for recognition of the delegates chosen by the La Follette faction.

Payne Is a Good Listener.

They also told him their story, and hoped again that no danger would result to the national ticket by reason of the fight. Mr. Payne listened attentively to what they had to say, but, like his chief, he gave no sign of sympathy. They knew he belonged to the Spooner-Quarles faction and didn't expect much from him. But neither at the White House nor at the postoffice department did the Wisconsin visitors succeed in creating a panic of fright. Prominent Republicans decline to "view with alarm" the situation in that state.

It is believed here that the delegates elected by both factions will be seated in the Chicago convention, giving each delegate half a vote. This would relieve the national committee of the responsibility of passing upon the legality of the state convention, that matter being left for the courts to decide. The fight is to be taken into the courts and a decision is expected before election day.

DOWIE MAKES CONVERTS OF 200 SWISS PERSONS

ZURICH, May 31.—(Special Cable.)—Alexander Dowie has just finished a series of sermons in this city, during which he succeeded in capturing 200 souls who have declared themselves willing to join his Zion. They are mostly young men who are anxious to go to the United States, and hope that the prophet will pay their passage. Dowie tried to cure a number of sick and crippled in this city, but failed utterly. He now goes to Berlin.

Escanaba Dock Laborers Strike.

ESCANABA, Mich., May 31.—Although all arrangements had been made for the loading of the first ore boats of the season today the dock laborers refused to work at scale of wages offered by the Northwestern railway company. Unless the members of the union comply with the demands of the company non-union men will be employed tomorrow. Ore loading at the St. Paul dock was begun today, the men accepting the new wage scale.

"Old Reliable" Is Dead.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., May 31.—Col. John Bodine, a noted American rifle shot, who was known as "Old Reliable," died in New Paltz last night. He was a member and captain of several American rifle teams which competed abroad. In 1875 he was a member of the team which won the international match with the Irish team in a contest near Dublin.

THE AX of toughest steel becomes dulled by constant use and must have a new edge if it is to do good work. Constant work dulls a man as it does an ax, makes him sluggish of body and dull of mind. He needs a tonic, something that will restore the keenness of mind and activity of body.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery puts new life into weak, worn-out, run-down men and women. It strengthens the weak stomach, purifies the blood, and effectively stimulates the liver. The whole body is built up with sound, solid flesh by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery."

"I was confined to my bed for four months from January 1st, 1899, and commenced to take your medicine January 26th, 1899," writes Mrs. Sallie L. Sheppard, of Poplarbluff, Mo. "I took eight bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, four of 'Favorite Prescription,' two vials of 'Pleasant Pellets,' and one bottle of Doctor Pierce's Compound Extract of Smartweed, as a liniment. Indigestion, obstinate constipation, and hardening of the liver was my trouble. I am at this time able to do almost any kind of house work. Your medicine saved me from my grave. Thanks to you for the benefit. My case was hopeless when I began taking your medicine."

Don't be fooled into trading a substance for a shadow. Any substitute offered as "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery," is a shadow of that medicine. There are cures behind every claim made for the "Discovery," which no "just as good" medicine can show.

WILD WEST MOVED TO PHILADELPHIA

NO CLUE TO THE DESPERADOES

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Press Building.
PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 31.

Five masked desperadoes, armed to the teeth, blew open two safes at the Delaware County and Philadelphia Electric Railways barn at Clifton Heights this morning, secured $150 in cash from one safe, almost succeeded in getting $2,000 from another safe, bound and terrorized three company employes, two belated male passengers and two women, and then escaped.

The robbers made their descent upon the car barn at 2 o'clock, and worked so quickly and boldly that none was able to raise an outcry. When the outlaws appeared from out of the darkness only three of the trolley company's employes were in the barn. They were William Spence, Charles Bonner and E. J. Dodd, and each of the three was at work among the empty cars, getting them in readiness for today's business.

Spence and Bonner were near the Baltimore avenue end of the shed, when they were suddenly confronted by four masked men, who clapped revolvers to their heads and ordered them to be quiet, under penalty of death. Neither man had an opportunity to get away and Bonner, who made the effort, was promptly given a clip over the head with a revolver butt that effectually quieted him. Two of the robbers bound Spence and Bonner about the wrists with wire, and then went in search of others who might interfere with their work. They found Dodd in the back part of the barn and two young men from Media, who had missed the last car, asleep in the conductors' room, which is on the west side of the barn, just in the rear of the office.

These three were quickly bound in the same way as Spence and Bonner. The five were then stood up in a row against the wall in the conductors' room. No effort was made by the robbers to gag any of the men or to bind their feet, the bandits arguing rightly that the sight of their revolvers would be sufficient to prevent any disobedience to their orders. Having lined up the men, the robbers placed one of their number to guard the prisoners and then went to work. The police have no clue.

TANNHAEUSER WAS GIVEN A FINE PRESENTATION

Savage's Company Scored a Success in Wagner's Popular Work Last Night.

The production of Tannhaeuser by Savage's English Grand Opera company at the Nixon last night was a gratifying surprise. In scenic beauty it is the equal, if not the superior of anything the organization has yet attempted, and the last act in particular was one of the most effective stage presentations of autumn seen in some time. Throughout the opera there was that attention to small detail and general finish of appearance and production denoting much care and thoughtfulness on the part of the stage management.

An innovation was made in the lighting during the change of scenery in the first act, a series of electric lights being so arranged in reflectors that a strong colored light was thrown on the audience, leaving the stage in darkness while the shift was made. While trying to the eyes it was much better than the total darkness usually prevailing in theaters when a shift of this kind is made.

The overture of Tannhaeuser is well known through its great popularity as a concert number. It begins with the pilgrim's song, is succeeded by the seductive spells of the Venusberg and the calls of the sirens, but at the end the pilgrim's song is again heard in a joyous burst of harmony. The orchestra under Mr. Schenk gave to the overture an interpretation of such technical value and such sympathetic expression that it may be considered one of the great things of the evening. It was heartily applauded.

The part of Elisabeth was sung very well by Miss Remayson. Her strong and melodious voice and her gifts as an actress showed to good advantage throughout the performance. Miss Newman sang the Venus parts with splendid effect.

Tannhaeuser was enacted by Mr. Wegener, and while his reading of the part was excellent dramatically, his voice at times seemed hardly adequate to the demands of the music. In the last act, however, he was more than good. Mr. Marsano was somewhat uneven in his work and his rendition of the "Song of the Evening Star" did not meet expectations. His voice had a tendency to be a shade off the note. Mr. Boyle made an impressive Landgrave, his voice showing great richness and power, and Mr. Fulton as one of the minstrel knights won much well deserved applause with his solo.

This afternoon "Il Trovatore" will be repeated and this evening the company will be heard for the first time in this city in the melodious "Bohemian Girl."

No Relief for Postoffice Congestion.

First Assistant Postmaster General Wynne visited the Pittsburgh postoffice yesterday. With Postmaster Holliday he went through the office and examined the crowded conditions. Mr. Wynne realized the congestion, but said nothing at present could be done, as so many other postoffices throughout the country were in a similar condition.

SCHWITTER WEST-VIEW

It's No. 200 At $200.

$10 Is All You Need in Your Pocket

Investors and homeseekers see that this is real estate that will not only make money for them but continue forever as the choicest spot that can be selected for a nice home. Persons who compare it with other locations do not question its superiority. Comparison serves to convince them that SCHWITTER WEST-VIEW is where they can safely put their money with positive assurance of making good, solid, genuine big profit. It is a satisfaction to homeseekers to know that while the place is beautiful, is choice enough to make it advisable to spend any sum that may be necessary to pay for the erection of a very fine residence, that the section is also one that will grow in value and give back to them a handsome profit in the event that they would ever wish to sell their home.

Just think of what you can do on this property if you hurry!! By paying $10 down and $5 a month thereafter you can secure a lovely corner on Glenmore avenue.

It will certainly be to your advantage to catch a West View, East Street and Madison Avenue car as early as you can.

Have a ten-dollar bill in your pocket. These cars start from Seventh Street and Liberty Avenue, and when they reach the private right-of-ways, make speed on safety tracks at the rate of forty-five miles an hour.

Wait a minute. We forgot to tell you what you will get with that corner lot. You'll get sanitary-sewered streets, gases, electric light and our famous germ-proof city water.

When you get on the property ask for Lot Number 200. The price is $200. If you cannot come to see it during the day come at night. Buy it under the electric lights. If it is gone by the time you get out, there's plenty of other good lots at the same price. Several on the same street at $200 to $300, not far from where that WONDER is situated.

Some on Woodland Avenue at $150. Marvels on Highland Avenue at $650.

After you see how good Schwitter West-View is for the money, and notice how finely we are paving some of the streets in this handsome plan with asphalt, walk over to Keating West-View Numbers 1 and 2. Look at the many families that are already living there, AND THESE PROPOSITIONS WERE JUST BORN LAST JULY. The most healthy real estate infants that any human being ever saw. You cannot find their equal anywhere else between the oceans. They are a real estate triumph! Even other real estate men say so.

While you are over in Keating visit some of the people who live there, ask them about the provisional premium bonds that we are giving free with Schwitter West-View. They're the same as we gave when selling off Keating. You can make a fourth of what you pay for your lot out of them, and they cost you nothing. Remember this! Get all the information you can about them.

Have a talk with W. H. Brant, of Perrysville Avenue; J. W. Beers, of Ridgewood Avenue; Miss Margaret Frank, of Ridgewood Avenue, or R. G. Hendler, of Oakwood Avenue.

Just to Get Acquainted

We want every smoker to know the purpose and principle of the United Cigar Stores. We want to convince him that there is a different and better way of buying and selling cigars. Being the largest cigar dealers in the world, with hundreds of stores located all over the country, any business man knows that we can buy cheaper than the small dealer, who, at the best, cannot sell but a few thousand cigars a year.

Capt. Marryat (Invincibles)
6c. each. $6.00 per 100.
The kind you pay $10.00 per hundred for.

Palma de Cuba (Londres)
6c. each. $6.00 per 100.

Palma de Cuba (Bouquet)
5c. each. $5.00 per 100.
Almost a Puritano in size. Cuban grown tobacco of the best grade. Regular 10 cent quality.

General Braddock (Diplomaticos)
6 for 25c. 25 for $1.00.
A mild, delightful smoke. Equals any three-for-a-quarter cigar you ever smoked.

We do not believe there is a discriminating smoker who cannot be pleased with one of the Big Four. If there is we can please him with something else. Come in and get acquainted.

REMAINS OF SENATOR QUAY LAID IN LAST RESTING PLACE

tary, Bromley Wharton, to Beaver. They were at once driven to the Quay residence. Immediately afterward private services were held over the remains of the senator. These services were attended by the members of the family and the following relatives and close friends of the senator:

Gov. Pennypacker, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Franks, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Waters, Col. and Mrs. Samuel Moody, Marshal and Mrs. Stephen P. Stone, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Harrah, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lyon, William Montgomery, Bromley Wharton, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Wilson, Miss Anna Minnis, Mrs. William Dunn, Dexter Thayer and Walter Merrick, naval officer of the port of Philadelphia.

The services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Ramsay and were quite brief. He read a passage of scripture, made a short address and offered a prayer. There was no singing. After the service the family looked for the last time on the face of a dearly loved husband and father. It was hard to surrender the remains to the public. Finally at 10:35 the black casket was carried out of the house to the waiting hearse. A half square away several thousand people had been standing for an hour ready to take their place in the solemn line that was to file past the open coffin. With uncovered heads the great assemblage stood while the body was carried between a line of Pittsburgh blue coats into the First Presbyterian church. As soon as the remains were in the edifice the doors were closed and the members of G. A. R. post 473 took charge. It was 10:45 before the church doors were opened for the waiting thousands. In the meantime the casket was draped in the colors of the post.

Many Floral Offerings.

The remains were placed just beneath the pulpit. Banked on the entire altar and almost hiding from view the massive pipe organ were the many floral tributes sent by men and organizations in all parts of the country. From the president came a wreath of American Beauty roses and peonies. The United States senate sent a wreath of white roses and lilies of the valley. The tribute from Senator Penrose was almost a duplicate of the senate's offering.

At the head of the coffin was a wreath of white carnations; at the foot was a circle of lilies of the valley; they were sent by the grandchildren of the senator.

The Masonic fraternity of St. James lodge sent an appropriate design. Another came from the G. A. R. The one hundred and thirty-fourth Pennsylvania volunteers was commanded by Col. Quay. The survivors of this regiment paid their tribute with a floral offering. I. W. Durham of Philadelphia sent a fac-simile of a withered oak. From Charles Seger, one of the leaders of the Philadelphia Republican organization came a wreath of orchids, sweet peas, roses and lilies of the valley. Congressman George A. Caster of the Quaker city, contributed an exact duplicate of the Seger offering.

There was a hundred other floral tributes but the ones given above were the only offerings which could be identified. There were dozens of American Beauty roses. A favorite contribution was a bouquet of 71 of them, one for each year of the senator's life. The choir loft was almost totally screened by American Beauty roses and palms.

Wore Medal of Honor Emblem.

The body of the senator was clothed in black. In his tie was a little pin emblematic of the Masonic fraternity. In the left lapel of his coat was a knot of red, white and blue ribbon. To be permitted to wear this has fallen to the lot of few of the millions of men in the United States. It was a simple reminder that the senator was a medal of honor man. For conspicuous bravery on the battlefield of Fredericksburg, the congress of the United States had voted him a medal. On the smaller finger of the left hand was a plain gold ring of an old, old design. The thought came that it might be a mother's wedding ring.

Even though disease had racked the body of the man, it had not changed the features of the silent statesman. When his old friends looked into that face, they found the old expression there. If anything they were reminded a little of the man of other years rather than the Quay of more recent times. One could write of strong men standing at the bier with tears trickling down their cheeks. Many of them did not want to move away, and for an instant blocked the silent mass of humanity that was constantly pushing toward the casket. Just before the coffin was closed for a last time this afternoon, former Chief Justice Edward M. Paxson, led by ex-Gov. W. A. Stone, said farewell. It was plain that the aged jurist was greatly affected.

Old Soldiers Guard Him.

Joseph Moody, commander of the Beaver post, had charge of the guard of honor that watched by the bier while the body laid in state. Most of the veterans were dressed in uniforms and some of them did their round of duty supported by crutches. These were the details taking their turn at standing at the head and foot of the coffin and guarding the entrances:

Philip Crowl, Capt. James May, Frank Grim, Capt. W. H. Bricker, W. H. Bratton, Representative E. F. Mansfield, Isaac Miner, James Forbes, O. C. Matthews, Lemuel Edgar, W. R. Gibson, James Crotty, Stephen Minor, O. A. Bradley, D. D. Pugh, Z. O. Barnes, Robert Overton, Joseph Fisher, Isaac Umstead, J. W. Caughey, J. P. Ross, Thomas Cook, Robert Anderson, Clark Hunter. Comrades Umstead and Caughey fought with Col. Quay in the One Hundred and Thirty-fourth regiment.

When 1 o'clock came hundreds of men and women had not had an opportunity to look upon the face of the senator. To gratify these people the time was extended until 1:30. During that extra half hour a great many persons passed through the church. During the entire time that the remains were lying in state many thousands of men and women filed by the bier.

Many Go to Beaver.

The trains during the morning brought a great many people to Beaver. Between 1:30 and 2 o'clock the two special trains from the east and Pittsburgh deposited several hundred men of prominence in state politics in the town. Shortly before 2 o'clock Col. Samuel Moody arrived at the church with Gov. Pennypacker, W. A. Patton, assistant to President Ernest of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company; James McCrea, first vice president and Joseph Wood, second vice president of the Pennsylvania Company; Robert Pitcairn, President's assistant to President Cassatt in Pittsburgh; Congressman George F. Huff of Greensburg and Mr. Wharton. These were the first men seated in the church. In a short time Lieut. Gov. William M. Brown arrived and was seated near the governor.

The main doors of the church were not opened until the services were over. Those who had a right to be within the church were admitted at the side entrance. In a short time the various delegations arrived. These were representatives of the various departments of the United States and state governments. In addition to the members of the Beaver county bar, there were a number of the prominent citizens of Beaver. There are 620 seats in the church and there were not more than 40 people standing. H. G. Samson, the Pittsburgh undertaker, had charge of the arrangements. He had assisting him as ushers: C. C. McCord, John K. Woolslair, W. H. Harper, E. P. Kuhn and G. C. McJunkin.

Opening of the Services.

While the people were assembling in the church, the organist played a large. It was 2:35 o'clock when the quartet of the Christ Methodist Episcopal church of Pittsburgh opened the services by singing. During the services they sang "Lead, Kindly Light," "Abide With Me" and "Some Sweet Day." When the quartet had rendered its first selection the Rev. Dr. Fields of the Beaver Christian church read the 103d Psalm. He was followed in the offering of this prayer by the Rev. Dr. Appleton Bash of the Beaver Methodist church:

Almighty God; our most merciful Heavenly Father, unto whom all hearts are open, all desires known and from whom no secrets are hid, cleanse the thoughts of our hearts by the inspiration of Thy holy spirit that we may perfectly love Thee and worthily magnify Thy holy name through Jesus Christ our Lord. We worship and adore Thee as the creator of all things. We thank Thee that Thou hast made man in Thine own image and after the likeness of Thy one begotten son. Above all we thank Thee for the manifestation of Thy love in the gift of Thy son Jesus Christ to be the propitiation for our sins and for the sins of the whole world. We praise and bless Thy name that He has brought life and immortality to light and that the blood of Jesus Christ Thy Son cleanseth us from all sin. Behold, O Lord, Thy children prostrate before Thee with grief. We bow to Thy will, we yield to Thy law. Thou speakest and we are created. Thou takest away our breath, we die and return to the dust in death as in life Thou art present to bless and will turn to life that is everlasting. And now, Father, as Thou has taken away from us he who has been the guide and leader of the destinies of this commonwealth for a generation; he who was such a fortress and strong tower to so many, grant us grace to lead such godly and righteous lives that we may be an help on our state that the affairs in such purity of purpose and singleness of aim that we may attain that height of prosperity when the nations of the world will fain exclaim, "Righteousness exalteth a nation."

Prayers for the Living.

Bless, O God, our Father, the president and his cabinet. Endow them with wisdom from on high. Bless the senate and the house of representatives; may they, in this solemn hour, learn that man passeth as the flower flourisheth, but that God and righteousness abideth forever. Bless its governor and all in authority over us, within the boundaries of our own beloved Pennsylvania. Be pleased, O merciful God, our loving Father, to remember those to whom hath come great grief and sorrow. Thy word is full of consolation for the widow and the orphan. Bless the wife and children of our deceased brother; especially in great tenderness look down upon her who for a lifetime walked by his side in sunshine and in storm, and whom Thou hast been her guide from her youth, her divine Saviour. Bless the children. Grant unto them grace to feel the responsibility of inheriting the fame of their father, and may they so live as to add luster to the name for humanity's sake. We pray for those of his own and other races, who for years shared his bounty, and now shall see his face no more. For all the lowly and broken to whom he showed kindness and love, whose right hand knew not what his left hand did. And while we pray for ourselves, we also pray for those who in other places are lifting their cry, to Thee for comfort because prince and leader hath fallen in Israel. Sanctify, blessed Saviour, this dispensation of affliction to all those who were his companions in the discharge of public trusts, and all this commingled with him; to all those who labored with him in public affairs, that they may be warned and inspired to high endeavor and noble living. May this day be rich to us in the gain of heavenly truth. And now, Oh God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, maker of all things, judge of all men, we humbly pray to us, that Thy name be known upon earth, Thy saving health among all nations, and bring us to everlasting life, through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

Dr. Ramsay delivered the funeral oration. He was closely followed by the audience. In his address Dr. Ramsay dealt with the life of the dead senator from the cradle to the grave. The oration is published in full in another part of The Gazette.

The Rev. Dr. R. P. Miller of the United Presbyterian church made the closing prayer. It was during his offering that the prettiest part of the services was introduced. When the preacher said, "and He who taught us to pray," there was just a pause for an instant, and then came the faint, sweet tone of the pipe organ and from the choir loft was heard the quartet softly chanting the Lord's prayer. The effect was beautiful. The singers were Miss Alice M. Eastman, soprano; Miss Geraldine Dumon, contralto; Frederick I. Day, tenor, and Frederick W. Cutler, bass. Edward J. Herrington was the organist.

There was a moment's hush after the chanting of the prayer and then the quartet sang its closing selection.

Old Friends Say Farewell.

Dr. Ramsay announced that those who had not had an opportunity to see the dead senator would be allowed to view the remains. Most of the men in the church had come from the east and from Pittsburgh on the special train. They filed by the bier and out into the street.

When the church had been emptied, the casket was carried to the hearse by these pallbearers: Senator Penrose, John P. Elkin, Col. Moody, William Montgomery, Stephen P. Stone, J. R. Harrah, Thomas S. Bigelow and George T. Oliver.

The congressional and Pennsylvania legislative state officials and other governmental delegations acted as an escort to the body. Behind the hearse came the carriages containing the family and close friends of the senator. The members of the family did not attend the public service.

Rain started to fall just as the services in the church were concluded. It is over a half mile to the cemetery and both sides of the street for the entire route was lined with people, who bared their heads as the funeral procession passed. Most of these people followed the cortege to the cemetery.

Two wagons ladened with the flowers that had been banked about the altar in the church were hurried to the cemetery, reaching there long before the funeral procession arrived. The Quay burial lot is near the center of the burial ground. It was roped off in order to keep the crowd from interfering with those who had a sad duty to perform.

The bounty of the grave was completely hidden by flowers and green plants. When the flowers from the church arrived, they were banked at one side of the grave. On the mounds marking the resting place of the father and mother of the senator and of the five children and a niece, floral offerings were placed. Carpets were laid from the entrance to the lot to the side of the grave. Capt. Teeters had hurried his squad of policemen to the cemetery, so that they could keep the crowd within the limits alloted to it. Every detail was attended to in sufficient time before the first carriage of the funeral procession came in sight of the grave. An immense crowd was gathered in the cemetery.

Col. Quay Laid to Rest.

When the carriages containing the senators and congressmen arrived, the legislators were taken within the enclosure and the other delegations gathered about the ropes. When the hearse reached the entrance of the Quay lot, a heavy rain was falling. While the casket was being borne to its resting place, there was a continuous rumble of thunder. It sounded like the distant firing of artillery. The sounds continued during the brief burial service.

Drs. Ramsey and Bash conducted the services. They consisted of the reading of the committal service and the offering of a prayer. The funeral party was then hurried to the carriages.

Before many of them were in the dry, the storm increased its fury. Water fell in torrents and the thunder was accompanied by lightning. The heavy fall of rain continued for almost an hour.

The grave of Senator Quay is in the opposite corner of the burial plot from where his parents rest. The grave is seven feet deep, six feet long and three feet wide. The casket in which the senator was buried was lined with zinc. In the bottom of the grave was placed a cement case which was tightly sealed after the casket had been deposited.

Honored Memory of Quay.

BEAVER FALLS, PA., May 31.—(Special)—Business generally was suspended here this afternoon out of respect to the memory of the late Senator Quay. Flags were at half mast and bells were tolled during the funeral.

CLAIM THAT NO DEATH MASK OF QUAY WAS MADE

The report was current yesterday evening in Beaver that a death mask of Senator Quay had been made. This statement was positively denied by Percy Samson of the undertaking firm which had charge of the late senator's remains. The use of the mask, as is well known, is to obtain accurate reproduction of the features for use of the sculptor.

by his faithful daughters, he was carefully reading a history of the Jesuit missions among the Indians and was taking notes. And from this the latest evidence of his love for literature we may look back more than three-score years to his preacher father, lovingly setting his boy's brain to work toward the best of literary ideas.

But his early home was not simply the effect of education and refinement. It was also one of piety. His parents trained him in the Word of God. He was taught the catechism, the Ten Commandments were woven into the very web of his brain. In popular judgment perhaps this feature of training was not produced in the child's life as clearly as the educational one, but it was just as real, if not apparent.

As I study the public career of this remarkable man, who now lies in death before us, you will have noticed that he was always on the right side of all great moral questions. He was opposed to the stupendous evil of intemperance, calling for stricter measures to prevent the Indians from obtaining intoxicants and securing the legislation he desired. When the Chicago fair wished to throw open its gates on the Lord's day he opposed it most earnestly, though the financiers said that the success of the fair depended on it. The politicians said it would be impolitic. He stood firm, however, though some of his fellow legislators jeered at him for the seeming unpatriotic view of the time and labored strenuously for the Christian Sabbath. But none of these things moved him. He stood his ground for God's day and fought and won. When Christian principles were in peril in the days of the Boxer movement he worked earnestly and conscientiously at the seat of government to have these godly men and women rescued and their work saved.

Always Stood For Right.

Again we go back to the humble home of Senator Quay's early life and pay a just tribute to his Christian parents' memory. The divine truth they loved and taught grasped their boy and held the man amid the surgings of his tumultuous life. Loyal to the great principles of his country's government and through him the parents, now silent in the dust, reached their country, making us feel that it was safest to anchor America to Sinai.

In considering the life of our friend, that which at first attracts our attention is his masterful political life. He had a genius for statecraft and a taste for political genius. He seemingly loved politics as the scientist loves nature, and he studied politics as a system with corresponding assiduity. He mastered its philosophy. He knew how its principles worked and its practical operations. He was famed for his ability; familiar with all the difficulties and methods of details. His steadily advanced until he was recognized as the political major general of the United States. None of us feel competent to comment on this chosen field of his life or to correctly find out the faculties and characteristics that made him so conspicuous as a leader of men. But success in any department is always interesting, and every common man, as the commonest man studies it, can see some of the more prominent causes that lead to it. In Senator Quay some things leading to his success are very apparent. He was a skilled student of human nature. He knew men and knew how to fit the man in the right place. He could attach his followers so closely to him that they were glad merely to toil for the sake of his commendation.

Peerless as an Organizer.

He knew how to discipline men to carry out his plans and was simply peerless as an organizer. He was always fertile in expedients and peraletent in following them out. His singleness of purpose was marked. The Puritan cry, "This one thing I do," was his motto, and with an energy that never seemed to lose an ounce of momentum he drove toward his goal and generally reached it. He could spring surprises on men, the meaning of which was known neither to friend nor foe. We can consider these things today from purely the standpoint of intellectual judgment.

The great flank movement he executed in the Harrison campaign in New York aroused the wonder of politicians in that great city. I was living there at the time and heard through the campaign. They were astounded, especially when they saw that the great publicity of his frank movement was its great disguise. But with all these advantages, he might have failed had he not possessed a mind of marvelous comprehensiveness. It is doubtless true that this state of Pennsylvania, with all its activities and the forces working in them was as clearly seen by his mind, by his mental eye as he sat in his study, as was the chess board and its pieces seen years ago by the blind chess player, Paul Morphy.

It is wonderful that this marvel of a man should hold his own through these many years in which the loss of leadership was often imminent under factional conflict, detraction and the insidious undermining of envy, and faultless at the head of the column, sword in hands, the undisputed master of the situation. But Senator Quay was more, much more, than what the world calls a politician. He was a statesman, slowly reaching a history of the Jesuit missions among the Indians and was taking notes. And from this the latest evidence of his love for literature we may look back more than three-score years to his preacher father, lovingly setting his boy's brain to work toward the best of literary ideas.

REV. DR. J. S. RAMSAY PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO THE DEAD SENATOR

History Will Confirm Judgment.

I am persuaded that in the future as history is made, in the careful research of schools who only desire to observe the truth, this judgment will be affirmed and posterity will know even better than we do how largely Senator Quay's wise counsels helped to shape and advance the best legislation in the history of our beloved country. As we regard him in the great business of his life in the fullness of his most prolonged and intense activity we see that he showed singular characteristics which would have made him a commander of any department of this world's activity. He seemed to have much of the energy of Hamilton, the resourcefulness of Frederick the Great and the inscrutable devices of Napoleon Bonaparte.

But we turn aside for a brief moment from his professional life to regard the man himself, in his persona, character and disposition. In these qualities we will find, I think, much to admire. Let us here in this solemn hour to paint the dead senator's life in colors only mixed by a partial and heated imagination. We believe him to be great in all essentials, great intellectual and moral being, but we frankly admit that he had his failings and frailties. Were I to make any other claim I could almost fancy those stern lips closed in the sternest rigidity of death would part to protest.

He was too honest in life to admit even all the virtues which his friends knew he possessed, to take advantage of his death to state what he would not allow were he living. We simply try to tell the truth when we speak of those personal characteristics which were so well known to his family and intimate friends; other things may lie in abeyance. He was a kindly man. Senator Quay, although I will admit, had a great mind, but his heart was also great. You have read of how he helped the Indians, and of how he stood for the commercial interests of the state to which pleaded for his life. How it carries you back and makes you think of the broad-minded, tender-hearted Lincoln. But these were mere outcroppings of his generous spirit that responded to even the slightest cry of weakness or distress.

Always Ready to Help.

There are many in this house who would speak if they could and tell how again and again he has put out his hand to help them out of the ditch and put them on their feet. Again he was a man of good moral principle. He was clean in regard to those habits that so often sully the soul and soil the purity of a common man, as the commonest man studies it, can see some of the more prominent causes that lead to it. But Senator Quay was more, much more, than what the world calls

Mr. Quay said: "I have many friends to remember; I have no enemies to punish. In this regard I am safe in the past." I believe he meant just what he said. An intimate friend of the senator's told me that no matter how anyone wronged him, if they came back in friendly spirit Quay would not wait for any needless humiliation or any extensive expressions of regret, but would extend his hand and forgive and forget, and wipe out the past and treat the restored one as if he had never gone away.

Mr. Quay was a courageous man. This was not only shown when as a young soldier he went forth to battle for the life of his land, but in all those subtler fields of conflict where principles become the targets for the silent shots of unseen batteries. You know how he would stand by his convictions and his methods and by him whenever friends were failing and foes exultant. Like Andrew Jackson, he did not know when he was defeated, but fought on with terrible tenacity until the defeat, to the surprise of all, broke into a victory all along the line.

But Mr. Quay was also marked specially by his devotion to his family. This was not put up for show in the flare and excitement of political activity, but it was always in his heart. And when there was a lull in the battle he hurried to Beaver to rest his heart in his home, there to be refreshed and strengthened in the loyal and tender love of wife and children. And we think that in this little town, after all, perhaps more than in any other place of you who have come from afar and met him as the great political captain or officially as a senator.

Here politics made no difference. We knew him as the lover of this town, and the friend of every one in it who needed his help. We loved him for his love for us. One who has known him long and well wrote the utterance of when he was dying, these words: "There are citizens here who have always differed politically from Senator Quay, have never shared his secrets and have never sympathized with his political defeats, and yet have loved the man for a generation on account of his bright intellect, his charming personality and his undisputed nobility of heart." The mourning of the citizens of Beaver for the death of their distinguished townsman will be unanimous, sincere and heartfelt.

It was natural when this strong man felt that his life was ebbing away that his yearning cry was "Carry me back quick to Beaver, that I may die there, and come to his help all his failing energy. Under this strain of his indomitable will he reached Morgana, where his beloved and only brother resided. Here for a while he seemed to grow better and hopes revived. But Mr. Quay himself was not deceived. He knew the end was hastening. He made his last great effort to get home. A daily paper quotes these lines from Goldsmith in his deserted village and they assuredly voiced the deepest feeling of the senator's soul as he struggled to get home:

"In all my wanderings around this world of care,
In all my griefs—and God has given my share—
I still had hopes, my latest hours to crown,
Amid these humble bowers to lay me down.
And keep the flames from wasting, by repose;
I still had hopes, for pride attends us still—
Amidst the swains to show by book-learn'd skill,
Around my fire an evening group to draw,
And tell of all I felt and all I saw;
And as a hare, whom hounds and horns pursue,
Pants to the place from whence at first she flew,
I still had hopes, my long vexations past,
Here to return and die at home, at last."

God granted his heart's prayer. When weak and tottering, he stood in his home in a glow of satisfaction lighted up his face. And as he sat here in his easy chair, he looked up at the portraits of his parents on the wall, and as he gazed, I wonder if those eyes are looking down at me now, as when he grew weaker he said one day, "Come into my library," and when there he looked long and lovingly at the books that for so many years had been his silent companions and spoke to them. He asked to be turned to the window. Looking wistfully out at the green trees and the bright flowers which he loved so well, he plaintively remarked, "Oh, this is a very beautiful world to leave," and before many hours the great man had left it.

We leave him now in the hands of his father's God. We soon will lay his body under the grass in the grave, but the memory of his life still abides. We hand him to you, his friends, to keep for us.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CLEVELAND, May 31.—Arrangements have been made to close most of the bar iron and bar steel mills of the country July 1. They will resume business when the purchases of that material will warrant, or when some of the surplus has been worked off. The closing order leaves it understood that the number of men forced into idleness will not be less than 15,000, and may possibly reach 20,000.

The bar situation in this territory has been subject to wild fluctuations for the past four or five months. At times bar buying here was of such proportions that, while the rest of the market seemed to be on the down grade, bar steel and bar iron were marked up. That arose largely from the fact that Northern Ohio has been one of the strongest consumers of bars, the finishing plants here taking an enormous amount of this material. Recently, however, the bar business eased off remarkably, and in some quarters has practically stopped. The agricultural implement works, which have been strong consumers of steel bars, have been forced to ease up on their production of machinery because of the partial failure of crops in this section.

Prices have not broken largely because it has been apparent that in bar iron the cost of production has been pretty close to the selling price. Since the steel mill men, however, have come to the conclusion that they cannot sell the output of their mills unless they make a reduction in price, many of them have decided to shut down rather than produce the material at a loss.

CRUSADE CONTINUES.

The Allegheny police yesterday arrested five women charged with fortune-telling and locked them up in central station. Their names are: Mrs. Henrietta Meyer, No. 419 Federal street; Camilla Horner, No. 205 Anderson street; Mrs. J. Werner, No. 911 Federal street; Mrs. George Clark, No. 210 Sandusky street, and Mrs. Mack, No. 201 Montgomery avenue. Elizabeth Hower, of No. 119 Federal street, was arrested for selling liquor without a license.

The arrests were made by Detectives William Speer and John King. The women will get hearings this morning.

Outlet for Chartiers Street to River.

The surveys committee of Allegheny councils last night favorably recommended the ordinance providing for the opening of Chartiers street under the Pittsburgh & Western railroad tracks. The street in its improved condition will reach the Ohio river with a 64 foot opening under the railroad tracks.

Indian's Tribute to Senator Quay

Indian Village,

Our Red Tag furniture sale

Now in progress, is an annual event anxiously looked forward to by our patrons who profit considerably by it. Half prices prevail in many instances on the most desirable goods—think of it—$10 for a $20 piece of furniture—or $20 for a $40 piece, and so on.

KAUFMANN'S

Free exhibition New York Harbor

This is the last week of the New York Harbor exhibition. Do not fail to see it. It is a grand and most realistic panorama scene showing the harbor of America's metropolis at day and night. This picture is worth coming many miles to see.

Sale of the Stock purchased at the Sweetser-Pembrook auction and our Anniversary Trade Festival

King's machine thread, 1c
No need to dwell on this offer—every woman knows that King's cotton is good cotton. Every spool contains full 200 yards—To prevent dealers from buying up this thread, not over 1 dozen spools will be sold to a customer.

Woven Scotch madras, 17c
Sweetser, Pembrook & Co.'s wholesale price for this madras was 32½c. Bear in mind this is not the printed cloth, but the double width best woven genuine Scotch madras. All are white grounds and neat woven stripes in various colors.

LEAGUE GAMES TODAY.

Chicago at Philadelphia.
Cincinnati at New York.
St. Louis at Boston.

That the St. Louis team has beaten the Brooklyn club out of its title to being the hoss hammakers was demonstrated again yesterday when the postponed game which had been arranged to be played had to be called off. The occasion of the Cardinals' first visit here the entire series had to go over because of rain, and the same thing would have happened this time had it not been for the persistent efforts of Umpire Kane in forcing the teams to play through the downpour on Decoration day and thereby disgusting a large number of the patrons of the game.

The players on the field were quite lively as ever, not one of them showing any ill effects of the rain and mud baths of Monday. This was somewhat of a surprise, as the owner of the local club had a lot of cripples and was downright angry over the action of the umpire. After the game on Monday Manager Clarke complained of a sore leg, and Umpire Kane thought some of the other players, notably Phillippe, would be on the sick list, but he was agreeably surprised to find them all on hand yesterday as chipper as the same number could be. The same was also true of the St. Louis players, much to the delight of Manager Nichols.

Both teams left last night for the east, the Pirates going to Brooklyn, where they open their first eastern trip of the season, and the Cardinals were headed for Boston. The trip of the St. Louis team is on the hurry-up order, as the club must be on hand to be made to reach Boston at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and the players will have to dress on the train and proceed right to the ball park from the depot. The Pirates are more fortunate, as they will, if everything goes right, reach their destination early this morning.

Manager Clarke took his string of players along with the exception of Pitchers Lee and Scanlan, who were left at home with instructions to be ready to join the team at a moment's notice. It was stated yesterday that the reason Manager Clarke left Lee and Scanlan was been due to the pitcher's lack of control and not because of a loss of faith in his pitching ability. The case of Lee is somewhat of a mystery, as the club owner is undecided just how to act. The matter is up to Manager Clarke, and it may be that the left-hander will be kept at home for a time, as he is in doubt as to his batting ability, and in case his arm comes around all right all the better.

It was thought that Pitcher Lynch and Infielder Stankard, the college players, who belong in New England, would join the team when it reaches Boston, but such is not the case, both remaining with the team until it returns home on the 18th of this month. Manager Nichols, who for many years trained the Harvard college players, stated yesterday that he would like to get Lynch, having seen him work often, and he regards him as the greatest pitcher ever turned out by a college team. Nichols says Lynch is not only a good pitcher, but a fine batter and a splendid fielder. He also imparted the information that he had been hot on the trail of Lynch, wanting him for his St. Louis club.

Amongst the visitors at the headquarters yesterday was Mike Grady, the veteran catcher, who is with the Cardinals. Discussing the enforcement of the balk rule, Grady said that the impression among fans was that it was the pitchers who would suffer the greatest handicap, but he took exception to this and said the real sufferers are the catchers, who are forced to work much more shrewdly than heretofore in order to keep down base stealing, which tells along against the catcher. Grady furnished an illustration which he stated that in games now he averages five throws to second, as against one under the old conditions. He also stated that under the present order of things he would have to make more throws by the catchers for the reason that the base runners get such a big lead that the throws must be quick, and catchers have no time to take aim.

Secretary Locke is authority for the statement that under the new pitching rules Sam Leever has become a much steadier twirler than he ever was before. This seems strange in view of the fact that at the start of the season the schoolmaster was guilty of many balks, and it was thought that would take him much work under the new rules. Since mastering the new style Leever has been steadier than ever before. Secretary Muckenfuss of the St. Louis team said that while Leever had practically ruined Joe Corbett, who cannot do any effective work under them.

Before departing for the east last night, Manager Clarke stated that the report published yesterday to the effect that the probability of securing another player for first base, as Bransfield's work has been unsatisfactory, was absolutely untrue. "Kitty" has had a touch of luck," said Clarke. "And I said him off for a few days just to see if his luck would not change. I regard Bransfield as one of the very best first-basemen in the business and I emphasize that he is good enough for the Pittsburgh team and will remain as one of its members."

BATTLE OF PITCHERS.

TRINITY HALL TO COMPETE INSTEAD OF W. & J.

School Athletes Are Actively Preparing for Championship Meet Friday Afternoon.

The entries for the championship school field meet at Friendship park on Friday are all in and in the hands of the program printer. Trinity Hall school of Washington has entered a team in place of Washington and Jefferson academy. The academy boys could not come on account of examinations. Shadyside has a smaller list of athletes entered than some of the other schools, but the men are all old campaigners and will carry off many points. McCutcheon of Shadyside and Captain Barnard of Kiski will have a merry tussle in the hammer throw. Both boys handle the heavy weight well. It looks like a new record in that event will be scored.

High school and Kiski lead the list in the number of contestants entered. Kiski will have 68 entries and High school 79. Several of the local school's baseball men, who could not go to Washington on account of the Shadyside game, will be entered. Bialas will start in the dashes and hurdles. Henning will use the weights and do the jumps. Wallace Johns can do nine feet in the pole vault and Dave Johns thinks he is pretty good in the half mile. "Midget" Spuhler will be a star attraction in the hurdles. If he can't go over them he can run under.

The Kiski team is practically the same as that which won Saturday at Washington. "Big" Seaton, the football star, will add material strength to the team. He is entered in the springs and weights. Parker and Caughey, too, are fast men.

Joe Thompson will bring a formidable bunch up from Beaver Falls. He has a list of 40 entries. Trinity Hall and Allegheny Prep school have a smaller list of athletes, but some good ones are among the number. Reiter and Tustin of the Preps are good at several events.

The big fight for first place in scores of events may bother the officials. There are nearly 30 in the quarter and half. These events, too, are too hard on the boys in heats. Everything will be run off promptly and on schedule.

The entries received for the meet and the numbers for the schools follow:

Pittsburgh High school—
1, Worrell; 2, C. Harper; 3, E. Harper; 4, Thompson; 5, Bialas; 6, Bowling; 7, P. Johns; 8, Halferty; 9, Scott; 10, Keenan; 11, Cahill; 12, D. Corbett; 44, Bowers; 45, Barnhart; 46, Barnes; 47, Parker; 48, J. Corbett; 49, Harris; 50, Walker; 51, Jamison; 52, Kirk; 53, Dickie; 54, Ehrenfeld.

Beaver High school—

Allegheny Prep. school—
72, Reiter, 100 yards and broad jump; 73, Fleming, 220 yards; 74, Tustin, 440 yards, pole vault; 75, Murphy, half mile and shot put; 76, Fahnestock, mile run.

Trinity Hall—
80, Wagner; 81, Gardner; 82, Jewell; 83, Harter; 84, Neff; 79, Dick.

As soon as the weather permits Capt. Price will get his Shadyside academy players in shape again for the game with Cascadella school.

The All-Interscholastic baseball team has been picked, but Capt. Price will not announce it for a few days. The opening game with Indiana Normal, June 15, at Indiana, will be pitched by Shultz, of Shadyside, if Price does not come home from Princeton in time to pitch it. Shultz would then pitch one of the Westminster college games.

LEW MOREN TO PITCH.

Homestead Crack to Oppose P. A. C. This Evening at Friendship Park.

P. A. C. will play Homestead at Friendship park this evening. Nine innings have been played in all the twilight games at Friendship park, and this event will be started exactly at 6 o'clock, so that a full game can be played.

H. L. A. C. will pitch Lew Moren. A delegation of Duquesne Heights rooters will attend the game to see their favorite pitch his first game in Schenley park. Manager Mamie Wentz pitched the comedy game in the mud at Sharon on Monday so as to save Bill Rankin for today.

P. A. C. will line up: Shettler, catcher, Rankin, pitcher; McClaren, Soffel, Harkins, Nixon, and possibly Delehanty, infielders; Callahan, Wetzel and Herold, outfielders.

SHARON, PA., May 31.—(Special.)—Pitcher Ike Lawrence of Pittsburgh today received his release from the Sharon team. Sharon is carrying four pitchers and it was found necessary to let one go. Lawrence pitched two games, winning one.

Walter Eaton, who has been playing on the Rochester team, joined the local club today. He will play second. Mylott of Cleveland, who has been playing short, has also been released, and Clayson, second baseman, will go to short. John Lang of Wilmington, Del., a fielder and catcher, is expected to report here this week. He played with Altoona the last two seasons.

From the Prep. Schools.

East Liberty academy was to play the W. and J. academy yesterday at Washington, but the game was called off on account of the rain. Rain also caused a postponment of the Waynesburg-Ohio Wesleyan game at Waynesburg, but it will be played this afternoon.

The Cascadilla school crew from Ithuca, N. Y., was disagreeably surprised by the Philadelphia Central High school in the race for the school crews Monday on the Schuylkill. High school rowed a sensational race and their time for the course, 7:56, was the best ever made by a schoiastic crew.

Pulliam Denies Cardinals' Protest.

NEW YORK, May 31.—President Pulliam of the National league of baseball clubs today gave out a statement regarding the matter of the protested game between the St. Louis and New York clubs, played at St. Louis May 7, and was won by the latter. He denied the protest of the St. Louis club and the game in question stands as a victory for the New York club.

Lutz Gets the Forfeit Money.

BEAVER FALLS, PA., May 31.—(Special.)—The $100 forfeit posted by Lawrence Lutz of Beaver Falls and Harry Conner of New Brighton, at the time their boxing contest several weeks ago, was awarded to Lutz today after a suit. Each man had posted $50 to weigh in at the ringside the night of the fight at 133½ pounds. Conner weighed in at 133½, but raise the beam. Conner was several pounds heavier and refused to go on the scales. At the close of the 15 rounds Lutz claimed the forfeit, which had been placed in the hands of Wilbur Lecemby, proprietor of the Clyde hotel at New Brighton. Lecemby refused to give the money up. Lutz sued before Justice of the Peace Shuster, and today the Justice gave judgment in Lutz's favor for $100 and costs.

SOCIETY

THE rehearsal for the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Ahl McCook and W. Edgar Reed took place yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, in the Roman Catholic church of the Holy Rosary, in Homewood. The rehearsal was followed at 7 o'clock by the dinner which the parents of the bride-elect, Mr. and Mrs. Willis F. McCook, gave at "Clover Crest," their home in Swissvale. Covers were laid for the members of the bridal party and Mrs. Albert Schmid, the sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Haines Allen Machesney and Mrs. Francis X. Barr. Miss McCook's gift to her maid of honor, her sister, Miss Katherine McCook, was an exquisite little chain bracelet of gold, set with a topaz, ruby, sapphire and an emerald, while each of the bridesmaids received a bracelet set with emeralds and baroque pearls. Each gift rested in a white satin box, lettered in gold with the initials of the recipient. Mr. Reed gave to his best man and ushers carved stick pins of gold. The decorations for the dinner were carried out with pink roses.

Music will be a feature of the wedding this morning. A quartet from the choir of the church of Sts. Peter and Paul will chant the low nuptial mass which will follow the ceremony at 11:30 o'clock. The Rt. Rev. Regis Canevin, coadjutor bishop of the diocese, will perform the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Father Sheedy and the Rev. Father Mulady. The Rev. Father Daniel O'Connell will celebrate the mass and the Rev. Father Miles Sweeney will be master of ceremonies.

The gowns of the bride and her attendant maids will add to the general beauty of the wedding. The bridal robe is an exquisite princess gown of white satin with fell court train. The yoke of duchesse point lace is outlined by a round bertha of the same lace and the sleeves are made full with fluted chiffon and lace. Orange blossoms will fasten the long tulle veil and the bridal boquet will be a shower of white sweet peas, orchids and lilies of the valley. Miss Katherine McCook will wear white chiffon over pink. The bodice of this gown is formed almost entirely of lace, tiny ruffles of white chiffon breaking the fall of lace beneath the round yoke and bertha. The skirt is pleated in long perpendicular effect, each row of three tucks being surmounted by a ruffle of lace. With this will be worn a picturesque lace hat tied with pink plumes and trimmed with white lilacs. The boquet will be waite sweet peas tied with pink tulle.

The hats worn by the bridesmaids are models of simplicity and beauty. Formed of white chiffon, with shirred pink chiffon on the brim, they are trimmed with a long-stemmed pink rose, fastened with tiny rhinestone buckle. The ties are of moire ribbon. White chiffon is worn by the bridesmaids' gowns, the flowing patterned after that of the bride. The skirt cut on the bias, with its fullness at the back are tucked in yoke effect at the waist and are finished with chiffon ruffles of lace. Each bridesmaid will wear a cluster of pink sweet peas tied with pink tulle. Miss Mary McCook will be gowned in lavendar silk voile and lace, while Mrs. Schmid will wear a princess gown of white.

One o'clock is the hour set for the reception, at which Mr. Reed and his bride will receive their friends in the "Clover Crest" drawing room. The room will be decorated with white peonies and quantities of graceful ferns, those colors contrasting prettily with the green walls and the old rose hangings. The wedding breakfast will follow at 1 o'clock, the guests being served in the breakfast and dining rooms and in the library. The bridal party will be seated in the blue room on the second floor, where the decorations will be of white roses.

Few brides of the season have received gifts more magnificent than those seen at "Clover Crest." Tables are covered with china, silver and cut glass and paintings adorn the walls. Mr. and Mrs. McCook gave their daughter a splendid chest of flat silver, another exceptionally handsome chest being included in the collection of gifts.

Mrs. Schmid of Havre, France, and Miss Edna Grafton of Barnesville, O., will be the only out-of-town guests at the wedding. Mr. Reed's father, Dr. John Wesley Reed of Barnesville, being too ill to come on for his son's marriage.

Blairsville College Benefit.

Much interest is being shown in the garden party which is to be held tomorrow afternoon and evening by the Blairsville College club, on the grounds of the First Presbyterian church, Swissvale avenue, Edgewood, for the benefit of the college. The club has a large representation in Pittsburgh, and it is hoped that many friends of the college will be present. The garden party will be in charge of the following committees:

Will Have Large Bridal Party.

In addition to the maid of honor, Miss Ada Sorg, a sister of the bridegroom, and the best man, George McHose of Dayton, O., Miss Grace Wadsworth and Miss Rebecca Ewing of Middletown, O., will have in their bridal party eight bridesmaids and the same number of ushers. The wedding will take place on Monday, June 13, in Christ Methodist Episcopal church, at 8 o'clock. An uncle of the bride, the Rev. Charles Mitchell of Cleveland, O., assisted by the Rev. Dr. Daniel Dorchester, pastor of the church, will perform the ceremony. The bride will be given away by her father, Maj. William Ferris Auil, and her bridesmaids will be Miss Jeannette Nicholson, Miss Marie Rose Wilson, Miss Edith Spear and Miss Margaret Chalfant of this city; Miss Florence Streuver of Erie, Pa.; Miss Clotilde McCullough of Brainard, Minn.; Miss Nannie Kosiur of Manchester, W. Va. The ushers will be Charles L. Auil, a brother of the bride; Laurence Hertzell, Albert Curry, Raymond Price and Frank Shepard of Pittsburgh, Edward Gardner, Middletown, O.; Fred Brown, Baltimore, Md., and Lieut. Pierre Drouillard, U. S. A., of Nashville, Tenn. Owing to the recent death of the bride's grandmother, there will be no reception after the ceremony, and the wedding dinner at the home of the bride's parents in Fifth avenue, Sheffield, will be only for the immediate relatives and most intimate friends.

Luncheon for Miss O'Neill.

Miss Caroline O'Neill, a sister of Mrs. James Speer Kuhn, who has recently come to Pittsburgh to make her home, was the guest of honor at a beautifully appointed luncheon yesterday by Mrs. William Speer Kuhn of Maywood avenue, Shadyside. Covers were laid for 12, the guests including Miss O'Neill, Mrs. Harmar D. Denny, Mrs. Harmon Griffiths, Mrs. Harvey Childs, Jr., Miss Mary Speer, Mrs. J. Dawson Speer, Mrs. James Speer Kuhn, Mrs. William Bacon Schiller, Mrs. William H. Mercur and Mrs. A. M. Speer, Jr. The centerpiece was of yellow roses, and corsage bouquets of the same blossoms were at each place.

Mr. and Mrs. William Speer Kuhn will leave next week for Deer Park, Md., where they have a cottage for the summer. Mrs. Kuhn is now visiting friends in Morristown, N. J., but will start in time to join her sister and the other members of the family on the trip to Deer Park. Mr. and Mrs. James Speer Kuhn will soon open their summer home, "Belle Isle," in Beaumaris, Canada.

Miss Nicholson the Guest of Honor.

Miss Jeannette Nicholson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Nicholson of Fifth avenue, whose marriage to J. Raymond Price will take place June 13, will be the honor guest at a luncheon to be given on Thursday, June 9, by Mrs. W. H. Brown and Mrs. L. H. Barnett of Sewickley. Miss Carrie Rose will also entertain in honor of Miss Nicholson, Miss Grace Auil sharing the honors. The wedding of Miss Nicholson and Mr. Price will be quietly conducted at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Nicholson will give his daughter away, and the only attendants will be Miss Edna Little, maid of honor, and Hugh Fullerton, best man. The Rev. Dr. Daniel Dorchester, Jr., pastor of Christ Methodist Episcopal church, will perform the ceremony at 7 o'clock.

At-Home for Mrs. Kumler.

Mrs. William M. McKelvey and her mother, Mrs. Jeremiah P. E. Kumler of Washington, D. C., received informally yesterday afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock at Mrs. McKelvey's home in Fifth avenue. Mrs. Kumler is spending the week with her daughter and the at-home yesterday was planned to bring together friends who had known her during her former residence in Pittsburgh. Assisting the hostess were Mrs. James Dickson, Mrs. Samuel E. Gill, Mrs. George Hallman, Miss Jane Rea, Mrs. Robert Patterson, Mrs. Graham Wells, Mrs. James I. Buchanan, Miss Ella Lyon, Miss Florence Alrich, Miss Mary Dickey and Miss Jane Peebles.

Will Wed Today.

The wedding of Miss Gertrude Devine Siedle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Siedle, and Adolph H. Behrenberg, will take place this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents in Ridgely street, East End. The Rev. Father Kane of the Roman Catholic Church of the Sacred Heart will officiate, and the only attendants will be a sister of the bridegroom, Miss Dorothy B. Behrenberg, as maid of honor, and a brother-in-law of the bride, Joseph Leahy, as best man. Only the two families will be in attendance. After their wedding trip to St. Louis Mr. Behrenberg and his bride will live in Rural avenue, where they will be at home after July 1.

Athletic Association Was Entertained.

Miss Mary Hall, director of the athletic association of the Pennsylvania College for Women, entertained her pupils and the members of the faculty at a picnic last Saturday afternoon. The party went by car to Aspinwall, where they were taken in a large wagon to the old Ross estate. The place is one of the most beautiful along the Allegheny river and a most delightful day was spent.

Two Hostesses at Euchre.

Mrs. Marshall Brown and Mrs. Cyrus Gray have invitations out for a euchre on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Brown in Liberty avenue. Their guests have been asked to meet Miss Mary Emma Noble, whose marriage to James Wallace Kent will take place June 28. The wedding will be a very quiet affair at the home of the bride in Hoeveler street, East End. Judge and Mrs. Brown expect to spend August at the seashore and will be accompanied by Mrs. Brown's sister, Mrs. W. C. Foster, and her son, William James Foster.

Summer Home in Bethlehem.

Mrs. George A. Macbeth entertained the bridge whist club of which she is a member yesterday afternoon at her home in Amberson avenue, Shadyside. It was the last meeting for this season. The Macbeths will spend the summer in Bethlehem, N. H., where they have a summer home. Miss Anne Macbeth will be the first to leave, expecting to go east next week and make arrangements for her father and mother and sister, Miss Helen Macbeth, to follow about the middle of June.

Wins a New York Bride.

The wedding of Miss Bertha Daniels of 16 East One Hundred and Twentieth street, New York, and Morris Rich of Allegheny will take place this evening at 6:30 o'clock at the home of the bride. After their honeymoon trip, which will include Washington, Philadelphia, Atlantic City and Baltimore, they will be at home after June 30 in Ward street, Oakland.

Notes of Society.

Mrs. Albert Joseph Stauff of Ivy street gave a luncheon and linen shower yesterday in honor of Miss Emma Genevieve Ehrhart, whose marriage to Charles Albert Fritz will take place next Wednesday.

Mrs. A. E. Holderman and her sons, Carl Holderman and Ellis Holderman, are spending the summer at their cottage in Ocean City, Maryland.

AMONG THE CLUBS

New Bath House Opened.

The opening of the new wash-house and baths at Butler and Thirty-fifth streets, Lawrenceville, yesterday, marked a new era for that neighborhood. The managers held an informal reception from 2 o'clock until 5 and the handsome building was visited and inspected by over 300 people. Brief dedicatory exercises were conducted in the large assembly room on the third floor. A short address was made by Mayor Weyman, by the Rev. Dr. H. H. McIlvaine, rector of Calvary Protestant Episcopal church. Refreshments were served informally and the guests were then shown over the building by the managers. Donations of money amounting to more than $250 were received and other donations toward the furnishing of the various rooms have been made previously.

It is intended that the new wash-house and baths shall become a center for social life in Lawrenceville, and for that purpose club rooms for both men and women will be provided, the building, together with the baths and the laundry. The building is the outgrowth of the second-hand clothing bureau established a number of years ago in St. James' Protestant Episcopal church, Penn avenue and Sixteenth street, in which the rector's wife, Mrs. William Thompson, was deeply interested. Henry Phipps, as of old, has contributed $1,000 toward the wash house, and when the scheme was enlarged he offered to pay half the price of the ground, half the cost of erecting the building, and during the first year of its operation half its running expenses.

The building has cost between $50,000 and $60,000. It consists of a basement and three upper stories, is of brick and fronts in Butler street, with a side entrance in Thirty-fifth street. In the basement is the laundry with stationary tubs which will permit of eight women using them at one time, for which they will be charged 5 cents an hour. In the basement is also a large room where the second-hand clothing bureau will be established in a few days. On the first floor are the offices, the men's club room and 20 shower baths for men and boys. The club room is a general reading room as well, and its furnishings consisting of a large table, chairs, and 15 sectional book cases filled with books. Newspapers and periodicals will be placed on the table.

The second floor contains the women's club and reading room, 15 shower baths and two tubs for women's use, a day nursery and baths for the children. The day nursery will not be opened immediately. On the third floor is a large assembly room where 250 people may be seated, the furnishing of the room at present consisting of chairs alone. It will be rented for entertainments, concerts, lectures and also for a lodge room, if it's expected, and will be made as far as possible a meeting place for the people of that portion of Lawrenceville. On the same floor are also the apartments reserved for the use of the superintendent, J. C. Stewart. The entire building is provided with filtered water.

The officers of the board of managers include Mrs. R. C. Dilworth, president; Mrs. H. H. McIlvaine, first vice president; Mrs. John Brown Heron, second vice president; Mrs. Theodore Tonnelle, third vice president; Miss Edsell, recording secretary, and Mrs. Henry B. Birch, corresponding secretary.

Reciprocity Meeting.

The Athena club of Charleroi closed the season last Saturday afternoon with a handsomely appointed reception at the home of Mrs. James S. McKean at Gibsonton, who was assisted in receiving by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Harry C. Daly. A number of nearby clubs were represented by members who gave short talks on topics in which they were most interested. Among thes were Mrs. J. K. Johnston, who told briefly of the good work already accomplished by the newly-organized Charleroi Civic association. Miss Crabbs of California gave an interesting talk on kindergarten work. Miss Shutterly, librarian of the California State Normal school, gave the Athena club some valuable information about securing reference books from the state library. Mrs. George L. Roberts of Pittsburgh, head of the Twentieth Century Civic Society club, of which she is a member, Mrs. Alexander of Monongahela, the newly-elected president of the Conversational club of that city, spoke briefly of her club, and Mrs. Trevor B. Ness of California, told some interesting things about the numerous clubs of which she is a member. The Athene club will suspend its meetings during the summer months and take up the study of Russia the first of October.

Reception to Mrs. Harry Boyd.

Mrs. Harry Boyd, wife of Dr. Harry Boyd, who sailed a few weeks ago for China, will be the special guest of honor at the meeting and reception of the young people's branches of the Missionary societies of the Pittsburgh and Allegheny presbyteries, which will be held this afternoon at the residence of Miss Nannie J. Gilfillan in Thomas boulevard. Mrs. Boyd expects to leave in a few weeks to join her husband in China, where he has been placed in charge of the Kerr sanitarium, the first institution of its kind in the Celestial kingdom. Dr. and Mrs. Boyd were married and went to China just before the outbreak of the Boxers. They then fled to Japan, and later were transferred to Siam. After a short rest in this country Dr. Boyd returned to China a few weeks ago to take charge of the Kerr sanitarium. Dr. Mary Fulton will return to Canton, China, in company with Mrs. Boyd, who is staying with her mother, Mrs. Fullwood, in the East End.

Bishop Bowman Commencement.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Arthur Brasdon, rector of Saint Matthew's church, Homestead, will deliver the annual address before the members of the graduating class of Bishop Bowman institute next Tuesday morning, June 7. The commencement exercises will be conducted in Trinity church, Sixth avenue, at 10:30 o'clock. The graduates this year include Miss Selina Beatrice Boyce, Miss Eva Brownsky, Miss Miriam Taylor Danner, Miss Gertrude and Clea Ottilia Dorrmier, Miss Edna Olga Hofman and Miss Alma Freda Ruske.

Donation at Orphan Home.

The boards of managers of the United Presbyterian Orphans' Home and Memorial hospitals will observe their annual reception and donation day tomorrow. The reception will be conducted in both buildings throughout the afternoon and evening, and the managers will be assisted by the officers of the United Presbyterian Women's association.

New Meeting Place.

The Women's Southern society will hold its meetings next season in the Pittsburgh Conservatory of Music in Dithridge street, Bellefield. The next meeting of the society will be held on Friday afternoon of this week when the members will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Costin, 5514 Homer street.

Picnic for Kindergarten Children.

The annual picnic of the kindergarten of the Sewickley Public school will take place today at the Mt. Sewickley camp grounds. The children will be taken to the grounds in bus wagons and will be taken care of by the teachers, Miss Jessie Harbison and Miss Crow, with some of the mothers.

Women Protest to Councils.

A meeting of the Woman's club of Sewickley was held yesterday at the Edgeworth club house to enter a protest to council against the proposed street car line through the borough of Sewickley. A communication will be addressed to council at the next meeting.

Club Notes.

The regular monthly meeting of the executive board of the Western Pennsylvania branch of the Consumers' league will be held this morning at 10 o'clock in the Twentieth Century club house.

This afternoon the progressive euchre to be given for the benefit of the proposed Soho public bath and wash house will be conducted in the Keystone Bicycle club house, Howe street, East End.

Wages of Shopmen on Old Basis.

The policy of economy that started a couple of weeks ago on the Pennsylvania railroad has extended to the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh. Announcements have been made at Ft. Wayne and Columbus, as well as at Pittsburgh, that the working hours of men in the shops will be reduced in such a way that practically 35 per cent will be cut from the payrolls. The absence of traffic is the particular cause for the change. The cut reduces the wages to about the same point where they were until three years ago.

GET A PIANO FOR NOTHING

INSTRUMENTS ON DISPLAY

A Magnificent Krell-French Upright Piano Given Away In Exchange For An Old Piano Or Organ.

READ THE CONDITIONS.

Your piano or organ has a serial number. If it is an organ, you will find the number on or inside the back of the case. If a square or grand piano, the number is on the soundboard or pin block. If an upright piano, the number is on the frame near the stringing pins.

Send or bring us, plainly written on a card, the name of your piano or organ—its number, your name and occupation and correct address, and the name of the paper in which you saw this advertisement.

The receipt of your card will be acknowledged in the order in which it reaches us.

In our window, 319 Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh, we now have on display a beautiful Krell-French piano, in mahogany case, price $400.

The number of this piano is known to only one person. He has stamped a number in the customary place on this piano, has covered the number so it cannot be seen, and the covering has been securely sealed. This seal will be broken at noon, July 15, 1904, at which time the number of the piano will be announced.

It will then be determined who sent us the card bearing the number NEAREST that stamped on the new $400 Krell-French piano.

The person who may have sent the number nearest that stamped on the new piano can then exchange here his old piano or organ for this new and handsome piano WITHOUT ANY ADDITIONAL COST.

Should there be more than one winning number received, the second one received will entitle the sender to one of our beautiful Chauncey pianos, worth $300.

This contest is open to every owner of an old piano or organ, and it costs you nothing to enter. You have an equal chance to get a magnificent instrument in even exchange for your old piano or organ, regardless of how worthless your old one may be.

We are the oldest music house in Pittsburgh, and our reputation is sufficient guarantee that this contest will be conducted with absolute fairness to each contestant.

An illustration and description of the free pianos will be sent to each contestant when we acknowledge receipt of card.

But don't forget that we shall make the award July 15 and that all cards must be received not later than July 10.

PITTSBURGHERS PLAYING GOLF

SOME BATHING ON THE BEACH

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Young's Ocean Pier.
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 31.

An interesting golf match between amateurs was played yesterday on the links of the Atlantic City Country club at Northfield, when Charles Randolph Mason and Franklin Hendrickson of Pittsburgh, defeated Mr. and Mrs. James H. Norcross of Penn Grove. The scores made were as follows: Mason, 79; Hendrickson, 87; Mrs. Norcross, 84; Mr. Norcross, 86. The forfeit was a supper which was served last evening on the veranda of the Country club. Messrs. Mason and Hendrickson are guests at Rio Grande hotel, and will leave for Pittsburgh on Thursday.

W. F. Dalzen is spending a short time at the Seaside house.

There are two Pittsburghers in Atlantic City who have had cases of sunburn. They are E. J. Murtin and Samuel Wainwright. Until today it has been hot on the beach, and yesterday these two followed the lead of a score of others and went in bathing. The water was a little cold, however, and they spent some time on the beach with the result they have taken on the complexion of South Sea Islanders.

Among the strollers on the esplanade today were Mr. and Mrs. William P. Jack and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis P. Fawcett of Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh guests at the Marlborough house are Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Hurst and Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Farwell.

Edward Dessinger, a noted whip of Paris, who has been a guest at the St. Charles, has gone to the show.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Davenport are at Green's hotel for a week's stay.

W. C. Tibby is spending a few days at the Dunlop.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gray and Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Thorp are sojourning at Young's hotel.

WILLIAM C. LITTLE.

REMARKABLE WORK.

The Equitable's Oldest Agent Still Very Much in the Game.

Edward Agnew, the oldest man in the Equitable's local office, has made a record during the last eight days that will take the younger men a long time to equal. He wrote during the last eight days of May 83 applications for life insurance, every one of which was paid for when the application was made. This means practically 83 policy issues for every working hour of the entire period. It is doubtful if this record was ever equalled by anybody. Mr. Agnew is 75 years of age, but is still active and full of energy.

H. K. Beagle, one of the young men of the office, wrote 83 policies during the month, 23 of which were written during the last eight days.

STOCK MARKET VERY DULL AND PRICES IRREGULAR

Professional Traders Inclined to Be Bullish, but the Public Remained Apathetic—Cotton and Wheat Closed Lower.

By JOHN O. BAGLIN, Financial Editor.

Professional traders returned to Wall street after the triple holiday yesterday inclined to be bullish for a turn at least. As a basis for the better feeling there were the favorable bank statement, the higher London quotations, and the absence of any developments of an unfavorable character since last Friday, when the exchanges closed. The initial transactions reflected the professional sentiment, and nearly everything opened higher. American Smelting led the advance, reaching 83½, the highest mark this year. Amalgamated Copper also opened higher at 51, and Steel preferred opened firm and unchanged at 54. The activity and strength lasted for less than a half hour. On the advance there was selling to take profits, and the market relapsed into dullness, from which there was scarcely any recovery. Smelting lost 1 per cent of its gain and closed at 82¼. Amalgamated Copper turned weak in the late dealings, selling off to and closing at 49⅝. Steel preferred declined nearly a point to 53⅝, and closed at 53¾. The sinking fund bonds after declining to 75¼, recovered to 78⅛. Consolidated Gas declined 1⅝ per cent to 204 and closed at the low set. The remainder of the industrial list was dull. The Eries were the weakest of the railroads, and were later followed by Chicago & Alton. Erie common declined to 22⅞ and the first preferred to 55⅝. The basis for the weakness was the April report of earnings, showing a decrease in net of $293,875, making a total decrease in net earnings for the 10 months of the fiscal year $3,048,958. The stock has been discounting this showing for more than a week, it being known that the comparison would be poor. At the close there was a fractional recovery. Chicago & Alton declined from 36¼ to 35¾ and closed at 35¾. The decline was ascribed to the liquidation of a small amount of stock in a narrow market. Readings held firm and after declining to 43¼, recovered to 43⅝, the opening price and the highest of the day. Reading 1st preferred declined ½ per cent during the early part of the session, and recovered a portion of the loss. Union Pacific, St. Paul and Atchison sympathized with the heaviness of the market in the middle part of the day, but Union Pacific and Atchison recovered, St. Paul closed at the low-est estimated million-dollar fire loss figure. Lackawanna & Western improved the stock, which closed without sale.

The money market remained extremely easy at 1¼ per cent. It is estimated that gold will be shipped to Paris to-day, that being the amount of bars the assay office can furnish by noon. The treasury department has 1,700,000 gold from San Francisco to New York.

Aside from railroad earnings reported for April and for the third week in May, which were generally unfavorable, as expected, there was little news having a bearing upon the stock market. The weekly bulletin of the weather bureau reported good progress in the winter wheat and cotton belts during the past week, but some damage to corn.

The commodity markets were much more active and interesting than stocks. Fluctuations in May corn were rapid and violent, the extremes of 93½ and 98¾ on May wheat occurring during the last half hour of the day. July wheat closed at practically the lowest. There was great activity in July corn, the Chicago house being credited with buying 2,000,000 bushels to cover shorts. Pork was also active and higher, advancing 45@50c a barrel. Cotton sold down to the lowest price of the year and closed near the lowest. Part of the weakness may have been due to the suspension of an old member of the cotton exchange.

On the Pittsburgh stock exchange trading was dull and the tone of the market rather heavy. Pittsburgh Coal common was weak, declining to 14¼, sales of 300 shares. The preferred was a fraction higher at 55, and closed at that price bid. There was a good demand for the dividend scrip, which rallied to 101 and closed at 100½. Crucible Steel preferred declined to 36¾, and closed at 36 bid. The Westinghouse stocks were dull and about steady. Electric selling at 77½, and Airbrake at 128½. There was so little doing in the remainder of the list that it was difficult to exactly describe the tone of the market. While the demand was extremely light, there was no selling pressure.

Local Securities on May.

There were four prominent features to the local security market during the month of May. They were: 1. Dullness in trading, which became pronounced as the month wore along. 2. The declining tendency to industrial stocks, the majority of which closed at net losses. 3. The broadening of the market for bank and trust company shares. 4. The increased demand for and rising tendency in the bond list. The sales of bonds foot up $101,000, and all the active issues advanced. Private transactions in bonds, exclusive of the subscriptions to the $7,000,000 Pittsburgh Coal 5s offered during the month at par and accrued interest, were larger than for any previous month this year. Sixty per cent of the business of the month was contributed by Pittsburgh Coal, Westinghouse Electric, United States Steel and Crucible Steel. The activity in these occurred during the early part of the month. During the past two weeks they were as dull as anything in the market. The largest decline was 10 points in Westinghouse Airbrake. It was sold on account of fear that the extra dividend would be reduced in July on account of the falling off in car building. Pittsburgh Coal was depressed because of the shutting down of mines in consequence of the tie-up of navigation on the great lakes, due to labor troubles. The northwestern markets are pretty well cleaned up of surplus stocks of coal, and as soon as the labor strike on the lakes is adjusted, there will be great activity in the lake coal trade. The decline in United States Steel was based upon fear that the July dividend on the preferred would be reduced, owing to the reaction in the iron trade. The weakness in Crucible Steel followed the sale of the Clairton Steel property to the United States Steel Corporation and the dismissal of the receivers of the former. Crucible Steel stockholders have not yet received any official statement as to the amount of debt which their company had to assume before the transfer of the Clairton to new owners, and rumors that the preferred dividend would be indefinitely postponed pending the liquidation of this debt caused selling of the stock. The weakness in National Fire Proofing was also due to fear that the preferred dividend could not be maintained. Although the sales of Westinghouse Electric exceeded 6,000 shares, the net change for the month was only a small fraction. This has been one of the best supported stocks on the list. The following is a summary of the transactions for May, 1904:

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Between the lines of the comparative report of the Pittsburgh clearing house for the month of May and for the five months of the year to date, printed in another column, may be read the truth regarding the volume of business and speculation. The exchanges for the past month were $165,579,395. This is a decrease of $49,000,000 compared with May, 1903. For the five months of the year to date the exchanges foot up a little more than $801,000,000 a decrease of $231,600,000 as compared with the corresponding period last year. The totals for the month and for the five months are the smallest for any corresponding period since 1900. A great deal of this falling off may properly be ascribed to the shrinkage in speculation and to the absence of large corporation promotions; but much of it is due to contraction in general business, but more particularly to the dullness in the iron and coal trades.

At executor's sale yesterday the seat of the late John T. Patterson in the Pittsburgh stock exchange brought $6,300, a decline of $700 compared with the last previous sale. Robinson Bros. bought.

The tenor of the weekly talks by traffic officials of the railroads was distinctly affected by the bright crop reports, which, if correct, have had some effect in turning the downward tide of railroad traffic in evidence since the middle of April. Some of the roads in the central traffic region are enjoying the benefit of traffic diverted to them by the tie-up of lake traffic, and are making favorable comparisons with May of last year. The percentage of the decrease from last year's traffic has shown a decline from the general weekly past, and for the third week of May the decrease has fallen off but little more than 1 per cent.

It has been finally decided that the Chicago judgment bonds shall be awarded to New York Life and the First National bank and shall be a serial issue, $306,000 expiring January 1, 1907, and a similar amount each year until 1924, all bonds to be dated January 1, 1904. The successful bid was par and accrued interest and a premium of $6,600.

The $10 dividend declared by Calumet and Hecla, which is payable this month will swell the total dividend payments of this company to $35,350,000 on a capitalization of $2,300,000, on which $1,200,000 has been paid in. The Calumet and Hecla mines were consolidated in May, 1871, 33 years ago, and previous to that time the Calumet had paid $500,000 and the Hecla $650,000 in dividends. Each company had 20,000 shares and the consolidated company at the start only had 40,000 shares, in 1872 the capital had been increased to 80,000 shares and in 1880 it further increased to 100,000 shares. The company has about 4,000 shareholders. Its fiscal year ends April 30, and the report for 1903-4 has not been issued. Its reports at the best are meager and convey but little information. Its last statement dated April 30, 1903, showed an excess of assets over liabilities of $6,557,623. Its production is at the rate of 78,000,000 pounds of copper a year, for which it receives the highest market price and its earnings on this production are figured at over $40 a share per year. With its shaft on the Kearsarge lode producing regularly its annual product should run over current figures.

The Paris money market yesterday gave further sign of the satisfaction of its demand for gold, but the price of sterling exchange in New York continued to advance. The possibility of a movement of gold to London direct was discussed. Money was easy in all departments of the money market.

NEWS FROM THE MINES.

The Durango Girl mine made a carload shipment last week and the returns were up to former shipments, as it ran $500 in gold and $108 in silver per ton.

The plans for leasing various blocks of territory in the Ibex properties at Leadville are developing satisfactorily and it will not be long now before several sets of lessees will be working in the group.

Kaiser, Case and Foster, who are working the lower level of the Germania, near Breckenridge, made their first shipment of about 14 tons of ore last week. The ore runs very well in silver, with some gold and lead. The pay streak in the uprise is from a foot to 18 inches wide.

Preparations are going steadily ahead for the installation of the electric plant at the Yak tunnel, says the Leadville Democrat. Preparations include the building of foundations for the machinery which is to be installed at the mouth of the tunnel and in making arrangements inside the tunnel for the electric railway which is to be operated throughout the workings.

The recent find of ore made at a depth of 350 feet in the Ophir, on Raven hill, owned by J. J. Cone, is proving to be a great strike. So far a shoot has been cross-cut for a distance of nine feet, and but one wall is exposed. The rock is literally seamed with sylvanite and roscoilite is very noticeable throughout. While assays of any amount can be secured, the owner has already demonstrated that the entire nine feet of ore, as it is broken, will ship $60 a ton in gold, making it a find of more than ordinary proportions.

The Kansas Company, operating the main shaft of the Rose & Moore property on Battle mountain, has opened a streak of high grade ore at a depth of 400 feet that enriches the vein so that screenings worth $20 per ton are being shipped. The find is now one to the property, and development in it is being pushed.

The grading outfit of the Florence & Cripple Creek Railway Company, while working on those parts of the line very good looking veins in the Little Mildred claim of the Florence Company. As just the top is now exposed, it is conjectural what it will amount to.

J. A. Hayes, president of the Argentum-Juniata Mining Company, confirms the reported strike at Aspen. Mr. Hayes has not been advised of the details of the strike, but says that some of the samples run as high as 5,000 ounces in silver to the ton.

The management of the Dexter Mining Company's properties at Tuscarora, Nev., marketed two lots of ore on yesterday's market. One of these lots, of which there was four tons, gave gold on controls showing as much as 28 ounces in gold, with 600 ounces in silver, while the other, which consisted of a little over 2,000 pounds, showed 10.7 ounces gold, with 41.8 ounces silver.—Salt Lake Tribune.

The Metal Market.

NEW YORK, May 31.—The underwent a very sharp decline in London over the local holiday, and today's cable reported a decline since the closing of the market on last Friday of £2 ios to £122 for spot, and £1 12s 3d for futures. Locally, the market responding to the lower cables, was weak and lower, closing at $27 00@27 37½. Copper was also weak in London, declining 1s 3d for spot and 12s 6d for futures, with both positions closing at £56 7s 6d. Locally copper was unchanged. Lake is quoted at $13 00@13 12½; electrolytic at $12 75@13 00, and casting at $12 50@12 75. Lead declined 1s 3d in London, closing at £11 8s 9d and was quiet, prices a shade lower, being now from $4 25 to $4 45 for jobbing lots out of store. Spelter advanced 3s in London, closing at £22 5s, while it remained steady here at $4 87½@5 00. Iron closed at 51s 6d in Glasgow and at 45s 6d in Middlesboro. Locally iron was unchanged. No. 1 foundry northern is quoted at $14 75@15 25; No. 2 foundry northern at $14 25@14 75; No. 1 foundry southern and No. 1 foundry southern soft at $13 50@13 75. Pig iron warrants nominal at $13 25.

Foreign Money Markets.

LONDON, May 31.—Money 2¾@3¼ per cent. The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 1 15-16@2 per cent. The rate of discount in the open market for three-months' bills is 1¾@2 per cent. Money was in keen demand in the market today for month-end requirements, besides various calls on new issues of capital and the consols settlement. The tone on the stock exchange was firm, but the trading was inactive. Canadas were strong, being helped by the settlement. Americans at first were listless pending New York's opening, but later hardened slightly and closed easier. Grand Trunk was strong at the beginning, then eased on realizations. Foreigners were supported by the continent, where the tendency was good in spite of the far eastern situation.

PARIS, May 31.—Three per cent rentes, 97 francs 60 centimes for the account. Exchange on London 25 francs 13 centimes for checks. The tone on the bourse was firm throughout the day. Russian imperial fours closed at 90.50. The private rate of discount was 2 5-16 per cent.

BERLIN, May 31.—Discount rates: Short bills, 3¼ per cent; three-months' bills, 2¾ per cent. Trading on the bourse today was dull and featureless.

ALLEGHENY PLOT SOLD FOR $60,000

Duff & Sons Buy Site in Preble Avenue for a $100,000 Refinery.

POOR REALTY RECORD IN MAY

Through the agency of Charles Crosby the old DeHaven plant of the Pittsburgh Stove & Range Company in Preble avenue, Allegheny, has been sold for $60,000. The sale means the erection of a molasses refinery to cost $100,000, as the purchasers were P. Duff & Sons, whose plant is now located in Duquesne way, near Ninth street. The Allegheny property lies between Bayard and Stanton avenues in the Sixth ward, and has a frontage of 288 feet in Preble avenue with a depth of 300 feet to the Allegheny river. One large frame and a number of brick buildings stand on the lot. The stove company will lease these buildings until April 1. There is no better site in the two cities for a refinery, as the property will be touched by every railroad entering the city and is also easily reached by water. The character of the addition to a large refinery building, several mammoth tanks will be erected next spring. The Duffs will retain their present buildings in Duquesne way as warehouses, and use the Allegheny property for refining purposes exclusively.

This is the second property that Mr. Crosby has sold for the Pittsburgh Stove & Range Company this spring, the other being the Baldwin-Graham plant in Rebecca street, which was bought by the Joseph Horne Company for $50,000. Extensive improvements will shortly be made to the Anchusta plant of the company in Preble avenue, and by next spring all the works of the company will be concentrated in probably two plants.

Poorest Record For Five Years.

May furnished the poorest real estate record reported for that month in five years, as shown by the following table compiled from records in the city register's office:

Year.	No. of Deeds.	Amount.
1904	488	$2,460,000
1903	711	4,910,000
1902	550	4,200,000
1901	546	4,558,000
1900	410	7,002,900
1899	388	2,000,400

As May is generally supposed to be one of the best months of the year in real estate selling, the record is not encouraging to brokers or investors. For the preceding three years the record varied but little, as the spring activity in each year was at top notch. The total of over $7,000,000 in May is accounted for by the fact that several of H. C. Frick's large purchases in Fifth avenue and Grant street were registered in that month. It is to be noted that whereas the average size of the transactions in the year 1902 in May was from $6,000 to $8,000 for the month just passed it was only a trifle over $5,000. This is explained by the fact that large buyers have been a trifle shy of the market of late. The month's business was made up chiefly of residence buying, and this, too, was greatly hampered by the continued bad weather. It is safe to say that with favorable weather at least one-fourth more transactions would have changed hands. A large majority of the deals consummated were made through brokers, showing that these agents have been more than usually active.

Sixteen Lots Bring $18,050.

Through the Freehold Real Estate Company the Allegheny-Bellevue Land Company has sold to Fred Schwitter 16 lots in the Schwitter-West-View allotment for $18,050. The purchase includes lots 504-506 in Highland avenue, 433-441 in Chalfant avenue, 82 in Bellevue avenue and 76-77 and 81 in Perrysville avenue. The latter lot is at the junction of Perrysville and the Chalfonte avenue lots, which have been recently sold to Frank J. McManus at a handsome profit, stands the old Schwitter residence, a brick house of seven rooms, which has lately been remodeled at a cost of $5,000.

Yesterday a force of over 150 men started excavating for the lake which will be one of the chief attractions of the West-View properties. This lake will be in the immediate rear of the Perrysville road and run north along Jackman's hollow 300 rods. The lake will be fed by springs and at the lowest point will be 24 feet deep. At the south end will be constructed a dam 60 feet wide and 30 feet high. A boulevard 60 feet wide will be made around the lake, a distance of about two miles. This will run by the side of the street car line which will be extended in a few months to connect with the Bellevue lines.

New Allotment in Liberty District.

The Paul Land Company is rushing work on its Paul place plan of lots preparatory to holding a big sale June 11. The property, which is known as the old Judge Boggs property, was bought two months ago for $1,200 an acre. Only 100 acres of the 265 in the farm was secured, and this has been plotted into 917 lots, averaging 50x100 feet. Forty and 50-foot streets are being laid out through the property, and sewers, gas and water mains will be provided. The main streets will be paved and sidewalks laid. The property fronts on the new tunnel line, by which it will be only eight minutes' ride from the postoffice, and also has a frontage of 1,800 feet on the old township road. The only school house in Liberty borough stands near the center of the farm. The company is now arranging to build 50 houses on the plan, to cost from $2,500 to $3,000 each. The officers of the company, which has opened offices at 431 Fourth avenue, are: President, John F. Stang; vice president, Fred Siebert; treasurer, John Siebert; secretary, Albert H. Oyer.

The sale is reported of the property at 1715 Penn avenue for a price approximating $28,-000. The deal, which is in the nature of an exchange, is credited to Cooper & Lebanstein. The lot measures 33x111 feet on the north side of the avenue and is improved with one store building and a brick house.

Rapid Building Beyond the Tunnel.

Building is progressing rapidly on the West Liberty allotment, nearly 50 houses being ready for the walls. Marisolf Brothers have just started nine houses in Eighth and Ninth avenues at a cost of $3,500 each. Charles Kimmel of Sharpsburg has the cellars dug for six houses in Eleventh avenue, two in Twelfth avenue, two in Fourth avenue and three in Fifteenth avenue. Each house will be built by P. E. Wagner, four in Third avenue, two in Seventh avenue and one in Belmar avenue. C. E. Walsh also has the foundations in for a $6,000 residence in Seventh avenue. A Pittsburg contractor is now taking estimates on 18 houses which he expects to build at once in Eleventh, Twelfth and Sixth avenues. Of the 620 lots in plan No. 5, the Deerwood Improvement Company has sold, reports only 70 unsold. The actual completion of over 1,400 feet of brick work in the Mt. Washington tunnel, together with the extension of the street car line to nearly all parts of the plans, is hastening the building of many homes.

Sewickley: George Brothers sold for Charles McKnight and Henry Bates to Edwin P. Idelcy, assistant cashier of the Keystone National bank, 90x145 feet in Cookman avenue, Sewickley, for $4,000. The buyer will build a $10,000 residence.

Coral street: The Devine property at 5415 Coral street, between Rebecca and Graham streets, Twentieth ward, has been sold for local business man for $7,000. It consists of an eight-room buff brick house on 27x136 feet.

Small Properties Change Owners.

Thirty-sixth street: Thomas McDunn sold to A. L. Lewin an improved lot, 13.5x82 feet, on the east side of Thirty-sixth street, near Charlotte street, Fifteenth ward, for $6,500.

Renfrew street: Howard Jackson sold to Thomas Hackett an improved lot, 50x80 feet, in Renfrew street, Twenty-first ward, for $7,500.

Seventeenth street: A. M. Smith sold to Henry Semmelrock an improved lot, 28x60 feet, in Seventeenth street, Twenty-sixth ward, for $2,800.

Reed street: J. W. Heir sold to Charles E. Reed 20x87 feet in Reed street, Eleventh ward, for $1,375.

Beech avenue: The Pittsburgh Land and Building Company sold to Fred Siebert, 20x110 feet in Beech avenue, Nineteenth ward, for $1,350.

Anderson street: J. C. Trepp sold to Thomas Lockhart an improved lot 27.5x75 feet in Anderson street, Twenty-fifth ward, for $2,500.

California street: Fred Briggs sold to Gottfried Schafer 25x100 feet in California street, Thirty-eighth ward, for $1,400.

J. Lee Timberlake deal was consummated yesterday by H. V. Curll, president of the Curll & Evans Lumber Company of Pittsburgh and E. E. Amsler of Venango county. This timber land is but a small portion of the holdings of the company in West Virginia. The price paid was near the $60,000 mark, and Mr. Amsler intends erecting a modern band saw mill. The Curll & Evans Lumber Company will manufacture this timber into lumber and about 20,000,000 feet of oak and poplar, and has a finely equipped plant at Holcomb, W. Va.

Building Permits Issued.

Building permits were issued yesterday to Titus De Bobula for a three-story brick apartment house of 282 rooms at Syden lane and Elisabeth street, Twenty-third ward, to cost $58,000; Mrs. Nannie Moore two-story frame dwelling at Sandusky and Preble avenues, Northside ward, to cost $2,400; Lorish Bros., two-story brick factory on Modoc street, Seventeenth ward, to cost $3,000; Mrs. M. Fulton two-story brick dwelling on Madison avenue, Thirteenth ward, to cost $3,000; Mary Slattery brick two-story dwelling on Westmoreland street, Twenty-first ward, to cost $3,200; E. L. Atkinson, two-story brick dwelling on Euclid avenue, Nineteenth ward, to cost $6,500; C. Bonn, two-story frame dwelling at Rubon street, Thirty-second ward to cost $3,200; J. G. Steinhauser, two two-story frame dwellings on Paul street, Thirty-second ward to cost $5,000; Henry Wahmann, two-story brick dwellings in rear of Carson street, Twenty-ninth ward to cost $2,200; J. E. Hill two-story brick veneer dwellings on Graham street, Nineteenth ward to cost $3,000; Clipp Bros. Boggs, two two-story frame dwellings Johnson street, Thirty-second ward to cost $4,000; C. Conrad Reish an addition to a three-story brick store and dwelling at South Fifteenth and Carson streets to cost $9,000.

The Wool Market.

BOSTON, May 31.—Old wools are now practically cleared up in the local market. There is not, however, very much dealing in the clip which has begun to arrive. Some of the largest buyers have been holding up available lots, though the market on the whole is quiet. Some complaint is heard as to shrinkage of new wools. The new movement of old territory wools is still quiet. Pulled wools are firmer. Foreign grades are quiet but firm. EXTRA GOOD MARKET IN THE PRODUCE LINE

Berries in Better Demand—Bananas Are Scarce—New Lake Herring Due.

According to the Liberty street dealers, produce business was better all around yesterday than for any one day this year. There was a healthy demand on almost everything and trading was brisk from morning to evening; cabbage, tomatoes, peas, potatoes, beans, beets, lettuce and berries were wanted to an unusual degree.

The arrivals of strawberries yesterday were about three cars and all these were closed out at from 6 to 12 cents a quart. Maryland berries are now coming in pretty freely. Good peas would have brought as high as $2 50 a bushel if they could have been secured.

There was a marked scarcity of bananas, the local supply having been exhausted before Decoration day. Some of the biggest houses in the city reported yesterday that they did not have a single stock of bananas for sale. About 14 carloads are expected today, however. Lemons are looking up, as they generally do as warm weather approaches. The lemon crop is big this year and the stock is cheap compared with a year ago, producers. Onions are generally easy, but silverskins are in limited supply and command full prices. New potatoes were firmer.

Lemon Grove, Conway lake herring will be on the market this week and will sell at about $5 75 a 100-pound packages. No changes were reported in the grocery line, prices holding about on the level of last week. Eggs are holding their own; southern are quoted 1 cent lower, but the selected are selling up to the prices of last week and the week before.

The hay and grain receipts have been very heavy since Saturday and business in this line is reported slow. Timothy hay has fallen off and the market commands very little confidence. Buyers are few. The best bid on No. 1 timothy hay yesterday was $14. One car of 1 and 2 offered at $15. Oat straw offered at $12 90 at the depot. New bulk oat straw offered at 50c and ear at 61c, both graded No. 2, with no bidders. Sales are light off the exchange as well as on it.

HAY, GRAIN AND FEED.

Receipts bulletined, Monday and Tuesday—Pennsylvania, 99 cars hay, 23 cars oats, 18 cars corn, 5 cars feed, 1 car straw. Baltimore & Ohio—68 cars hay, 16 cars straw, 1 cars corn, 2 cars oats. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie—19 cars hay, 3 cars oats, 2 cars corn, 1 car straw.

Trolley Lines Making Inroads Upon Steam Railroad Earnings

The development of trolley lines and their relations to the steam roads in the past 10 years affords an interesting study, particularly when the passenger records of the steam roads are at hand to justify a comparison of the two systems of travel. The year 1895 may be put down as a landmark in the history of the suburban traffic. It was in that year the possibilities of electric cars at moderate speed over the country roads first became prominent. From 1895 to 1901 the development of trolley systems was especially rapid, and the census report on electric roads estimated the total length of track in 1902 at 16,678 miles, as against a mileage of less than one-third that amount 7 years before. The maximum effect on the steam roads of electric competition is felt in localities where there are groups of prosperous towns within a radius of from 10 to 40 miles, and this condition is at times so keen that the steam roads have lost a great share of the short haul business. Railroad men practically agree that rate cuts to meet electric competition are useless.

June Railroad Conventions.

P. R. R. Relief Report.

The monthly report of the employes' relief fund of the Pennsylvania lines east of Pittsburgh and Erie shows that the payments for April of benefits to its members amounted to $144,717 25, of which amount $65,260 80 was on account of disablement by sickness and accident. The payments thus far made have amounted in the aggregate to $12,121,686 01, of which $5,060 81 was on account of deaths of members and $7,063,619 70 on account of disablement.

Pennsy After Connecting Line.

It is officially announced that a deal has been consummated whereby the Lake & River railway passes from the hands of the receiver to the Cleveland Trust Company. This line is about 18 miles long and operated between Cantalogus and Ashland, O. It is used principally as a connecting line and is a valuable feeder to the Pennsylvania lines in Ohio. It is understood that some time ago the Pennsylvania made arrangements to purchase this property, but for some reason the deal was never put through. It is said the Pennsylvania is renewing negotiations for the purchase of the road.

To Ship Lake Coal.

Officials of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie and the Pennsylvania railroads have declared that the situation at the lake docks is favorable for a resumption of coal traffic in a few days. For weeks the strike has prevented the movement of coal, and shipping to Pittsburgh district on account of the failure of the boats to handle it from the docks. In anticipation of the resumption of traffic the roads have placed large numbers of cars at the mines, and as soon as the docks at the lake ports are cleared will be in shape to handle a big coal movement.

Improved Services on Trains.

The Pennsylvania has decided that its Cleveland-New York service shall be surpassed by none, and since the inauguration of the service on No. 26, the New York Limited, installed two weeks ago. In addition to a ladies' maid, barber and other attendants between Pittsburg and New York, official stenographers have been appointed. Special features of this train will include baths, reading lamps in berths and a complete library.

Railroad Notes.

The Pennsylvania has just issued its annual book, giving the rates and routes to the many pleasure resorts reached by the company and its connections.

The B. & O. has abandoned plans of having through trains between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati handled by one crew. The local crews will run between here and Newark, O., where the trains will be manned by crews of the B. & O. Southwestern.

General Superintendent J. M. Schoyer of the Pennsylvania has appointed R. A. Fox freight claim agent at Renwick station in place of S. Kugler, who has been appointed to a similar position at Bayard. C. Ford S. Meyers has been appointed freight and ticket agent at North Jackson, O.

Struck an 100-Barrel Well in the Pine Grove Extension

In the Pine Grove extension, the South Penn Oil Company has drilled its test on the A. Kirkland farm that is in the stray sand, and the well produced 100 barrels the first 12 hours. The South Penn company has completed a test on the Shriver-Pettit farm and has a small showing of oil. In the Salem district, the South Penn has drilled its No. 2 on the Marcella Chalfant farm through to Gordon and will not have better than a 5-barrel pumper. In the Smithfield district, Wetzel county, the South Penn has completed and shot its No. 1 on the D. J. Morgan farm and the hole has filled up 400 feet with fluid. The same company has drilled its No. 6 on the J. L. Price farm into the stray 28 feet, and has a show of oil. North of the Fallen Timber run district, Wetzel county, Smith & Carnahan have given their test on the E. T. Postalwait farm a shot and have increased its production to 60 barrels a day.

In the Richwood run district, Wetzel county, the Penn Run company completed their No. 3 on the J. Morris farm, and have a fair gasser in the Big Injun. In the same district, the Kanawha Oil Company has completed its second test on the Lantz farm and has a good natural producer, good for 75 barrels a day. In the Littleton district, the Philadelphia Company's second test on the J. E. Anderson farm is holding up at 300 barrels a day. In the same district, the South Penn Oil Company's old producer on the E. Whitlatch farm is still producing 105 barrels a day.

On Kinchloe creek, Lewis county, the Crude Oil Company has given its test on the H. Romine farm a shot in the fifth sand, and the well produced 65 barrels the first 12 hours. In the Waverly district, Wood county, Ambler Bros. have completed No. 2 on the W. E. Sharp farm, and have a 10-barrel producer in the Cow Run sand. In the Wick district, Tyler county, Duff Bros. & Bower have drilled their No. 9 on the Charles Anderson farm a small producer at 1,800 feet.

In the Big Injun. In Washington county, Sutton Bros. have drilled in a test on the J. R. Williamson farm and have a show for a 10-barrel pumper at 1,900 feet. In the Cross Adams pool, Harrison county, C. F. Chisholm has completed his test on the John Patterson farm and has a duster in the Berea grit.

Demand is better on driving stock, though draught horses are not wanted so much as a month ago. Sales yesterday were around the 200 mark, about the same as last week. Prices ranged from $25 up to $175. Main keeps a good many buyers away from the Pittsburgh exchange. The market was fairly active considering the bad weather. The Riverside market, in Allegheny, showed all 'round improvement.

BREAK IN MAY WHEAT LOWERS OTHER OPTIONS

Corn and Oats Show a Substantial Gain on Chicago Grain Market.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CHICAGO, May 31.—A break of 4¾ cents today in the price of May wheat, due to collapse of the theory that there was an outstanding short interest, caused weakness in other options. The July option closed with a loss of ¾ cent. Corn is up ¾ cent, oats show a gain of ... cents, and provisions 12½ cents to 47½@ ...

The break in May wheat did not come until near the close of the day's trading. The market opened weak as a result of lower prices at Liverpool. July started ¼@⅜ down at 85¼@85⅝ cents. Sentiment soon changed, however. Figures connected with the weekly statistics of the international trade were less bearish than they have been for some weeks past and excessive rains had fallen in many sections of the Southwest. The bullish reports from the southwest were partially substantiated by purchases by St. Louis houses and by the strength in that market. The corn market here also showed decided strength. In consequence, an improved demand developed in the wheat pit. The weakness with which trading began was not only arrested, but was in a short time replaced by a fair degree of strength. On a good commission house demand July gradually advanced to 86¾ cents.

After the first hour the market experienced a long interval of dullness, transactions being largely of a scalping nature. The question as to the time of the outstanding short lines of May wheat had acted as a check on many traders, but, as the session wore away without any sensational upturn in the price of that delivery, the conviction that shorts had practically covered their lines gained ground. This induced considerable selling in future deliveries, causing a weak undertone. During the last half hour the feature of trading was the wide fluctuations of May, in which month, however, trading was very light. From 98¼ cents the price suddenly dropped to 93½ cents. A quick rally to 98 cents followed. The close was at 97 cents. After selling off to 85¼ cents, July closed at 85¼ cents. Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 167,400 bushels. Primary receipts were 686,200 bushels, compared with 790,000 bushels a year ago. The amount on passage decreased 1,632,000 bushels, while the visible supply decreased 2,536,000 bushels. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported 570 cars, against 100 cars last week and 570 cars a year ago.

An active demand from shorts, with comparatively light receipts, caused an extremely strong corn market. Trading was active throughout the day and the volume of business was large. Advices from Eastern Kansas were bullish, the crop in that section being reported greatly injured by floods. Statistics also were generally favorable to holders. There was some realizing late in the day, but the market closed strong. July opened ¼ cent lower to ¼ cent higher at 46¾@47⅛ cents, sold up to 48@48¼ cents and closed at 47⅞ cents. Local receipts were 860 cars,

LIFE INSURANCE IN THE BILLIONS

STARTLING FIGURES ARE GIVEN

NEW YORK, May 31.

The enormous sums involved and the constant growth of life insurance are shown in the advance sheets of a special sheet of the Insurance Press, published in this city. The figures deal with the year 1903. In the list of leading cities in life insurance payments during 1903 Pittsburgh is ninth and Allegheny twenty-sixth, as follows:

New York	$25,386,492
Philadelphia	9,248,297
Chicago	8,630,245
Brooklyn	7,435,846
Boston	6,400,058

Jersey City	949,119
Rochester, N. Y.	905,743
Minneapolis	903,695
Allegheny	887,167

Other Pennsylvania cities in the list are: Scranton, $396,762; Reading, $304,041; Wilkesbarre, $275,905; Williamsport, $225,886; Allentown, $224,861; Harrisburg, $173,222; Easton, $159,605; Erie, $154,556; Carbondale, $125,215; Chester, $122,260; Torrendale, $119,300; South Bethlehem, $106,561; Altoona, $103,777, and Oil City, $103,139.

Pittsburgh in Ninth Place.

New York	$2,294,640,000
Philadelphia	885,000,000
Chicago	727,800,000
Brooklyn	686,300,000
Boston	563,700,000
Baltimore	373,500,000
St. Louis	362,700,000
Cincinnati	354,100,000
Pittsburgh	268,700,000
Buffalo	195,400,000

Newark, N. J.	174,600,000
New Orleans	170,300,000
Washington, D. C.	151,700,000
Providence, R. I.	138,100,000
Milwaukee	135,700,000
Louisville	126,900,000
Toronto, Ont.	125,100,000
Jersey City	92,100,000
Minneapolis	89,200,000
Allegheny	54,400,000

The insurance in force in six Pennsylvania cities outside of Pittsburgh and Allegheny is: Scranton, $40,400,000; Reading, $29,400,000; Wilkesbarre, $24,500,000; Williamsport, $20,000,000; Harrisburg, $19,500,000; Allentown, $10,000,000. The Insurance Press says:

New York in the Lead.

New York city continues to be far in the lead of all other places in amount of life insurance carried by its citizens, as well as in the payments to beneficiaries. A large number of big policies are carried by the wealthy merchants, professional men and financiers of the metropolis, while industrial insurance has its strongest hold among the consequently population. More than $25,000,000 was paid out by life insurance companies and associations in New York in 1903, against less than $23,000,000 in 1902. Philadelphia continues to rank second among the well-insured communities, the payments there in 1903 having exceeded $9,000,000. Chicago is a close third. Then come Brooklyn, Boston, Baltimore, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Cleveland, San Francisco and Detroit in the order named. In each of these places the payments to life insurance beneficiaries in 1903 were above the $2,000,000 mark.

The material benefits the people are receiving from life insurance are increasing rapidly in every section. Roughly, the sums distributed in 1903 are 50 per cent greater than in 1899 in the middle states, southern states, central states, western states and Pacific states. In New England the gain has been about 25 per cent. This is a marvelous development in so short a period as five years, and when the wonderful amounts of life insurance now being written annually are taken into account, the tremendous increase in the sums to be distributed a few years hence can be imagined. The people of the continent are united now in the socialism of life insurance, to the extent of bearing one another's burdens to the amount of $846,000,000 in a single year. It is not wild conjecture to assume that a few years hence a billion of dollars will be similarly distributed in one year.

Millions Paid in a Year.

During 1903 the amount of claims paid ran into eight figures in six states, Pennsylvania being second, as follows: New York, $59,093,109; Pennsylvania, $27,261,240; Massachusetts, $17,800,115; Illinois, $14,481,902; Ohio, $13,304,085; New Jersey, $12,045,352. The Insurance Press continues:

Claims paid in the United States.

U. S. possessions and Canada	$258,348,553
Dividend payments (N. Y. report)	20,617,308
Cash surrender values (N.Y. report)	31,407,758
Claims paid in foreign countries (est.)	29,000,000
Annuities (est.)	6,000,000
Grand total	$346,463,679

Roughly, the total ordinary insurance issued in 1903 in the United States was $2,000,000,000. The industrial insurance issued in the same year was approximately $600,000,000. The grand aggregate of all regular insurance issued in the United States in the year 1903 was $2,000,000,000.

There are approximately 300 working days in the year, including Sundays and holidays. Therefore, on each working day of 1903 there was issued insurance to the amount of over $8,000,000.

According to the best obtainable records, two men in the United States carry more than $1,000,000 life insurance. Eight carry $1,000,000 or more. In the $900,000 class is found one. In the $700,000 class are found eight. The $600,000 group has a membership of three. The $500,000 list includes 37. Adding together the above classes, it is noted that there 49 individuals carrying a total half million or more of insurance, the total sum insured reaching $29,000,000. The $400,000 division has a total of 17, the $300,000 division 53; the $200,000 division, 258; while the $100,000 class has a magnificent enrollment of 1,344 individuals.

To sum up, there are nearly 2,000 individuals living in America and insured by American companies holding policies for amounts of $100,000 or over, which aggregate the stupendous total of nearly $250,000,000.

Paid in and Around Pittsburgh.

During 1903 claims amounting to $2,731,678 were paid in Pittsburgh, and $887,107 in Allegheny.

Payments of $10,000 or more on the lives of persons in Pittsburgh and nearby towns during 1903 are reported as follows:

Pittsburgh—Henry J. Bailey, $20,000; D. O. Barr, $20,000; William A. Berger, $10,000; Albert Blumberg, $10,000; B. C. Crumbie, $10,000; Thomas Dalton, $16,104; J. Leslie Gloninger, $33,073; John A. Hofman, $10,000; Charles Hook, $15,593; H. C. Houston, $13,024; William M. Johnston, $21,000; Thomas McCann, $15,000; James F. Neale, $11,527; Hudson Samson, $21,717; John W. Skyes, $13,000; James B. Treacy, $10,000; Edward J. Wainwright, $25,000.

Allegheny—James M. Bailey, $30,420; Benjamin F. Jennings, $13,000; Sullivan Johnson, $20,000; Cyrus B. King, $10,000; John Myers, $15,000; A. W. Thaman, $20,000; William Sauter, $10,000; Oliver P. Scaife, $20,750.

Avalon—William F. Herbert, $16,800.

GOOD SHOWING BY PITTSBURGH

Magnificent Exhibit from This City Installed at the World's Fair.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

ST. LOUIS, May 31.—Pittsburgh's magnificent exhibit in the mines and metallurgy building was installed today. It is one of the most comprehensive displays in that building and its quick installation is a record-breaker. While other exhibitors have been waiting for months to get their freight cars over from East St. Louis, the Iron city officials took time by the forelock and expressed their car of furnishings. The loaded car, filled to the limit with the relief map, oak walls and transparencies, left Pittsburgh at 9 p. m. on Tuesday and within 36 hours was unloaded at the mines and metallurgy building. Every piece of furniture is set up and the shavings are carted away.

The story of the shavings is something to relate. A man came into the booth where John C. Alrich was busy putting the finishing touches to the booth. The gentleman asked the Pittsburgher to have the debris put into bushel bags, which he furnished. The request was granted and the workman stuffed the pieces of boards, scantling and shavings into these small sacks. It took a good many, naturally, for boards do not pack together as cotton.

In a few minutes a letter came in for Mr. Alrich to sign, in which he should agree to pay 25 cents a bag for the removal of the "left overs." There is systematized graft at the world's fair and the shavings experience is only a mild form of it.

Features of the Exhibit.

However, the display was rushed to completion and in the end it has proved cheaper than sending the car by freight and arranging the delivery with drivers. The section in the mines and metallurgy palace is enclosed in rich, oak-paneled walls. On the upper panels are handsome photographs of Pittsburgh's leading industrial scenes, her skyscrapers and churches. On the panels, directly under are statistical reports of the city's population and industries. The feature of the exhibit is the marvelous relief map, 18 feet long and 8 feet wide, which is shown in a plate glass case in the center of the section.

The map is absolutely accurate. It was made from topographical maps furnished from the United States government at a cost of nearly $40,000. This relief map shows the Pittsburgh district from above McKeesport down to the foot of Neville island and from the South Side out as far as Trafford City. In the map is located each leading industry of the Iron city and as far as possible the shapes of the plants are conveyed exactly. Many large buildings and residences are admirably shown. The rivers, the railroads and the street car system are perfectly represented. It is wonderfully correct in scale. Above the case inclosing this relief map is a long, narrow oak case, which contains 18 transparencies showing actual scenes in various industries. Coal mining, steel melting and armor plate making, all well illustrated.

Makes a Good Showing.

This entire display will give to strangers a most comprehensive idea of Pittsburgh. It will be a matter of pride to citizens that they have installed an exhibit worthy the Iron city. For this display the city of Pittsburgh gave $10,000, Allegheny gave $5,000 and considerably over $7,000 was raised by the Pittsburgh chamber of commerce and by private contributions. The money has been spent judiciously. The showing is good.

Besides the immense relief map is also a relief map of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie ship canal. There are relief maps of old Forts Pitt and Duquesne. The committee of the Pittsburgh chamber of commerce, who so successfully planned and installed this exhibit includes Chairman John C. Alrich, Dr. W. J. Holland, Lucien Scaife, Samuel Discher, Joseph W. Marsh, Frank E. Alden and Dr. G. W. Allyn.

The exhibit was finished today and a photograph taken. John Alrich will return to Pittsburgh this week.

More Folk Cases Reversed.

JEFFERSON CITY, MO., May 31.—The Missouri supreme court today reversed the cases of T. Edward Albright, Jerry J. Hannigan and John A. Sheridan, former members of the St. Louis municipal assembly convicted on the charge of bribery and sentenced to five years each in the penitentiary. The cases were reversed on the brief of the attorney general that the informations were not verified by affidavits as required by law.

KICK AND SCREAM

Baby's Awful Suffering from Eczema.

Cuticura Saved Her Life, So Mother Says.

"When my little girl was six months old, she had eczema. We had used cold creams and all kinds of remedies, but nothing did her any good, in fact, she kept getting worse. I used to wrap her hands up, and when I would dress her, I had to put her on the table for I could not hold her. She would kick and scream, and when she could, she would tear her face and arms almost to pieces. I used four boxes of Cuticura Ointment, two cakes of Cuticura Soap, and gave her the Cuticura Resolvent, and she was cured, and I see no traces of the humour left. I can truthfully say that they have saved her life, and any one suffering as she did, I should advise them to give Cuticura a fair trial." MRS. G. A. CONRAD, Lisbon, N. H., Feb. 7, 1898.

Five years later, viz., Feb. 23, 1903, Mrs. Conrad writes:

"It is with pleasure that I can inform you that the cure has been permanent as it is now six years since she was cured, and there has been no return of the disease since, and I have advised a lot of friends to use the Cuticura Remedies in all diseases of the skin."

Instant relief and refreshing sleep for skin-tortured babies, and rest for tired, fretted mothers, in warm baths with Cuticura Soap, and gentle anointings with Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure and purest of emollients, to be followed in severe cases by mild doses of Cuticura Resolvent. This is the purest, sweetest, most speedy, permanent and economical treatment for torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, bleeding, scaly, crusted and pimply skin and scalp humours, eczemas, rashes and irritations.

Sold throughout the world. Cuticura Resolvent, 25c. (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60). Ointment, 25c., Soap, 25c. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Proprietors. Send for "Cuticura Baby Book."

THE OLEOMARGARINE LAW IS UPHELD

United States Supreme Court Also Decides Street Railway Fare Cases.

INDIANA LOSES $1,000,000

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The supreme court of the United States today affirmed the decision of the federal court for the southern district of Ohio, upholding the constitutionality of the oleomargarine law. The case was brought by Leo W. McRay against the United States to recover $50 collected of him as a penalty for selling a 50-pound package of colored oleo containing a stamp of three-quarters of a cent a pound when it should have paid a tax of 10 cents a pound.

The supreme court affirmed the decision of the United States circuit court for the northern district of Ohio in the Cleveland Street railway fare cases. The opinion was delivered by Justice White, and was favorable to the railway. The case grew out of an attempt, on the part of the city council, to fix by ordinance a rate of four cents' fare on the lines of the Cleveland Electric Railway company, prior to the expiration of their franchises, which provided for a fare of five cents.

In an opinion by Justice Holmes, the supreme court reversed the opinion of the supreme court of Indiana in the case of the Terre Haute & Indianapolis Railroad Company vs. the State of Indiana. The case involved about $1,000,000 claimed by the state under the charter granted to the railroad company, which provided that all the net proceeds of the road should be turned over to the state for the benefit of common schools. The charter was subsequently surrendered by the railroad company, but notwithstanding this fact the state court upheld the claim. Today's opinion takes the position that in the absence of legislation after the surrender of the charter by the railroad company the state could not recover.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 31.—It is understood here that following the decision of the United States supreme court, by which the claim of the state of Indiana is held to be void, the Vandalia road will cease to be operated under a receivership shortly and will become the property of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.
